More Than a Score of Powers to Ask Holland for Kaiser

LONDON, Friday, July 4.—The note to Holland requesting the extradition of the former German Emperor, it is understood, will be signed by twenty-two or twenty-three of the Powers.

According to The Daily Mail the Kaiser will be brought to England in a British ship and imprisoned in the Tower of London. The death penalty will not be sought, the newspaper says, but if he is found guilty the Allies will ask his banishment for life to a remote island, following the precedent of Napoleon's exile.

The international court had intended to try the ex-Emperor alone, The Daily Mail says, but the former Crown Prince may also be arraigned before it.

PARIS, July 3.—The Officers' Corps of the Prussian Army and German Navy, says a Berne dispatch to Havas, have sent a long appeal to the Queen of Holland not to permit the extradition of the ex-Kaiser.

LONDON, July 3.—One startlingly new thing stood out in Premier Lloyd George's eagerly expected speech on the Peace Treaty in the House of Commons today. That was the announcement that the ex-Kaiser would be tried before an allied tribunal in London.

The most of his speech was a report to the House and the action on the Peace Treaty. This showed that he was finally satisfied of the excellence of the work he had done, and also alive to the criticisms it would meet and the use that might be made of it in domestic politics. No small part of his speech was devoted to answering the criticisms of those who hold that the terms are too hard.

The house was crowded as the Premier came in and the members rose to their feet to greet him. The Prince of Wales was in the Peers' Gallery. Ambassador Davis was among the diplomats present.

After a tribute to the assistance he had received from Balfour, Barnes, the Dominion Ministers and the Government experts, he drew an eloquent picture between the Germany of 1914 and the Germany of today. There was no gloating over the plight to which she was reduced; the Premier merely pointed out the facts and stated that from his point of view the terms she would have exacted if she had been successful were terrible.

This gave him his text and he took up the challenge of his labor critics, carrying the House through the main outlines of the settlement, the liberation of oppressed territory, the reduction of amendments, the trial of the ex-Kaiser and others, and asked defiantly which one of these was unjust.

All through his speech the Prime Minister kept before the house his horror of what had happened and the miseries of the war. This was the background of his speech, and again and again it cropped out as being ever in his mind as he helped to negotiate the settlement.

He never hid for a moment his belief in the guilt of all the German people.

He made a strong appeal for approval of the proposed treaty with France, by which the latter should be guaranteed against unprovoked attack, and urged the House to accept the League of Nations as an honest and hopeful attempt to prevent wars.

"Let's try it," he cried. "If we had only had an agreement for an inquiry into international disputes five years ago the United States would have been in the war from the first day."

Then he summarized the achievements of the British Empire in the war and made an earnest plea for continued unity in the troublous days ahead.

Weimar Assembly May Ratify Peace Treaty by Saturday

COPENHAGEN, July 3.—The German National Assembly will deal with the treaty of peace between the Allies and Germany on Saturday, and a majority for the ratification of the instrument has been obtained, according to a Weimar dispatch to the Politiken.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

PARIS, July 2.—Conciliatory and satisfactory assurances have been received by the allied powers in response to their communication to the German Government stating that the blockade of Germany be lifted when the treaty is ratified by the Germans. The German Government's note said the National Assembly at Weimar was expected to ratify the treaty early next week and President Ebert would carry out the terms faithfully.

In the communication the German Government expresses the hope that with the lifting of the blockade the allied powers would also arrange to release German prisoners of war. The attitude of the German Government created an excellent impression in allied quarters. Continuance of that attitude is certain to result in willingness of the Allies to show most favorable consideration toward Germany in carrying out the peace conditions.

GAVE OUT TREATY DESPITE WILSON

HAD PRESIDENT'S REQUEST

He Held That Publication of Document was a Matter for the Senate to Decide.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 3.—Some feeling has been aroused over the action of the French Government in publishing the texts of the Franco-American and Anglo-French treaties binding the United States and Great Britain to go to the assistance of France "in case of an unprovoked movement of aggression being made against France by Germany."

The publication of the Franco-American treaty violates the principle that international conventions to which the United States is a party must be held under the ban of secrecy until the Senate, which is a part of the treaty-making authority, authorizes the publication.

Before leaving Paris last week President Wilson explained this principle to the French officials, and it was understood that he obtained a promise that the French Government would be bound by it, as the publication in Europe would mean that the text was certain to be published in the United States.

The French Foreign Office printed several hundred copies of both compacts and distributed these among members of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate as confidential documents. Brief summaries of the conventions began to appear in the Paris press, however, and the fear was expressed that the complete texts would be given out by some member of Parliament. Moreover, considerable pressure was exerted to have the texts furnished to the French public, in order to quiet apprehension that the German Treaty of Peace did not afford sufficient guarantees for the protection of the French against German aggression.

Whatever the cause, a sudden decision was reached by the French Government late yesterday to publish the treaties.

The supposition that Secretary Lansing wirelessed President Wilson on the George Washington and obtained his assent to the publication is erroneous. Mr. Lansing took no action, as he was well aware that it was contrary to the President's wish and in violation of the rule that the Senate alone was entitled to remove the ban of secrecy so far as the United States was concerned.

Before furnishing copies of both agreements to the press the French Foreign Office sought to obtain the consent of the British Government yesterday, but was unsuccessful.

When it became known last night that publication of the text was contemplated by the French Government the statement was made in French official quarters that the publication depended on receipt of an affirmative message from London. Later it was said at the French Foreign Office that no arrangement had been made for publication, and surprise was expressed that the impression had been given that publication was contemplated.

A few hours thereafter official copies of both treaties were sent to the offices of Paris newspapers. Apparently it

Progress of the R-34 on Her Flight from Edinburgh to New York

PRECAUTIONS NATION-WIDE

Many Buildings and Persons Who Have Been Active Against Bolshevism Put Under Guard.

The entire police force of New York City was on duty last night ready to respond on the instant to call should there be an outbreak on the part of anarchists, Bolsheviki, or other alien elements opposed to Government and the maintenance of law and order. The State Guard is also ready, and arrangements have been made to call the men to the armories if they are needed to reinforce the police. Brig. Gen. George A. Dyer will command if the Guard is called out.

Back of these city and State agencies and ready to co-operate in the event of an emergency was the entire personnel of the Department of Justice Bureau for the District of New York, the authorities of the five counties included within the limits of New York City, the staffs of deputies of the United States Marshals for the Southern and Eastern Districts of New York, and the local bureau of the Postal Inspection Service. Never before, said the police, was the city better guarded or preparations for any emergency so complete as at present. These precautions, it may be added, will be continued indefinitely.

What is true of New York City is true of the rest of the country. Plans for the safeguarding of life and property against any possible outbreak of Bolsheviki or other disloyal elements were worked out at the meeting of police chiefs of the various cities held at Police Headquarters last Sunday afternoon, at which conference Chief William J. Flynn of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation represented Attorney General Palmer and submitted the plans approved by the Government for the co-operation of Federal, State and municipal police authorities in handling possible outbreak by the "red flag" elements in the population.

In this city all of the principal Federal, city, State and county buildings are under guard, as well as churches, the Stock Exchange and the homes of citizens who have been prominent in the prosecution of Bolsheviki, anarchists and other persons of like seditious views. Every member of the Legislative Committee appointed to investigate Bolshevism and kindred movements in this State is under the protection of the police and Federal agents.

Police Inspect Anarchist Haunts.

Very quietly and without display the police began early yesterday an inspection of the haunts of more than twenty anarchist groups in this city. These places were thoroughly searched, and all documents, printed or written, of an incendiary nature were seized, according to an unofficial report last night. The persons in the places which were subjected to inspection submitted quietly, and so far as is known no arrests were made. Various alien agitators have been listed in the past week or ten days, and their activities are now being investigated with a view to their possible deportation. It is understood that eighteen anarchists have been deported through Ellis Island this week.

At the time the bombs addressed to Senator Overman, Attorney General meeting places and the work of radical organization proceeded apace.

Betting 5 to 4 on Willard at Toledo; He and Dempsey Fight at 3:30 Today

Many Women to be Among the 70,000 Spectators at the Huge Stadium—Experts' Views on Outcome Vary, Though Trend of Betting Favors the Champion.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, OHIO, July 3.—At 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, if everything goes according to schedule, Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey will put up their hands in the center of the greatest arena yet built for a boxing spectacle in the United States, 70,000 men and women will give a final sigh of anticipation and the battle for the world's heavyweight championship will be on.

The fighters will enter the ring with as wide a divergence of opinion on the part of experts as to who will win as has ever marked a title bout in this country. Men who have followed the boxing game for years declare that Willard will win within a few rounds by a knock-out; other experts, equally well-known, insist that there will be nothing to it but Dempsey. One thing is certain, no challenger has ever entered a ring against a champion with as meager a record as that of Dempsey against fighters of class and has had so many good judges backing him with opinion and cash.

The Dempsey fad has been one of the oddities of this fight. A couple of weeks ago there was hardly any one in Toledo who had the valor to suggest that possibly the champion might win. Everything was Dempsey, but in the last few days the sentiment has shifted a bit and the betting odds tell the story. While there are all kinds of bets on record, at widely varying odds and on various propositions besides that of the mere naming of the winner, the average odds tonight are 5 to 4 on Willard. The Dempsey fad was largely based, when it is analyzed, on Jack's personal popularity and on Jess's personal unpopularity. But, when it comes down to the last few hours and the big wads are ambling into town, sentiment is becoming less fashionable and Willard's great physical bulk and his prestige as holder of the championship are having their effect. No really big wagers have yet been recorded, but it is estimated that by the time the fighters enter the ring, there will have been $2,000,000 bet on one or the other. Almost everyone here either has a bet down now or intends to put one down tomorrow.

Providing that only 50,000 of those at the arena bet, and taking an average of $40 to a bet, which is believed fair, we have a couple of millions in sight, and the total amount to be wagered may well run far above this sum.

Expect 70,000 There.

It is expected that at least 70,000 persons will cheer the sweltering fighters on. The arena will hold 80,000 if every foot is occupied by standees and every seat taken, and Tex Rickard says that this number may witness the spectacle. But he is more inclined to be conservative and place the attendance 10,000 below the maximum.

It is expected that a large number of women will be present. Most of the women, for some reason which analysts have not been able to explain, are for Dempsey. The ladies are going to have as warm an afternoon as the male fans, for any woman who has the courage to raise a parasol is likely to be the immediate centre of a young riot.

And hot it is going to be in the utterly shadeless arena, according to the local weather forecaster. He says "fair and warm," and "warm" in Toledo means hot, extremely hot. The prophet thinks that the thermometer is going to aviate tomorrow and that it will go pirouetting up above the 90 mark, and 90 in Toledo seems about like 100 in New York, because of the peculiar stagnant quality of the Toledo atmosphere. It was 94 here today, and there is nothing to indicate that tomorrow is going to be any more like Greenland than was today. But after all, no one cares very much as long as it doesn't rain.

Both fighters spent a day quiet in the extreme. Doubtless it was a sad day for both of them in that they had at last to bar the public from looking them over at four bits a look. But even a money-loving champion or challenger in the year of grace 1919 has to pass up the coin on the last day and get a bit of classic calm. Willard adhered to his regimen of two meals a day, while his rival cut loose for three large and luscious squares, one more than he has recently been absorbing.

Willard loafed around the veranda of his house on Parkwood Avenue for most of the day, and then went for a lengthy auto ride. Willard is not worrying the least iota and his confidence is one of the most complete things in the State of Ohio tonight. Some of the old heads are wagging over this very confidence, and it is being said by some of these pessimists that Willard is too confident and is holding Dempsey too lightly. The champion declares himself right at the point in his training where he wanted to be and considers himself in excellent shape for the battle. At any rate, the charge can't be brought against the title-holder that he is overtrained.

This, however, is what another group of wise ones are saying about Dempsey. With more wagging of pessimistic heads it is declared to all listeners in the rotunda of the Secor Hotel that Jack is too fine. He reached the apex of his training four days too soon, according to these prophets of woe. It is sure, anyway, that Dempsey is very fine. The fact that he added another meal today shows that he needs a bit more flesh, if anything. The heat bothers Dempsey more than it does Willard. As far as worry over the fight is concerned, Jack seems no more perturbed than Jess. They are probably two of the least worried men who ever faced a championship bout.

Confer on the Rules.

Dempsey spent the same kind of a day as Willard, less the auto ride. The challenger loafed around his camp at Point Place, on Maumee Bay, and went in for the dolce far niente stuff. The Dempsey cohorts rather got a bump or even two or three bumps, when the meeting was held this morning to go over the rules which will govern the contest. At the meeting were W. A. Gavin, representing the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control; Ollie Pecord, the referee; Ray Archer, representing Willard, and Jack Kearns, for Dempsey.

About the only point which was won by the Dempsey legionaries was the decision to have the judges separated, Major Biddle to be at one side of the ring and Tex Rickard at the other. The rabbit punch, a favorite of Jess's is to be allowed, despite the howls of the Demseyites. The kidney punch is barred. The rules of the Toledo Boxing Commission will govern, instead of the straight Marquis of Queensberry rules.

There is plenty of hot air in Toledo besides that of the atmosphere and a lot of this being wafted forth from heated enthusiasts on the subject of the decision, provided the fight goes twelve rounds and both men are on their feet when the final gong sounds. The Dempsey men are insisting that their man will have to make Jess look like a relic of Château-Thierry in order to get the decision, and that no champion will lose his title unless he is plainly outclassed and by a margin as great as a Toledo thirst.

Their opponents in argument insist that men of the standing of Major Biddle and Tex Rickard will give a bold and fearless decision on points and will hand over the title to Dempsey without accumulating one more bead of perspiration. In any event, there is going to to be a decision if the scrap goes the dozen rounds. The decision in the first instance is up to the two judges. If they disagree, the final decision goes to Referee Pecord as the court of last resort.

Thousands More Coming.

The arguments on this and all other subjects connected with the fight are rising in an ever increasing crescendo hour by hour. As more thousands pour into town Toledo tonight is about as crowded as the subway at 6 o'clock. The fight followers have been jamming into town all day from the trains, and

HANDLEY-PAGE PLAN TO FLY TO NEW YORK

No Sign of Improvement in Atlantic Conditions That Would Warrant Start for Other Side.

Special to The New York Times.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, July 3.—The Handley-Page biplane, Atlantic, will fly to the United States tomorrow. The start was to have been made tonight, but it was abandoned because of inability to get ready before darkness.

The decision to abandon the transatlantic voyage for which the big machine originally came to Newfoundland, resulted from an urgent request to the members of the expedition here from the firm's London headquarters that an effort be made to reach America before the dirigible R-34, which is now on the way. Whether she stops or proceeds over Newfoundland on her westward journey, the Handley-Page machine should beat the R-34 to Mineola.

The biplane's landing there will be effected, if possible, on either Hazelhurst or Mitchel fields, since the fliers here are unofficially informed that the United States Government permits no flying over Roosevelt Field while the R-34 is expected there. After a few days' stay at Long Island the Handley-Page will fly to Atlantic City. Present plans contemplate its being taken over by the American branch of the firm and its permanent retension in the United States. It is probable that it will do much long distance and exhibition flying there.

The expedition heads here believe the Handley-Page firm is not permanently eliminated, however, from an effort to fly the Atlantic and, if possible, better the Vickers-Vimy pioneer record by a non-stop voyage from Newfoundland to England. They state definitely that the present four-engined biplane will be permanently out of the contest for ocean crossing honors, but believe the firm can be induced to enter another.

The leaves of absence of two members of the present crew, Major H. G. Brackley, the principal pilot, and Major Tryggve Gran, the navigator, expire soon, and it is probable that if an attempt is made with another biplane a new personnel in at least part will fly her.

Though the Atlantic will fly with a lightened load, 270 gallons of gas having been eliminated, leaving 1,430, the aviators decided because of the soggy condition of the ground not to attempt a start after dark.

The flight, according to Major Gran's reckoning, will be about 1,150 miles, of which about 600 will be over the water. Gran plans a course considerably different from that taken by the American navy seaplanes on their flight from Rockaway to Trepassey. Leaving Harbor Grace he will steer a course about west by south, crossing Placentia Bay, the point of departure from Newfoundland being St. Pierre; thence he will head directly for Nova Scotia, steering for Cape Sable and flying over the water. He will pass below Cabot Strait, where the Gulf of St. Lawrence opens into the Atlantic. From Cape Sable he will aim for United States territory, hoping to pick up a landfall at Cape Cod not far from Boston, and thence fly down the coast to Long Island.

Brackley, who will pilot the craft on most of the journey, expects the trip to require approximately thirteen hours, with an average speed of just under ninety miles an hour. The departure is being planned for 5 A. M., Newfoundland time, or 3:30 New York time. A prompt getaway should mean a landing in Mineola about 4:30 tomorrow afternoon, New York Summer time.

It is probable that unless the departure breaks all airplane precedents the At-

BIG DIRIGIBLE TALKS WITH ST. JOHN'S

Reports Progress to the Admiralty Station as Late as 2:30 A. M., Greenwich Time.

MAY CHANGE COURSE TO DROP MAIL FOR ST. JOHN'S

Plans for Return Flight Include Sailing Over Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia—All in Readiness for Landing at Roosevelt Field.

LONDON, July 3, (Associated Press.)—A message received by the Air Ministry from the British dirigible R-34 at 8:45 o'clock tonight (G. M. T.) gave the position of the craft as 52.10 north latitude and 45 west longitude.

The message added: "We are flying at 1,000 feet. All well on board. We expect to reach New York on Friday."

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, July 3.—The British dirigible R-34 was about 400 miles northeast of St. John's at 10 P. M., Greenwich time, according to a message received tonight at the Admiralty wireless station here. The message stated the airship was making good progress.

British naval officers said the craft would not pass over this city tomorrow morning, unless she alters considerably her present course, which would carry her well north of here. It was said if she followed her present course she would probably pass over Bonavista Bay and diagonally over Newfoundland to Fortune Bay, on the south coast. In this case, the officers said, she would probably proceed across maritime Canada and New England to New York.

At 2:30 A. M. Greenwich time (10:30 P. M. New York time) officers at the wireless station said they were without knowledge as to the exact position of the R-34 since the receipt of the message saying she was about 400 miles northeast of St. John's. They said, however, they had been in further communication with her and that she was still headed for the northern end of Newfoundland.

In the opinion of these officers there is a chance that the craft may later swing south in order to drop a bag of mail, which, it is understood, she has been commissioned to bring here.

Earlier in the day the wireless station reported having heard signals last night from the R-34 indicating that all was well and that the dirigible was continuing her westward journey.

Her Progress Announced in Commons.

LONDON, July 3.—In the House of Commons Major Gen. J. E. B. Seely, Under Secretary for Air, said the R-34 had gone 1,$35 miles on her course at 6 o'clock this morning, (G. M. T.) It was then 835 miles from St. John's. The weather reports were favorable, and Major Gen. Seely said it was hoped the dirigible would soon strike a following wind.

The R-34 would drop messages at St. John's and Halifax and proceed to New York. He said much information would be obtained on the possibilities of air traffic across the Atlantic as a result of the flight, and he expressed the hope that "it will bind still closer the ties between this country and America."

The Air Ministry announced tonight that H. M. S. Tiger had spoken the R-34 at 6:30 P. M. in latitude 54 degrees 20 minutes north, longitude 40 degrees west. Apparently all was well on board. Soon after 7 o'clock the Air Ministry announced that H. M. S. Renown, stationed in mid-Atlantic, had heard fairly loud and readable signals from the R-34 at 12:13 o'clock, (G. M. T.)

The naval authorities expected the R-34 would cross the Newfoundland coast about 6 o'clock tomorrow morning, about 100 miles north of St. John's, and proceed across the island in a southwesterly direction.

The latest message received by the Air Ministry gives the position of the R-34 at 15:55 Greenwich mean time, (about noon, New York time,) as latitude 52:10 north; longitude 40:30 west.

The dirigible in communicating with the Air Ministry via St. John's and Clifden stated that 1,545 gallons of fuel had been used, leaving 3,354. It had used a little more than one gallon to the mile. A wireless set, called type 15, had been slightly out of order but was readjusted and was working satisfactorily.

This did not mean that the dirigible had been deprived of communication as she has two other sets of shorter wave lengths.

The report from the giant airship to the Air Ministry at 9 o'clock (G. M. T.) showed that she was continuing her progress on an almost due westerly course. Her position then was 52 degrees 50 minutes north latitude and 34 degrees 30 minutes west longitude. The report said the dirigible was cruising above fog.

The Air Ministry received a report from the R-34 at 6:11 o'clock this morning (G. M. T.) giving her position as 52 degrees 30 minutes north latitude and 30 degrees west longitude. She was then approximately half way to Newfoundland. An earlier report, received at midnight, gave her position then as 54 degrees 5 minutes north latitude and 24 degrees 15 minutes west longitude. She was then approximately 560 statute miles off the Irish coast.

Plans for the Return Flight.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The British dirigible is expected to reach Mineola, L. I., some time tomorrow, a British Admiralty wireless picked up by the Otter Cliffs (Maine) radio station late today and relayed to the Navy Department said.

The message said that the dirigible was expected back at its home station at East Fortune, Scotland, by Monday, indicating that the stay of the airship in the United States would be very brief. The dispatch follows:

"Wireless reports from airship received this morning report satisfactory progress. Judging by her course and speed, she should reach Long Island tomorrow, Independence Day, and she should be back in East Fortune on Monday afternoon."

[This Admiralty dispatch was evidently based on the reports received from the R-34 early yesterday morning and before the Admiralty knew that late last night the dirigible was still pursuing a course toward the north of Newfoundland.]

There is no surprise here over the fact that the R-34 is not attaining speed on her present westward voyage. Winds from the west were expected, and these naturally reduce the speed of any craft flying toward the west. Her commander announced before his departure from East Fortune that he would not attempt a speed record on the westward voyage. Slower speed is better for the taking of observations and the gathering of the scientific data, which is one of the purposes of the flight.

On the return trip the dirigible, after refueling and regassing on Long Island, will head for the British Isles by way of Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Before leaving Washington for Long Island yesterday, to be on hand when the dirigible arrived, Brig. Gen. L. E. O. Charlton stated that the plan was to have the dirigible, after leaving Long Island for the return voyage, fly to Washington, and after hovering over the public buildings here for a short exhibition, the dirigible, without landing, will start for Edinburgh.

On the return journey the dirigible is expected to have a westward wind behind her most of the way and should be able to make the home trip in half the time it required for the trip to the United States.

WAITING ON TIPTOE AT ROOSEVELT FIELD

Army and Navy Officers Make Final Tests for Landing of R-34.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Friday, July 4.—While no direct word had been received up to an early hour this morning from the British dirigible R-34, indirect information from various sources led the officers in charge of landing arrangements here to believe that the giant airship would reach this station some time this evening. At the rate of speed she was making when last heard from, Colonel Archie Miller, the commander in charge of all arrangements, hazarded a prediction that the dirigible would arrive at Mineola between 4 and 6 o'clock this evening.

"At the present rate the R-34 is traveling it does not look as if she would get here before tomorrow evening," said Colonel Miller at 10 o'clock last night. "It is visionary to try and prophesy the time the big dirigible will reach here. She may pick up speed, but at the present rate she is cruising she should arrive at Mineola between 4 and 6 o'clock in the evening."

Colonel Miller said that no word had come directly from the airship, but that there was every likelihood that the radio operators would pick up a direct message from her at an early hour this morning. The information received at midnight was that the dirigible was laying her course north of Newfoundland, that she had struck much fog, and that her speed had been greatly cut down. The weather reports received at the aviation field showed that a low pressure, or storm area, existed right over Newfoundland, and this may have had the effect of retarding the speed of the vessel. Weather experts sent here from Washington, in analyzing the conditions about Newfoundland, stated that the dirigible would probably run into a prevailing southerly wind when she reached there, which would help her as far as the coast of Maine, and that from then on she would be more or less handicapped, as the weather conditions would be against her.

W. R. Gregg of the Meterological Bureau at Washington arrived here yesterday afternoon to take charge of the work regarding the tabulating of weather reports, and he is being assisted by Lieutenant C. N. Keyser of the Aerographical Bureau of the United States Navy and Chief Quartermaster S. Gottlich of the Rockaway Beach Naval Air Station. All weather reports along the line of the cruising airship sent here from Washington are being relayed direct to London and are, in turn, abbreviated and sent on to the R-34. It was stated that these reports are much more accurate than any others that are received in London.

Operators in the radio stations at Mitchel, Roosevelt, and Hazelhurst Fields sat beside their instruments all night under orders to notify officers immediately upon receipt of any word from the transatlantic flier. The tension among the officers and men awaiting her arrival increased as she approached the continent. Interest, of course, centres around the wireless stations, where the operators are constantly listening for the first faint signals from the dirigible.

"Has anything come by radio?" was the frequent question, and disappointment was evident at each negative answer. A spirit of rivalry sprang up along the three flying field stations, the force of each hoping to be the first to report to headquarters the receipt of even the briefest message.

A thorough test of the wireless apparatus at the three stations was given during the afternoon when the United States dirigible C-4, a sister ship of the C-5 which was blown to sea at St. John's after a successful trip from Montauk Point a few weeks ago, flew over this part of Long Island at various altitudes and speeds. The telephone and telegraph instruments at the three stations were used to talk with those aboard the C-4 and it was found that the apparatus worked perfectly. From this test the officials here believe they will be able to pick up the first message sent by the R-34.

The C-4 flew up from the naval iar station at Rockaway Point during the middle of the afternoon, circled the field a couple of times, went out over the Atlantic Ocean and down the Long Island coast several miles, turned and flew over several towns to the east, including Oyster Bay, Glen Cove, Sea Cliff and Roslyn, and returned to the field, but did not land. After an hour or more of this kind of practice Lieut. Commander George H. Carpenter, in command of the C-4, flew back to Rockaway Point.

All officers and men are in complete readiness to receive the R-34 the moment she arrives. The fifty great searchlights set up to guide her in case she comes in at night were tested last night and were found to be in perfect working condition. Their powerful beams, sweeping and criss-crossing the sky and reaching many miles out to sea, were watched by the crowds which are already assembling to be on hand when the dirigible arrives. All the Mineola hotels are crowded to capacity, and virtually all the "spare rooms" in Mineola homes have been engaged. One motor party which arrived from Albany brought along tents, which they pitched in a field near the aviation grounds.

Already the advance guard of spectators is beginning to arrive, and by sun-up it is expected that many thousands will be on hand. Elaborate preparations have been madet o handle the crowds. Two thousand military policemen will be on duty just for this purpose during the time the great ship is here.

The erection of a small grandstand, to accommodate the guests who have been invited to take part in the welcoming of the dirigible and its crew, located on the southeast end of the field, was completed last night. This will be the only grandstand on the field and is more than an eighth of a mile from the spot where the ship is to land. The nearest the general public will be permitted to approach the field will be about 800 feet.

Officers and men yesterday went over every detail of the arrangements for receiving the airship and bringing her safely to anchor. Both army and navy men are determined there shall be no untoward incident, and above all that the visitor is not in any way damaged or even endangered while on the field. There are 600 army and 150 navy aviation men ready to handle the guy ropes and fasten the ship to the big concrete anchors. All leaves of officers and men were stopped, and no officer or man will be permitted to go on leave, except for urgent reasons, until the dirigible has again started for Europe.

As soon as information is received that the airship is close to the field the army and navy men will be assigned to their positions. If there is a strong wind, the airship will drop a drag rope nearly 400 feet long, which will be attached to one of the big concrete anchors, and the craft will gradually be brought to the ground. Should there be little wind, the airship will drop until 100 feet from the ground, when six cables attached to her will be hooked to blocks.

When the crew has disembarked they will be taken to the officers' mess, where a chicken dinner will be awaiting them. While an effort may be made to get away on the return journey in eight hours, officers here are inclined to believe that the dirigible will stay twelve hours at least.

The R-34 is expected to arrive at the field from the east. If she comes in between 8 A. M. and 5 P. M. and the day is very hot, she may not attempt to make a landing until after 5 P. M. This will be done to eliminate the possibility of an explosion of the gas bag from the heat. In the interval the machine probably will fly about, passing over New York. The hope is expressed here that the big ship will get in between 5 A. M. and 8 A. M., as there will then be no delay in landing because of the heat.

A list of the naval men who will be here to greet the British airmen, as given out at the headquarters of the Third Naval District in Brooklyn, includes the following:

Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, commandant of the Third Naval District; Lieut. Commander Thomas B. Hasler, aid to the commandant; Captain P. Oyers Symington, chief of staff, Third Naval District; Lieutenant D. A. Mount, aid for aviation; Captain T. T. Craven, director of naval aviation; Commander L. H. Maxfield, naval aviation, Washington, and Lieutenant C. M. Keyser, naval aviation, Washington.

Lieut. Col. Frederick W. Lucas of the Royal Air Forces, who arrived three weeks ago on the Adriatic with a picked crew of eight, said at 10 o'clock last night:

"We have information that the R-34 has more than passed the half-way point. If that is so, I predict that she will land here about 4 o'clock on Saturday morning, weather conditions remaining as they are. Every man I brought over with me is capable of filling the place of any member of the crew who might be ill or otherwise incapacitated, and, if necessary, we could almost re-crew the dirigible with the men I have with me.

"None of my men, however, will make the return trip unless one or more of the present crew is unable, for some reason, to return."

The R-34 may make exhibition flights over Atlantic City, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington after her arrival here, according to a statement made last night by the British officers in charge of the arrangements for her landing. An invitation to fly over these four cities has been given by the Navy Department, but nothing definite will be decided until Major Scott, the airship's commander, has an opportunity to confer with his brother officers here. Lieut. Col. Lucas has been deluged with requests from almost every city in the country for a visit from the R-34. He said, however, that it was unlikely that any of these requests would be granted, with the possible exception of the one from the United States Navy Department.

The men of the seven army balloon companies and the 200 special mechanics who have been detailed to aid in the mooring of the craft were ordered last night to attend a moving picture exhibition showing how the mammoth flier was handled in England. Prior to this they were put through a drill by the British officers on the aviation field.

Considerable excitement was caused, not only among the officers but among others at the three aviation fields, when an unofficial message was received at 9 o'clock last night that at 6 o'clock in the evening the big dirigible was 400 miles northeast of St. John's, Newfoundland, or within about 1,400 miles of the end of her journey. Officers immediately began speculating as to the probable time the craft would reach here. Inasmuch as they were without information as to what speed the dirigible was making, they admitted they were handicapped. One said if the machine was making 50 miles an hour or better she would probably reach here soon after midnight on Saturday morning.

R-34 BRINGING PLATINUM.

Has 20 Ounces, Worth $2,000, for New York Firm.

The cargo of the R-34 includes twenty ounces of platinum shipped by Derby & Co., Ltd., of London to Philipp Brothers, Inc., importers of metals and ores at 29 Broadway, according to a statement made yesterday by a representative of the New York firm.

Philipp Brothers received word by cable that the shipment had been made, it was said. The platinum is worth about $2,000.

lantic will not get off till an hour or more later than schedule.

Efforts were made after the sudden decision to alter all the plans and fly to the United States instead of England to organize a special mail which would have been the first of the kind ever brought to the States, and, in fact, the first international air mail ever terminating there. Late tonight arrangements had not been made for this, however, and all the expedition had to bring in the way of messages were a few unstamped greetings, including one from Postmaster General Alex Robinson of Newfoundland to Postmaster General Burleson, and one from this staff correspondent to The Times.

This morning's radical alteration in plans was a complete surprise to the Handley-Page men, and to all conversant with their plans. From the moment the Vickers-Vimy won the $50,000 prize for a pioneer non-stop transatlantic crossing they had been urged both from England and America to fly to the United States. While personally keen for a new sort of pioneer venture they felt, it was explained, that they should finish the job they set out to do, and, as Admiral Kerr recently said, should not "give American people a chance only to see an airplane which had not done its job."

It was found necessary to remove one propeller and readjust the truss by means of which it is attached to the engine shaft. This took several hours and meantime the rear cylindrical tank was drained of 270 gallons of gasoline. This, with other odd jobs and with final adjustments such as inevitably present themselves at the last moment, took till well toward evening. Then the motor tractor was hitched to the biplane and it was hauled to the hillock at the end of the airdrome ready to take off down hill into the very light breeze. The Rolls-Royce engines proved balkly, having stood some two weeks since the final trial flight after new radiators had replaced inadequate ones which led to the decision not to start the transatlantic trip the day the Vimy got off. It required an hour and forty minutes to get all four engines going, and by then twilight was fast deepening into dusk.

Kerr, Brackley and Wyatt had donned their flying clothes, food and water had been put in the cockpit lockers and Major Gran, who went to St. Johns this morning because transatlantic flying weather was bad as usual and he had no idea of any other trip, came racing back by motor. He rushed into the telegraph office and there stretched full length on the floor with a chart spread out and an oil lamp beside him he plotted in ten minutes the course he would follow. Then Gran scrambled into flying clothes and all four of the crew and two mechanics said good-by. The field was cleared, the engines were all racing full speed and men stood by the chucks under the undercarriage wheels ready to snatch them away when suddenly there was a hurried consultation in the cockpit, the roar of the engines died quickly into silence and the six men crawled disappointedly through the trap door and down the ladder to the ground. They doffed their warm things and hurried to take their places in the program at a "sociable" in St. Patrick's Hall to which they had been invited by the townspeople.

BLIMPS AID BRITISH LOAN.

LONDON, July 3.—While the R-34 is making her way across the Atlantic, her sister airship, the R-33, is preparing for a flight to London and other big cities in order to boom the Victory loan, which, according to all reports, is not going as well as was expected.

Today a number of naval blimps performed various evolutions over the metropolis, dropping loan leaflets in various quarters.

LIKELY TO BANISH EX-GERMAN RULER

tion of the Peace Treaty, which he described as "the most momentous document to which the British Empire ever affixed its seal."

The Premier's address was made in connection with two bills which he introduced, one to ratify those parts of the general Peace Treaty, which involved changes in domestic law, and particularly those which concern commercial and financial obligations, and the others to obtain approval for the separate treaty whereby Great Britain agrees to help protect France against unprovoked aggression by Germany.

Although showing the effects of his long labors at Paris, and lacking his usual fire, the Premier at times was impassioned in utterance, and was loudly cheered.

His announcement that the former German Emperor would soon be placed on trial before a tribunal sitting in London was cheered most of all, while his presentation of the Anglo-French convention, providing for British aid if Germany should attack France unprovoked, (a convention analogous to one between the United States and France,) was greeted with unrestrained approval.

The scene in the Commons recalled some of the great speeches of the war. All the seats on the floor were taken, and every inch of standing room was pre-empted.

Mixed Reception to League.

The Premier had a good reception from all parts of the house. His speech was largely impromptu and discursive. He told of the Peace Conference's efforts to prevent wars in the future, and reviewed some of the striking restrictions put upon Germany in the treaty signed at Versailles.

When the Premier first mentioned the League of Nations many members cheered, but seemingly nearly an equal number burst into laughter.

"I beg of you to try it. I beg of you to take it seriously," the Premier protested.

Proceeding, he declared:

"If it saved only one generation from the horrors of war it would be a great achievement."

One member shouted: "Nobody wants it."

Discussing the determination of the allied and associated powers to place on trial William Hohenzollern, the former German Emperor, as the man held chiefly responsible for the war, he declared that if such a course had been followed after other wars "there would have been fewer wars." It was the intention to make such an example of Germany as to discourage others from "ever again attempting to repeat this infamy."

"The world is rocking and reeling under the blow that failed," the Premier said. "If the blow had succeeded the liberty of Europe would have vanished."

The terms of the treaty with Germany in some respects were terrible, the Premier said, but terrible were the deeds which justified it and still more terrible would have been the consequences if Germany had succeeded.

A Peace of Restoration.

Speaking of the territorial terms of the treaty, Mr. Lloyd George said that the territory taken from Germany was a matter of restoration. It was a restoration, he declared, of Alsace-Lorraine, taken forcibly from the land to which its population was deeply attached; it was a restoration of Schleswig-Holstein, the taking of which he described as the "meanest of Hohenzollern frauds, robbing a helpless country in the pretense they were not doing it and then retaining the land against the wishes of the population"; it was a restoration of "a Poland torn to bits by Russian, Austrian, and Prussian autocracy and now reknit under the flag of Poland." He added, "they are all territories which ought not to belong to Germany."

The British delegation, the Premier said, has taken a stand resolutely opposing any attempt to put a predominantly German population under Polish rule, as it would be foolish to have another Alsace-Lorraine in Europe.

"I do not think anyone can claim the terms imposed constitute injustice to Germany," the Premier remarked in discussing the reparation clauses, "unless they believe justice in the war was on the side of Germany. Having regard to the uses Germany made of her army, there is no injustice in scattering and disarming it. If the Allies had restored the colonies to Germany after the evidence of ill-treatment of the natives, and the part the natives have taken in their own liberation, it would have been a base betrayal.

Must Make Wars Perilous.

"Then take the trial of those responsible for the war. If wars of this kind are to be prevented, those personally responsible for them, who have taken part in plotting and planning them, should be held personally responsible. Therefore, the Entente decided that the man who undoubtedly had the primary responsibility, in the judgment, at any rate, of the Allies, should be tried for the offenses he committed in breaking treaties he was bound to honor, and by that means bringing on the war.

"It was an exceptional course, and it's a pity it was, because if it had been done before there would have been fewer wars. The allied countries unanimously decided that a tribunal (an interallied one) should sit at London for the trial of the person chiefly responsible for the war.

"Those guilty of submarine outrages ought to be punished, for the officers should know that they would be held personally responsible for offenses against the laws of war."

German officers who had committed appalling infamies would also be placed on trial.

The Premier argued that it was not vengeance "to take every possible precaution against a recurrence of the war and to make such an example of Germany as will discourage ambitious rulers and peoples from ever again attempting to repeat this infamy. The German people approved the war and, therefore, it was essential in the terms to show, if nations enter into unprovoked wars of aggression against their neighbors, what lies in store for them."

The German army, the Premier said, was at present inadequate to disturb the peace of the feeblest of the neighbors of Germany.

After referring to guarantees in the treaty, such as disarmament, which he declared should not be a "scrap of paper," the Premier spoke on the bill dealing with the American and British guarantee in the event of an unprovoked attack on France, saying that he did not suppose any section of the House would oppose that. His reference to the Anglo-American agreement was loudly cheered.

"It is entered into with the approval of the League of Nations," the Premier asserted. Within living memory, France twice has been invaded by Germany. With her population of 40,000,000 facing a hostile population of 60,000,000 or 70,000,000, France had legitimate reason for feeling nervous apprehension when the British and American armies left.

"I do not agree that the treaties showed lack of faith in the League of Nations. After all, the League would have no value unless it had behind it strong nations, prepared at a moment's notice to stop aggression."

France was quite prepared, said the Premier, to reconsider at the proper time the question of the occupation of the Rhine. There was an understanding with France, but the moment Germany carried out her undertaking regarding disarmament, the cost of the army of occupation should not exceed 240,000,000 marks a year.

Lastly, there was the guarantee of the League of Nations, a great and hopeful experiment, only rendered possible by other conditions. Without disarmament, the League convention, like the other conventions, would be blown away by the first gust of war.

"Let us earnestly try it," exclaimed the Premier. "Had it been in existence in 1914 it would have been difficult for Germany and Austria to make war, and if they had America would have been in the first day, instead of two years after."

The Premier argued that it would have been a mistake to let Germany into the League while there were questions resulting from the war that still remained to be settled. It was for Germany herself to accelerate the date of her entry by showing that the fire of war had purified her soul. The sooner she entered the better it would be for Germany and the world.

After referring to the disposition of the colonies and to the labor convention, Mr. Lloyd George, reviewing Great Britain's part in the war and the treaty, described it as a tremendous achievement. He said he was not sure that the great commonwealth of nations, known as the British Empire, yet realized the great part it had in the achievement.

He then passed in brief review to the men who joined the colors, the money raised, and the sacrifices of men and material made by the empire.

"It is a great record," he concluded. "Let us rejoice, but rejoice as men under no delusion that our troubles are ended, but rather like men who feel that the first and worst of our troubles are passed and that the spirit, courage, and resolution which enabled us to overcome them will also enable us cheerfully to face what is to come. Let us not waste strength prematurely in fighting each other. I say with all solemnity that if we wish to save this country from sinking under its burdens, and the world's, we must make the most effective use of the resources of the country and the empire."

The Premier paid special tribute to the work of the British expert advisers, which, he said, had been the object of the admiration of the nations at the conference, and ended with an appeal for the Victory Loan, with one of his typical flashes, "Don't demobilize the spirit of patriotism."

Women Make a Scene.

During the debate after the Premier's speech there was a scene like those which frequently occurred in the "suffragette" days. A woman in the gallery shouted:

"There is no need to send men to Russia. The war is over."

Attendants carried her out struggling and crying that her son was being sent to Russia.

Another woman took up the cry, and while she was being dragged out, two men had a fist fight. The galleries were then cleared.

DUTCH DO NOT FEAR ESCAPE.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to The New York Times.

THE HAGUE, July 3.—Officials of the Dutch Government are not alarmed over the possibility of the ex-Kaiser attempting to escape from Count Bentinck's castle at Amerongen. In addition to having two moats to cross and a wall eight feet high, he is guarded day and night by gendarmes armed with carbines and revolvers, who patrol the castle inside at night as well as the grounds outside. They also patrol all approaches to the castle on bicycles to watch for any suspicious strangers lurking about.

The ex-Emperor occupies a suite of rooms on the second floor above the inner moat which can easily be distinguished from the private roadway.

It is believed in official circles that neither the ex-Kaiser nor his son at Wieringen will make any attempt to return to Germany until the Peace Treaty has been ratified.

Friends who have recently seen the former Emperor assert that he would rather kill himself than stand trial before an allied tribune. He still spends three hours daily, except Sunday, sawing up Christmas trees in the vegetable garden, and has not been outside the castle gates since Dec. 19, when he returned from shooting, and was warned by the Governor of Utrecht that he would not be held responsible for his safety.

The ex-Crown Prince is accompanied in his rides about the Island of Wieringen by gendarmes, but it would be easier for him to escape by a motor launch at night in the Summer. It would be impossible for his father to escape from Bentinck Castle without the connivance of the Count's family and local Dutch officials.

SAYS DUTCH WILL HOLD HIM.

Guards at Ex-Kaiser's Refuge Have Been Increased.

LONDON, July 3.—The former German Emperor's guards at Amerongen have been increased, according to the Daily Mail's correspondent, and his staff has been reduced. Lieut. Gov. von Estorff has left for Berlin.

Well informed circles in The Hague, this correspondent says, do not believe that Holland will give the ex-Emperor up to the allies. They are of the opinion that he will remain in Holland for the rest of his life.

PEACE COMMISSIONS NAMED

J. P. Dulles, American, Heads That on German Treaty Explanation.

PARIS, July 2, (Associated Press.)—The Council of Five appointed three commissions today to continue the work of the Peace Conference.

The Commission for the Execution of the German Treaty consists of John Foster Dulles, United States; Sir Eyre Crowe, England; Captain André Tardieu, France, and Viterio Scialoia, Italy.

The commission for the organization for permanent reparations consists of Louis Loucheur, France; Sydney Peel, England; Dr. Silvio Crespi, Italy, and M. Moni, Japan.

The Commission for the Co-ordination of Bulgarian Frontiers will be Mr. Dulles, M. Tardieu, and Mr. Peel.

The council also heard M. Bratiano, Rumanian Prime Minister, and Basile Maklakof, Russian Ambassador to France, speaking for Rumania and Russia, respectively, concerning the Bessarabian frontier. M. Maklakof opposed the annexation of Bessarabia to Rumania without a plebiscite, asserting that the majority of the population was Russian. M. Bratiano held that the Moldavian sections of Bessarabia, which are essentially Rumanian, should be given to Rumania.

M. Bratiano has left for Bucharest to submit to his Government the teft of the treaty regarding that country.

Public opinion in Rumania and Transylvania is such that M. Bratiano considers it impossible to take upon himself the responsibility for signing without referring the matter to the Government and gauging popular sentiment.

Twenty-seven notes have been received by the Peace Conference from the Austrian delegation since May 22. Eight have related to the Klagenfurt section, six to the methods of procedure growing chiefly out of the Austrians' desire for an oral discussion, seven to boundaries one to prisoners, one to diplomatic consular agents, one to the regulation of imports and exports, and three to the status of private properties.

REDS MOBILIZING ALL MEN.

Evacuation of Perm by Siberian Army Confirmed from Omsk.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The State Department has received advices from Omsk, dated June 29, confirmatory of press reports that the Siberian Army was exacuating Perm, which Russian advices received in London yesterday announced had been occupied by the Reds on July 1.

Swedish press reports on the Russian situation received today stated that the Bolsheviki were mobilizing more energetically than ever, that all who were able to carry arms were being called out. Officers, it appears, are allowed to hold important posts only on condition that they sign an engagement under which their families shall bear all consequences of their possible treason.

All civilian passenger traffic in or out of Petrograd is reported to have been prohibited. Not even officials are permitted to enter Petrograd without special permission of the Soviet of defense. The Bolshevist papers demand that Petrograd be held until the last moment supporting Trotzky's opinion that Petrograd is the only link between the Russian Soviet so-called government and Europe's "revolutionary proletariats."

The Moscow industrial district again has been ravaged by strikers led by men from the Soronvo works.

DENIKIN CAPTURES CITY ON THE VOLGA

Evacuation of Tsaritsin Before Advance of Southern Armies Admitted by Reds.

PROCLAIMS KOLCHAK CHIEF

Cossack Commander, in Order of Day, Recognizes Siberian Leader as Supreme Head of Russia.

LONDON, July 3.—The forces of General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in Southern Russia, have occupied the city of Tsaritsin, on the Volga River, south of Saratov, according to a Russian wireless report today.

The city previously had been abandoned by the Bolsheviki.

Denikin Recognizes Kolchak.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

EKATERINODAR, June 13.—Last midnight at a banquet in honor of General Briggs, who is retiring from the post of head of the British Mission here and returning to England, General Denikin announced an order of the day in which he formally declared his recognition of Admiral Kolchak as Supreme Governor of Russia.

This dramatic event is epoch-making in Russian history. It must be remembered that hitherto the question of primacy as between these two patriotic leaders has been in abeyance. Their relations have been cordial and they have worked in harmony as far as the imperfect means of communication would permit, but there has been no question of subordination on either side. It had been generally supposed here that the question of who was to assume the supreme authority would be decided when Denikin and Kolchak should meet.

The view commonly held abroad that General Denikin had already acknowledged the supremacy of Admiral Kolchak does correspond with facts. Too little has been known here of the position in Siberia and of the aims and policy of the Siberian Government to render possible any complete co-ordination. True, by a marvelous kind of telepathy Kolchak and Denikin have repeatedly taken exactly similar decisions on main questions of policy, as though one irresistible historical force inspired both leaders, but close cooperation has been impossible owing to lack of communication.

To illustrate this difficulty, only recently a steamer conveying General Grishin Almazoff with dispatches from Denikin to Kolchak was captured on the Northern Caspian by Bolsheviki when approaching Guriev, at the mouth of the Ural. General Almazoff destroyed the documents and he and his staff committed suicide rather than fall into the hands of the Bolsheviki.

Recently the question of supreme authority has become more urgent. A delegate arrived from Paris to request an early decision with a view to the possibility of recognition of Kolchak by the powers. The arguments of this delegation had slight effect, and Denikin's political advisers recommended that though the question of the establishment of a single Russian authority was urgent, final decision should be deferred until a better opportunity opened for consultation between the leaders, and for this purpose it was proposed to send a special delegation to Paris with power to enter into telegraphic consultation with Kolchak. But unexpectedly Denikin took the decision in his own hands and last night he formally announced his submission.

Every one present last night felt the greatness of this single-minded patriot. His armies, after achieving astounding successes, have Kharkov, with Tsaritsin and the Crimea almost within their grasp. The power of the Bolsheviki in the south is broken and the road to Moscow is practically open. At the same time Kolchak's armies have been suffering reverses, and it might seem that after eighteen months of struggle and unexampled heroism Denikin's star is now wholly in the ascendant. Yet he chooses this very moment to renounce all claim to power and to submit to another's authority.

General Briggs has been a crusader in this great crusade and by his firm, wise, and generous assistance in critical moments has upheld the honor of the British name. Denikin said to me: "General Briggs could not have acted better if he had been a Russian."

Odessa Recaptured from Reds by Ukrainians in Fierce Battle

LONDON, July 3.—The Ukrainians after a sanguinary battle have occupied Odessa, according to a Berlin wireless message.

The Bolsheviki forces fled.

Odessa was evacuated on April 7 by the allied French, Greek, and Rumanian forces on account, as was charged in the French Chamber on June 13, of a mutiny on board the French Black Sea fleet. The crews refused to fight the Bolsheviki, who forthwith took possession of the city.

The city has probably been recaptured by General Petlura, in command of the soldiers of the Ukrainian Republic, who on June 30 was reported to be marching against the city.

SEES VIENNA REVOLT NEAR.

Von Stauss Says Berlin Fears Red Rule in Austria.

BERLIN, July 2, (Associated Press.)—Emil von Stauss, Director of the Deutsche Bank and one of the German financial delegates recently at Versailles, said today that financial circles in Berlin were gravely apprehensive that Vienna might shortly fall into the hands of the Bolsheviki, reports indicating that the city was politically in imminent danger, in view of the activities of Hungarian Communists.

The Hungarians, he said, were not only freely spending corruption funds, but had succeeded in perfecting an organization to a degree threatening the overthrow of the Renner Cabinet and the proclamation of a Soviet republic.

Herr von Stauss indicated that Germany would be "only too glad" to send troops to the relief of Vienna, as it did in the case of Munich, but added that "there is a suspicion prevailing in official circles here that the Entente would promptly oppose such an expedition."

"The prospect of having a Soviet republic for our eastern neighbor," Herr von Stauss said, "is none too alluring, in view of our many internal problems and sufferings. Aside from the fact that Vienna is German to the core, the presence of Bolshevism at our very gates would be a most dangerous incentive for our own Communists, and might become eventually a catastrophe in our disturbed political situation."

Herr von Stauss said that German financial and industrial circles as yet were wholly at sea regarding the prospects for immediate improvement in the nation's economic conditions.

"Until peace is ratified all around," he added, "we are unable to make even superficial estimates of our ability to get on our feet economically. Even the most elementary progress in this direction must be primarily dependent on pronounced improvement in the food situation. This will remain the crux of the situation for some time.

"If the Allies are seriously interested in making us a productive factor, they must appreciate this fact. Their blundering on this score has been mutually disastrous. After being adequately fed, our workingmen, of course, must have materials to work with, and until we know to what extent we will be able to obtain raw products the matter of credits abroad and all calculations are futile."

SMALL CONCESSION WILL TURN CHINA

Ready to Sign the Peace Treaty if Japan Will State When She Will Return Shantung

AND WITHDRAW HER POLICE

Last Effort to Compromise Was Made a Few Hours Before Versailles Ceremony.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 2.—The peace delegation from China, which may be soon the only nation still at war with Germany, are awaiting instructions from Peking as to what attitude they shall take toward the treaty with Austria. China declared war on Austria and Germany on the same day. She has refused to make peace with Germany because of the conference's refusal to allow her to sign the treaty with a reservation as to Shantung clauses or make a declaration of protest before signing.

The feeling of the Chinese in Paris since Saturday when the delegates refused to go to Versailles, has been one of satisfaction that they had sufficient backbone to break away from the traditional policy of China to submit to everything demanded of her, regardless of her own rights and dignity. That feeling is shared by others of the powers, who feel that their yielding to Japan in the Shantung matter was only an expedient to keep Japan in the League of Nations is justified, perhaps, by the Japanese promise to do the right thing by China later on in restoring her sovereignty in Shantung.

Underlying all this Shantung situation, there has been a misunderstanding by which A. J. Balfour, who has been largely responsible for the Peace Conference's attitude toward China, was led by Japan to believe that the Chinese delegates were only bluffing when they declared that they would not sign without reservations. The Japanese delegation had given a strong impression that the Chinese had been secretly instructed by Peking to sign anyway, if at the last moment they found that reservations were forbidden. This intimation from the Japanese is more effective than the reiterated statement from the Chinese that they would not and could not sign without reservations. So the English and French delegates at Versailles on Saturday were genuinely surprised when the Chinese failed to appear, thereby proving the sincerity of their declarations.

The attitude of America in this matter has been that it was best to yield to Japan as a matter of expediency to keep her in the League, trusting to her promises of future restitution to China. But the real sympathy of America is best indicated, perhaps, by the remark of one delegate from the United States who said that it was a great relief to him because the Chinese refused to go to Versailles at the last moment, thereby showing their determination not to submit to national humiliation.

The last effort of the Chinese to get what they held to be proper recognition was on Saturday noon three hours before the Versailles meeting, when Hoo Pi Teh, Chinese Minister to France, called at the Foreign Office to present a protest to Clemenceau and ask that it be officially recognized as an essential preliminary to China's signing of the German treaty. This protest, signed by Tsiang and Wang, Chinese plenipotentiaries, was as follows:

"Paris, June 28, 1919.

"His Excellency, Georges Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference:

"In proceeding to sign the treaty of peace with Germany today, the undersigned, plenipotentiaries of the Republic of China, considering as unjust Articles 156, 157, and 158, therein, which purport to transfer German rights in the Chinese province of Shantung to Japan instead of restoring them to China, the rightful sovereign over the territory and a loyal co-partner in war on the side of the allied and associated powers, hereby declares in the name and on behalf of their Government, that their signing of the treaty is not to be understood as precluding China from demanding at a suitable moment the reconsideration of the Shantung question, to the end that the injustice to China may be rectified in the interest of permanent peace in the Far East.

"LOU TSENG THIANG,
"CHENTING THOMAS WANG."

M. Dutasta, Secretary of the General Peace Conference, who received Hoo at the Foreign Office, said that Clemenceau was not there. Clemenceau at that moment was at President Wilson's home in the Place Des Etats Unis. M. Dutasta telephoned the contents of the final Chinese protest to Clemenceau, who evidently repeated them to Wilson. In a few minutes M. Dutasta reported that neither Clemenceau nor Wilson approved allowing China to make the suggested protest as a preliminary to signing. In the mean time the same letter had been submitted to Lloyd George with the same result. Now the Chinese delegates are awaiting instructions from Peking about signing the Austrian treaty. They take it for granted that they will be told to sign it, thereby qualifying for immediate membership in the League of Nations.

Furthermore, China would also sign the German treaty if Japan would make two concessions; first, to say when she will carry out the agreement to restore Chinese sovereignty at Kiao Chau; second, to withdraw her police from the Shantung Railways. As to the first proposition, China would be content if Japan would restore sovereignty in a year.

ALLIES ADVISE CHINA.

Urge That End Be Made to Country's Internal Differences.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The American and allied Governments have made formal representations to the Peking and Canton Governments in China in the interest of China's peace, following previous representations that had been made orally.

Sir John Jordan, the British Minister, on behalf of the British, American, French, Italian, and Japanese Governments, presented to President Hsu Shih-chang, at Peking, an aide-mémoire expressing the hope that an end would be made of China's internal difficulties, that peace would be resumed and brought to a successful conclusion as soon as possible, and that, in the meantime, military measures would not be resumed. The memorandum expresses the belief that a solution of the domestic problems of China is possible and concludes with an expression of sincere regard for the interests of China and the Chinese people.

The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods is reported as spreading. Semi-official advices from Canton, seat of the South China revolutionary government, state that one Japanese hotel and one Formosan shop in Canton have been damaged by Chinese rioters, while five Japanese workmen have been injured in recent demonstrations and are confined in the hospital for treatment. Japanese straw hats and Formosan "panama" hats are the targets of the anti-Japanese students, and are being seized and burned, as are also stocks of Japanese matches.

Japanese stores in Amoy and adjacent points are being interfered with, and the natives are also plundering other foreign stores, claiming that these are likewise Japanese. At Changsha the Japanese stores and the Chinese stores handling Japanese goods are being affected. At Hankow the university students are threatening to go out on strike. A state of siege has been declared at Wuchang, opposite Hankow.

FRENCH RESUME DUELLING.

PARIS, Wednesday, July 2.—The first duel to be fought in France since the beginning of the war occurred at Bayonne, when M. Garat, Mayor and Deputy, exchanged pistol shots with M. Gemmes, Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce, without result.

This was one of the numerous affairs dating back a long time, but held in suspense until the coming of peace. It is not expected, however, that there will be an epidemic of duels, time having settled many quarrels.

President Urges Troops to Keep Up War Insurance

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—President Wilson today sent a message by radio from the George Washington telling them that if it were possible for him to speak to them personally he would urge them to continue the Government insurance protection to their dependents and themselves. The message was given out at the Treasury Department as follows:

U. S. S. George Washington.

If it were possible I should welcome the opportunity to speak to each of you who, by service in the great war, earned the right to Government insurance, and urge the wisdom of continuing this unusual protection to your dependents and yourselves.

The Government will transform your policies, in whole or in part, from term insurance, arranged as a war measure, to such permanent forms as you may desire, and I urge your acceptance of the permanent protection which the generous terms of these policies afford.

You have an exclusive right to this insurance because you served your country in its great crisis, and I am sure that in the years to come you will consider your Government insurance policy as a physical reminder that in the war with Germany you wore the uniform of your country. WOODROW WILSON.

RUMANIA BALKING ON PEACE PROGRAM

Bratiano Says He Is Going Home Because Austrian Treaty Is Impossible.

OBJECTS TO LEAGUE CURB

Is Especially Opposed to the Provision Pledging Protection to the Minority Races.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 3.—The Matin publishes an interview with Premier Bratiano of Rumania just before his departure for Bucharest. In this he states that he is returning home to resign his position as head of the Government and chief delegate to the conference because it is impossible for Rumania to accept certain clauses introduced in the Austrian treaty. There is some reason to suppose that the Matin is using the alleged Rumanian grievances as an indirect weapon against the Clemenceau Government.

As far as Bratiano is concerned THE TIMES correspondent learns from an authoritative American source that he announced more than a fortnight ago that it would be necessary to return to Rumania owing to the state of affairs at home. On the other hand, it is no secret that he did oppose the Big Four's decision that smaller States should submit to some measure of control by the League of Nations, especially respecting the rights of alien minorities in their midst.

Bratiano's objections were overruled by the Big Four. President Wilson, in particular, pointed out that Bratiano's first objection (that the insertion of such a clause in the Austrian treaty was an infringement on the smaller States' sovereignty) although well founded, was more than met by the fact that the small States owed their victory wholly to the great powers and that they were still dependent on the great powers if they were to enjoy the victory fruits.

Second, as this very war had arisen in the first instance from a small State dispute, the great powers were fully justified in the interests of every one in insuring as far as possible that small State sources of trouble should be handled without individual prejudice and settled by an independent body in accordance with right and justice.

The most common cause of trouble was the question of the rights of alien minorities. It is held a positive duty for the great powers to watch that no future conflagration be provoked by injudicious treatment of such minorities by any State, small or great.

In reply to Bratiano's second objection, that these minorities would be encouraged by the clause in the treaty to cause trouble by appealing over the heads of the local small State authorities to representatives of the great powers, the President said that everything had been done to insure that inteference in small State affairs should take place only when the circumstances entirely warranted it. In the interests of general peace the great powers would be quick to show minority malcontents the utter futility of putting forward imaginary grievances.

It was the President's opinion, shared by other members of the Big Four, that small States would soon find out by experience that the clauses which now appeared to them restrictive would really be most useful as permitting them to settle by a decision that no one could question matters of dispute which they themselves might be unable to dispose of without internal trouble or actual conflict with their neighbors.

Whether Rumania and her neighbors in the Balkans and Central Europe will be convinced by these arguments or not, the fact remains that the attitude of the Big Four is more than justified by the present situation in those much-troubled regions. Already more than one small but ambitious State appear to be out frankly to grab everything they can lay hands on, regardless of their neighbors' rights or protest and the prospect of their future retaliation.

NEW BAVARIAN CABINET.

Offices Divided Between Socialists and Bourgeois Parties.

Following the expulsion of the Spartacide rulers from Munich, the Bavarian Government headed by Johannes Hoffman was reorganized upon a broader basis and, according to Munich papers of May 31, just received here, was made up as follows:

Premier, Minister of Foreign Affairs and of Cults—JOHANNES HOFFMANN (Socialist.)

Minister of the Interior—MARTIN SEGITZ (Socialist.)

Minister for Social Welfare—Dr. MAX ENDRES (Socialist.)

Minister of Military Affairs—Herr SCHNEPPENHORST (Socialist.)

Minister of Communications—HEINRICH FRAUENDORFER (non-partisan.)

Minister of Finance—Herr SPECK (Bavarian People's Party.)

PRESIDENT ARRIVES HERE NEXT TUESDAY

George Washington Slackens Its Speed and Is Now Making 15 Knots an Hour.

DRAFTS CONGRESS MESSAGE

Wilson Will Address Fleet Today by Wireless Telephone—Mine Reported on Ship's Course.

ON BOARD U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, July 3.—The George Washington, with President Wilson on board, probably will not reach New York before noon on Tuesday next. The Presidential fleet slackened its speed during the night, and is now running at about 15 knots an hour.

The weather continues good, although the sea was rather lumpy today and a slight mist was gathering during the morning.

The President is devoting most of his time to his message to Congress. His address to the soldiers and bluejackets on board on the Fourth of July will be delivered at 3 o'clock from the cross deck, with the army and navy men massed on the main deck below.

A novel feature of the Independence Day exercises will be the first use at sea of the wireless telephone for transmitting a Presidential speech. A transmitter will be placed alongside the President, so that as he addresses the soldiers and sailors aboard the ship his words will be heard on board all transports within a radius of 300 miles.

The day will be celebrated also by soldier games and army and navy contests.

Final plans have not yet been made concerning the arrival of the George Washington with the Presidential party, or as to whether the Presidential train shall start from Hoboken or the New York City terminal.

President Wilson today sent a message to President-elect Pessoa of Brazil, in New York, expressing his regret that he was not in the United States to greet the Brazilian statesman. The message follows:

> I sincerely hope that Your Excellency's visit to the United States has been in every way agreeable to you. I greatly regret that I was not there to welcome you upon your arrival, and I wish to bid you a temporary good-bye with the sincerest best wishes. It was a pleasure to know you in Paris, and I am sure you must feel how warm is the friendship of the people of the United States for the people of Brazil. I hope that every influence will draw the people of the two countries into closer and closer relations.

Floating Mine on Course.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD U. S. S. OKLAHOMA, July 2.—The President will not reach New York until Tuesday. He is thoroughly enjoying the rest aboard the George Washington, and is working on his message to Congress. He will speak to his party and sailors on Friday, and arrangements have been made to have the speech read the same day to the sailors on the Oklahoma.

After luncheon in the Captain's cabin today, I noticed that the Captain was exchanging an unusual number of notes with the bridge. At 1:30 I started below, and the Captain quietly remarked: "You are safe to go now. We passed a mine we were looking out for fifteen minutes ago."

A floating mine had been reported in this vicinity, and the officers of the Oklahoma had been on the alert for it. The mine itself was not sighted, as it had probably drifted out of the course since the report was received.

One of the reasons why the George Washington is convoyed by a battleship is to have the battleship have first contact with any mine that may be floating about. For this reason the George Washington always follows immediately in the wake of a battleship. When the Oklahoma left Brest she put out paravanes so as to catch any fixed mines, but the paravanes are ineffective against floating mines, and ours were taken up after ten and a half hours.

Unless, however, a mine strikes the ship immediately upon the stern there is no danger of damage. The paravanes will thrust the mine aside by her bow waves.

The discussion of the mine brought out the fact that it must have drifted to this locality from America with the Gulf stream, as there are no opposite currents to bring mines here from Europe. This mine may have been an American mine, but more probably was one of those planted by the Germans on the American coast which sank the San Diego and damaged the Minnesota and several other ships. Only German floating mines are dangerous, the Allies having conformed to the international laws regulating that mines be so constructed so they will not explode when released from their moorings.

PLAN TO WELCOME WILSON AT BATTERY

Committee Expects to Go Out on Battleship Pennsylvania to Greet the President.

Despite reports from Washington that President Wilson upon his arrival here next week would go direct to Hoboken on the George Washington and would land in New York at Twenty-third Street, the committee in charge of the reception arrangements went ahead yesterday with their plans to have a committee of distinguished citizens meet the nation's Chief Executive down the bay and bring him to the Battery, from where he will be escorted to the uptown hall where he is to make a speech. Until direct word has been received from the President setting forth his wishes regarding the reception and outlining what he intends to talk about at the meeting in either Carnegie Hall or the Metropolitan Opera House, the committee is working more or less in the dark.

The Washington dispatch said that the President would continue on the George Washington to the pier at Hoboken and that, leaving the vessel there, the President and Mrs. Wilson and their party were expected to cross the North River to Twenty-third Street and motor to Carnegie Hall. The docking at Hoboken, it was said, was expected to be completed at 2 o'clock and after the Carnegie Hall reception, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and their party were expected to depart immediately for Washington.

The committee having the welcoming in charge expect that the President will follow its own plans, in which event the George Washington will be met by the battleship Pennsylvania having the reception committee on board. The Presidential party will then be transferred to the Pennsylvania and later to a smaller craft which will bring the party to the Battery, where the first reception ceremonies will take place. The committee announced that the George Washington would probably reach Ambrose Channel about 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning. In this event the warship flotilla of welcome, led by the Pennsylvania with the committee and members of the Cabinet on board, will escort the Presidential transport to Quarantine, where the Presidential party will leave the George Washington. The committee expects the President to land at the Battery at noon and to escort him from there to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Some Changes in the Committee.

Several changes were made in the personnel of the Executive and General Committees which are arranging the welcome when they met yesterday. Rodman Wanamaker, who heads most of Mayor Hylan's welcoming committees, has been made Chairman of the Executive Committee, and Federal Judge Martin T. Manton has been named Chairman of the General Citizens' Committee, which place was originally selected by the Mayor. The Mayor and Governor Smith were made Joint Honorary Chairmen of the General Committee.

Other members of the Executive Committee are Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, Commandant of the Third Naval District; Elbert H. Gary, Alfred J. Johnson, former City Chamberlain; Harry F. Sinclair, Herbert S. Houston, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, and Abram I. Elkus. William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury and son-in-law of the President, will become a member of the General Committee. He will serve in an advisory capacity with the Executive Committee in arranging the details of the reception.

Just what the President will talk about in the speech he is scheduled to make at either Carnegie Hall or the Metropolitan Opera House will not be known by the committee until the President has been heard from. Grover A. Whalen, former Secretary to the Mayor and Commissioner of Plants and Structures, suggested that the President in all probability would not talk upon the Peace Treaty or the League of Nations, but would confine his remarks to simply replying to the addresses of welcome made by the Governor and the Mayor. Other members of the committee thought that the President would seize the opportunity to answer the criticisms of the Republican Senators who have opposed his work abroad. It has been announced that the President will take the stump shortly after his arrival in a country-wide campaign to acquaint the public with what went on at the Peace Conference.

"The published statements that President Wilson will make an argument for the League of Nations in his address at Carnegie Hall are in error," said Mr. Whalen. "The President, in all probability, will confine himself to response to the addresses of welcome which are to be delivered by Governor Smith in behalf of the State and by Mayor Hylan in behalf of the city."

CRITICISES AVIATION HEADS.

Hicks Says Their Plans Did Not Warrant More Funds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Inspired by the activities of other countries in aviation, especially in dirigible development, Representative Fred C. Hicks of New York, Chairman of the Aviation Sub-Committee of the House Naval Affairs Committee, announced today his intention of going abroad to study what is being done by France and England in developing airships in a military and commercial way.

Mr. Hicks said Congress had not been as liberal as it might have been in making appropriations for aviation in the army and navy bill. This was because Congress was not impressed with the plans of the army and navy heads, neither of which, until the bills had become the subject of bitter dispute, had submitted anything that looked to the committees like a comprehensive plan.

The bills as they passed the House carried $30,000,000 for aviation in the army and navy. The Senate increased the appropriations for each service to $25,000,000 each, so that for aviation purposes the administration has $50,000,000 for experiment and development in the next fiscal year. As against this $50,000,000, England's budget for aviation amounts to $303,000,000. Instead of lessening aviation activities as the result of the armistice and peace, England's plans, launched six months ago, provide for extensive airship building with the idea of perfecting machines for ocean travel, as well as powerful battle machines.

Mr. Hicks said he expected to find out, if possible, the extent of England's air program and make a comprehensive report to the Naval Affairs Committee. He believes Congress will not be penurious when it learns what is being done abroad.

Mr. Hicks added his belief that the people of the country were not satisfied with "the way money was wasted in the air program during the war. If there were a reorganization, and an air secretary directing experiments in some co-ordinated way, I think Congress would be more disposed liberally to provide for aivation."

Toronto Railway Strike Ends.

TORONTO, July 3.—The street railway strike in progress here for about ten days was settled tonight. Service will be resumed tomorrow morning.

REDS HANG FORTY HUNGARIAN YOUTHS

BELA KUN REJECTS PROTEST

Proclaims That "Blood Shall Flow" to Protect Soviet—Allies to Enforce Food Relief.

VIENNA, July 2, (Associated Press.)—The execution of forty youths of the Budapest Military Academy and three officers was ordered by the Hungarian Soviet Government as a reprisal against anti-Communists who attempted to seize the telephone and telegraph stations and who bombarded Soviet headquarters, according to delayed dispatches from Budapest.

Bela Kun, head of the Communist Government, issued a proclamation that since proper appreciation had not been shown of the "mild treatment of the past three months, blood shall flow henceforth, if necessary, to insure the protection of the proletariat."

Many were killed and wounded during the disorders, and a hundred of the counter-revolutionists were arrested. Three of the anti-Communist officers were executed.

The disorders began on June 24. Three monitors in the Danube, whose officers and crews aided the counter-revolutionary forces, bombarded Soviet headquarters.

Fifty youths from the military academy who held the central telegraph station surrendered to Government forces after the anti-Communists failed to send aid. Forty of these youths were executed. Immense gallows were erected on Kossuth Street for the hangings.

Lieut. Col. Romanelli of Italy, the only allied representative remaining there, wrote to Bela Kun that the Allies would not tolerate ruthlessness against hostages or anti-Communist prisoners. Bela Kun replied that the Soviet could not permit interference with its internal affairs. Colonel Romanelli protested against the hangings, but he was unable to save the forty military collegians.

PARIS, July 3.—A report from the Interallied Food Council on the tactics of Bela Kun, Foreign Minister of the Hungarian Soviet Government, in obstructing relief work in Hungary will be submitted to the Council of Five.

It is understood that representations will be made to Bela Kun that if he persists in his tactics a small force of allied troops will probably be thrown into Hungary to assist in relief work.

Paris advices received on Wednesday night stated that food supplies destined for Czechoslovakia had been held up by the refusal of Bela Kun to permit steamers carrying the supplies to pass up the Danube.

FEAR MONEY CUT IN AUSTRIA.

Government Is Reported to Intend Retiring Much Paper.

VIENNA, July 1, (Associated Press.)—The money situation is troubling the Austrian public, which fears a reduction in the nhmber of rrowns, as it is reported that the Government will take 50 per cent. of them out of circulation.

The floating currency for Austria alone at present is estimated at 12,000,000,000 crowns, as compared with 2,000,000,000 for the whole empire before the war. Austria has one crown of metal for every 200 crowns of paper. Gold and silver coins aggregate 62,000,000 crowns, one-third of which was in Hungary when the Government there was taken over by the Communists.

The Communist Government in Budapast, it is reported, is forcing the public to accept new Communist money. It is confiscating the metal coins of the old empire wherever they can be found, and, it is said, is offering a reward of 50 per cent. to those who denounce persons who have hidden deposits of money.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

was decided by the Foreign Office to act without the consent of the British. The copies of the treaties cabled to American newspapers were obtained unofficially.

The matter may appear of little moment, but has an important side so far as the United States is concerned, as the President had contended that even with the Senate insisting that it should have copies of the first draft of the German Peace Treaty he held that the Senate was not entitled to these until the treaty was completed and laid before it officially by the President.

Later, when the treaty was submitted to the Germans in final form and accepted by the German Government, the American peace delegation took the ground that as the Senate was demanding the text, an exception could properly be made to the rule that the Senate alone should determine to remove the seal of confidence from such documents.

Because of this and the fact that the publication of the treaty was authorized by the French and British Governments copies of the documents were obtainable from American official sources, but with the understanding that they were furnished unofficially and merely for the convenience of the American press, which, as well as the American Senate and the public, were placed at a disadvantage through the course of the British and French Governments in distributing copies to their newspapers.

The American peace delegation and Secretary Lansing, as head of the State Department, refused to take any responsibility for the publication of the text of the Franco-American and Anglo-French agreements. It is indicated that they disapprove the action of the French Government in releasing them to the press. Certainly in this case the Senate can find no ground for criticism of the President or the American Peace Commission in connection with the premature publication of a confidential document.

Important points have already been brought forward concerning the provision of the Franco-American treaty that it must be submitted to the Council of the League of Nations for approval. This provision is contained in Article III.

It is a well-established rule of the American Government that the constitutional powers conferred upon Congress or either House of Congress shall not be delegated to any other authority. Congress has frequently insisted upon the observance of this rule. The alleged violation of it through a provision in the Interstate Commerce act, conferring the ratemaking power on the Interstate Commerce Commission, caused a spirited discussion when that measure was before Congress.

In the present instance the point is raised that the treaty provides that the League Council is invested with authority to determine whether a treaty, ratified by the Senate, "is an engagement which is consistent with the covenant of the League." This, it is asserted, is a delegation of constitutional authority conferred upon the Senate as part of the treaty-making power of the Government.

That the matter furnishes food for thought is admitted even by officials connected with the American peace delegation, who are familiar with the negotiations preceding the signing of the Franco-American agreement.

It is not doubted here that opponents in the Senate of the League and the special arrangement between the United States and France will use this contention to attack the validity of the treaty, which some assert provides for a defensive alliance between the Governments of the United States, France, and Great Britain.

Arguments are advanced also that the right given the Council of the League to determine when the treaty shall cease to be effective is likewise in contradiction of the Senate's constitutional privileges. Article III. provides that the treaty shall continue in force "until on application of one of the parties to it, the council, acting if need be by a majority, agrees that the League itself affords sufficient protection."

This, it is suggested, confers upon the League Council the right to determine when the treaty to which the United States is a party shall become void. It may not be a delegation of powers conferred upon the Senate, but it is not doubted that this particular provision will be attacked on the ground that it is the delegation of rights vested by the Constitution in the Executive.

There is a disposition among the representatives of the United States in Paris to be frank in discussing the terms of the Franco-American agreement now that it is made public. They are willing to concede that nice points have been raised in reference to the delegation of constitutional authority, and admit that this question had not been brought forward while the treaty was being negotiated.

Their frankness carries weight, therefore, in discussing all the other aspects of the ne warrangement which is unique in American international procedure, unless one excepts the near alliance between France and the United States in the early history of the American Commonwealth.

For this reason it is worthy of note that the Americans connected with the peace mission attach no importance to the contention that the United States is more firmly and definitely pledged than Great Britain to go to the assistance of France in the contingency provided for. The British text states that the British Government "is willing to undertake to support the French Government." The American text reads that "the United States of America shall be bound" to go immediately to France's assistance.

American officials assert that the obligation imposed upon Britain is as great and binding as that imposed upon the United States. The British undertaking, it is pointed out, is a solemn pledge, and the difference in the text between the two stipulations is of no consequence.

In the same way, the provision in the British Treaty is that the agreement to support France, "provided a similar obligation is entered into by the United States," is counterbalanced by the provision in the Franco-American Treaty that "it will only come into force" when the Anglo-French Treaty is ratified.

PLEDGES TO FRANCE MUST GO TO LEAGUE

French Parliament's and Senate's Approval Also Required for Defense Treaty.

PARIS, July 2, (Associated Press.)—The texts of the agreements between France and the United States and France and Great Britain were given out by the Foreign Office late tonight.

The agreement with the United States cities articles of the Peace Treaty prohibiting Germany from fortifying the right or left bank of the Rhine or assembling forces within thirty miles east of the Rhine, and provides, in case that these provisions do not assure to France proper security and protection, that the United States is bound to come immediately to the aid of France if any unprovoked act of aggression is made against her by Germany.

It is provided that the treaty shall be submitted to the Council of the League of Nations, which will decide whether to recognize it as an engagement in conformity with the League covenant, and also provides that the treaty shall be submitted to the United States Senate and the French Parliament for approval.

The text of the treaty follows:

"Considering that the United States of America and the Government of the French Republic are equally animated by a desire to maintain the peace of the world, so happily restored by the treaty signed at Versailles on June 28, which put an end to the war begun by the aggression of the German Empire and terminated by the defeat of that power, and

"Considering that the United States of America and the Government of the French Republic, fully convinced that an unprovoked aggression directed by Germany against France would not only violate at the same time the letter and spirit of the Versailles treaty, to which the United States and France are parties, thus exposing France anew to the intolerable burden of unprovoked war, but that such aggression on the act reputed by the treaty of Versailles as being against all the powers signa- as being against all the Powers signatory to the treaty and calculated to trouble the peace of the world, involving inevitably and directly the States of Europe and indirectly the entire world, as experience has amply and unhappily demonstrated, and

"Considering that the United States of America and the Government of the French Republic apprehend that the stipulations concerning the left bank of the Rhine cannot assure immediately to France, on one hand, and to the United States on the other, as signatory powers to the treaty of Versailles, appropriate security and protection,

"Consequently, the United States of America and the Government of the French Republic, having decided to conclude a treaty to realize these necessary ends, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, and Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, specially authorized to that end by the President of the United States of America, and Georges Clemenceau, President of the Council of Ministers and Minister of War, and Stephen Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs, specially authorized to that end by Raymond Poincaré, President of the French Republic, have agreed upon the following:

"Article I.—The following stipulations concerning the left bank of the Rhine, are contained in the Peace Treaty signed with Germany at Versailles, June 28, 1919, by the United States of America, the Government of the French Republic, and by the British Empire, among other powers.

Article XLII.—Germany is prohibited from maintaining or constructing fortifications either on the left bank of the Rhine or on the right bank west of a line running fifty kilometers to the east of that river.

XLIII.—In the area defined above the maintenance and the assembly of armed forces, either permanently or temporarily, and military manoeuvres of any kind, as well as the upkeep of all permanent works for mobilization, are in the same way forbidden.

Article XLIV.—In case Germany violates in any manner whatever the provisions of Articles XLII. and XLIII., she shall be regarded as committing a hostile act against the powers signatory of the present treaty and as calculated to disturb the peace of the world.

"In case these stipulations should not assure immediately to France appropriate security and protection, the United States of America shall be bound to come immediately to her aid in case of any unprovoked act of aggression directed against her by Germany.

"Article II.—The present treaty, couched in terms analogous to those of a treaty concluded on the same date and to the same end between Great Britain and the French Republic, a copy of which is hereto annexed, will not enter into force until the moment when the latter is ratified.

"Article III.—The present treaty must be submitted to the Council of the Society of Nations and must be recognized by the Council, deciding if occasion arise by majority, as an engagement in conformity with the covenant of the Society. It will remain in force until, upon demand of one of the parties to the treaty, the Council deciding if occasion arise by a majority, finds that the Society itself assures sufficient protection.

"Article IV.—The present treaty shall before ratification be submitted to the chambers of the French Parliament for approval and it shall be submitted to the Senate of the United States of America at the same time as the treaty of Versailles shall be submitted for assent to ratification. Ratifications shall be exchanged at the time of deposit in Paris of the ratifications of the treaty of Versailles, or as soon afterwards as possible."

Then follow the signatures of M. Clemenceau, M. Pichon, Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Lansing.

The agreement between Great Britain and France, the text of which was also given out, corresponds with that between the United States and France, with an additional provision that the treaty imposes no obligation upon any of the dominions of the British Empire unless and until it be approved by the Parliament of each dominion interested. This agreement is signed by M. Clemenceau, M. Pichon, David Lloyd George, British Premier, and A. J. Balfour, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

"The guarantee pact," as the Parisian press calls the treaty between the United States and France, gives general satisfaction here. All newspapers, however, point out that according to the text of the instrument America goes further than England does in the treaty between France and that country.

By Article I. of the American-French treaty, "the United States of America will be bound to come to the aid of France immediately," it is pointed out, while Article I. of the Anglo-French agreement only says: "England consents to come," &c.

BORAH PREDICTS DEFEAT

But Many Senators Are Inclined Toward Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The French-American alliance will encounter opposition when it comes up in the Senate, according to the Washington correspondent of The Chicago Tribune.

Senator Borah thinks one-third of the Senate will be against the treaty and prevent ratification. Other Senators are quoted as follows:

"I have not had a chance to study the text of the treaty," said Senator New of Indiana; "but the general idea of going to the aid of France in case of an unprovoked attack is certainly less objectionable to me than the League of Nations."

"It may be a wise idea," said Senator Spencer of Missouri, "but it is getting us tangled with a vengeance in European affairs. I have not made up my mind yet whether to support it or oppose it."

Senator Curtis of Kansas, was inclined to favor the idea.

"I have felt very sympathetic toward the French, and have thought that we ought to stand ready to go to their aid whenever their safety is threatened," said Senator Kenyon of Iowa, "but I would like to hear what some of the returning soldiers have to say about going back to fight for France before I cast my vote."

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The agreement between the United States and France under which this country would go to the aid of France in case of unprovoked attack on France by Germany will be laid before the Senate by the President at the same time that he presents the German Peace Treaty, officials think.

The text of the agreement had not been received today by the State Department, which several days ago received the Peace Treaty in the form signed by the German delegates.

The World in a Ferment

The world was in the throes of rehabilitation in June, 1919. It would have been impossible to follow in detail the momentous developments from the fragmentary reports in the daily press.
The function of Current History Magazine (the monthly periodical of The New York Times Company) is to collate into consecutive, interesting sequence the salient facts of the stupendous phases in each nation.

July Current History Magazine does this.

The Peace Treaty as finally revised will not be made public until next week. The full text of the German Proposals, Counterproposals, and the Rejoinder of the Allies clear up the disputed points and interpret the document. These records appear in complete form in the July issue.

DRY LAW AIDS REDS, ASSERTS GOMPERS

Warns of Impending Danger in Report to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

GIVES GROWTH IN DETROIT

Says Agitators Follow Prohibition Laws and Are Reaping Harvest on Discontent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Basing his assertions on a report of conditions in the State of Michigan, where, he says, the growth of the Industrial Workers of the World and other radical organizations has reached a point where it is a menace to the safety of the Nation, Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement submitted today to the Senate Judiciary Committee, makes the charge that the prohibition forces are aiding and abetting Bolshevism by oppressive legislation depriving the workers of their beer.

He takes the stand also that if prohibition of beer must be accepted wine cellars should be forced to disgorge their stocks and a "bone dry" policy for all put into effect. The present policy, he says, is breeding class hatred on an alarming scale.

Mr. Gompers asserts that conditions in Michigan, where radical groups have international headquarters, are reflected throughout the nation, and he asserts that attempts to foster the I. W. W. Bolshevist movement in Michigan had failed until prohibition was introduced.

The House of the Masses, the headquarters of the radicals in Detroit, says Mr. Gompers, has increased its membership to 21,800 since prohibition became effective. He also gives a list of 125 publications which have been in great demand and have been distributed by the hundreds of thousands. Of the movement he says:

"It is a fierce form of radical I. W. W. teaching and preaching, akin to the revolutionary socialism of the Continent of Europe. It is socialism born of class division and class antagonism."

The concluding remarks of his report are as follows:

"Oppressive legislation begets radical propaganda, and should Bolshevist doctrines ever obtain a foothold in this nation, which God forbid, the prohibitionists will not be free from responsibility."

In his statement to the Judiciary Committee Mr. Gompers says in part:

"A certain Congressman from the West has seen fit to challenge on the floor of the House the correctness of my statement that depriving the American workingman of his glass of beer tends to promote industrial unrest and discontent. In this connection I have in my possession a detailed report, made by an important investigator, upon conditions in Detroit, Mich., a city with a population of something like a million souls, the largest city under prohibition. Michigan went dry in May, 1918, which means that Detroit has for practicaly fourteen months been what is verbally termed dry.

"Prior to this period repeated efforts were made by the I. W. W. to gain a foothold in that city, but its propaganda and organization efforts among the automobile workers resulted in complete failure. In the year and two months since prohibition went into effect the alteration in Detroit conditions has been amazing, not to say sinister and threatening.

Organizers Follow Prohibition.

"Immediately prohibition was ushered in, I. W. W. organizers invaded Detroit and opened headquarters. Since then affiliated locals have been organized in various wards. "Detroit is national headquarters for the American Proletarian University, with offices in Michigan Avenue and an official monthly organ titled The Proletarian. There are branches of this university in every industrial centre in the United States, with a staff of young and enthusiastic lecturers, who collect sufficient funds at their propaganda meetings to defray their expenses.

"The head centre for radical propaganda work in Detroit for the I. W. W., the Anarchists, and the radical Socialist organizations is the House of the Masses, a commodious structure at St. Aubin and Gratiot Avenues. There are upward of 17,000 shareholders in this property, which represents an investment of $75,000. The membership of the House of the Masses is some 21,800. Not all are shareholders like the 17,000 named, but are all contributors in a greater or less degree to the propaganda fund. During the past twelve months over $40,000 has been spent in Detroit on propaganda alone. In addition, the House of the Masses contributed money for the support of the Rand School of Socialism in New York City.

"There is one organization which has sprung up since the advent of prohibition which calls itself the W. I. I. U., or Workers' International Industrial Union. It appears to be an offshoot of the regular I. W. W., and is international in scope, with headquarters in Detroit. All of these radical organizations, the Workers International, the I. W. W., the Russian Bolshevik Soviet, the Ukrainian, the Esthonian, the Finnish, the Lettish, the Liebknecht, the Lithuanian, the Russian No. 1, the Slovak, the South Slavic, set up the claim that they are the only blown-in-the-bottle, simon-pure representatives of the Russian Soviet movement and entitled to speak officially for Lenin and Trotsky and their cause.

"As near as can be learned there is nothing which the Russian Bolsheviki advocate that these radical Detroit revolutionaries do not also stand for and uphold. In a word, the triumph of the Detroit I. W. W. Socialists would mean the triumph of Russian Bolshevism in America. It is a social democracy akin to that of the mining regions of the West. It is a fierce form of radical I. W. W.ism teaching and preaching akin to the revolutionary socialism of the continent of Europe, rather than the parlor socialism of the London Fabian Society. It is a socialism born of class divisions and class antagonisms, and the hatred of all superiority, either mental, moral, or physical, which would seem to be inseparable from radicalism, whatever name may be used to dignify it.

"Along with these organizations there is another radical organization in Detroit which has to be taken account of in any discussion of labor unrest and discontent in the metropolis of Michigan, and that is the Detroit Employers' Association. Believing in and practicing collective bargaining among themselves, they deny it to their employes. Detroit is the greatest open shop town in America, thanks to the Employers' Association.

"According to the report of the special investigator, the inability of the Detroit toiler to buy a glass of comforting beer is vexatious enough, but what bites deeper and hurts the most are notorious instances like the one quoted, and they are as common in Detroit as blackberries in July. The prohibition campaign in Michigan was largely financed by the wealthy employers of labor, and yet 90 per cent. of these same employers are personally wet in their own homes. A large contributor to the Michigan prohibition campaign is a Detroit employer who pays the lowest wages to his working girls of any known millionaire. As Charles Schwab very pertinently pointed out the other day, the present prohibition law is a law for the poor and not for the rich, and that fact alone promotes unrest and bitterness.

"Detroit is the industrial klondike of America. Since the marvelous rise in the automobile industry at that centre, prosperity has ruled among the workers there. It is the home of the Henry Ford plant with its minimum wage of $5 a day, even to the women who sweep out the office. It can scarcely be said in fairness that the growth of the I. W. W. movement and the spread of radical socialism there and the attendant unrest and discontent are altogether traceable to the problem of wages, for many of its workingmen and women are the highest paid in the United States. Yet a few days ago over twenty strikes were reported from that point.

PRECAUTIONS NATION-WIDE.

Every Police Agency Called Into Action Against Reds.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Every law-enforcing agency in the country will cooperate tomorrow in preserving order against reported plans of anarchists and other radicals to create a reign of terror by bomb explosions.

Officials of the Department of Justice have said that they knew of no concerted plot set for Independence Day, but no chances are being taken. The Bureau of Investigation has enlisted the police of all large cities in their purpose to put an end to criminal agitation. The plans have not been divulged, but it is known that many suspected persons have been under surveillance and that they will be arrested on the least suspicious move.

Adequate precautions have been taken for the protection of public officials, but the nature of the safeguards necessarily has been kept secret.

MUCH DYNAMITE STOLEN.

Pittsburgh Doubles Guards on Warning from State Police.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., July 3.—Following receipt of a message from the State police headquarters at Harrisburg today, announcing wholesale thefts of powder and dynamite in different part of the State, police officials here detailed squads of detectives to guard the homes of county and Government officials and public buildings in this city.

The State police warned the local authorities and the heads of all industrial plants to keep a sharp watch over their property and to double all guards in an effort to frustrate the suspected Independence Day plots. Many plants have employed private detectives. City detectives and Government Secret Service agents are keeping a close tab on all members of radical societies known to the police in this city.

Grand Jury for Atlantic City Cases.

TRENTON, N. J., July 3.—The Federal Grand Jury will be reconvened in a special session at Newark on July 15 to consider violations of the wartime prohibition law, according to an announcement made today by Assistant United States District Attorney Joseph L. Bodine. The announcement followed the arrest of ten men in Atlantic City, where it was said that the dry law was being openly violated by the sale of hard liquors as well as 2.75 per cent. beer.

EYE OF GOVERNMENT ON 2.75 BEER SALES

BIG BEER MUG COMES BACK

Saloons Crowded with Patrons Who Get Large Drink for a Dime—Hard Liquor Arrests.

Several arrests were made by the police and Federal authorities here yesterday for alleged violations of the War Prohibition act and evidence of the sale of beer said to contain 2.75 per cent. alcohol was gathered by the Federal authorities in preparation for prosecution later if 2.75 beer shall be held eventually to be unlawful.

The first arrests yesterday were those of Gustave Arps, who had a saloon at 226 West Street, and Isaac Williams and Washington Griffin. Arps was accused of selling twenty-four pint flasks of whisky to the two men, under an arrangement made before June 30 by which the delivery and payment was to take place after prohibition became effective.

Williams and Griffin, who are negroes, are said to have talked of this plan of circumventing the new law until word of the case came to Policeman John J. Gildea, who followed police instructions calling for arrests for sales of hard liquors. They were held in $1,000 bail each, in spite of their arguments that the sale had taken place technically on June 29.

On the complaint of Charles P. McCarver, an agent of the Department of Justice, Jacomo Madagalia, bartender at Farrish's chop house in John Street near William Street, and Harry Dee, a bartender at McCarthy's café, in Nassau Street near John Street, were arrested yesterday and arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock. They waived examination and were paroled until Saturday, when they promised to furnish bonds of $500. Commissioner Hitchcock suggested that the cases should go to the jury right away and that they might become test cases.

Other arrests were made in Brooklyn by agents of the Department of Justice, thus serving notice on saloon keepers that they were taking great risks if they sold more than "war beer" and wines diluted to the strength of 2.75 per cent. alcohol. After one or two days of comparative inaction some saloonkeepers had taken it for granted that they were free to sell wines of all kinds, because the police had announced that they would interfere only with the sale of whisky and other hard liquors.

With object lessons of arrests for the sale of admitted intoxicants, saloonkeepers grew more cautious. Mystic gestures, significant glances, and passwords generally failed to produce potent beverages. War beer, however, enjoyed another day of popularity. While the hotels and high-class resorts failed to interest their former customers in war beer, the corner saloons had a rushing trade.

Because of the number of their competitors who had shut up shop, and the ideal "beer weather" yesterday, many saloons did their greatest business of months, especially when measured by the volume. Co-operating with the brewers in pushing the popularity of "war beer," which was looked on with disdain and suspicion by the majority of patrons while hard liquor was available, the saloon keepers generally dealt out the new brew in mugs and glasses of tremendous size, suggesting old times on the river front.

United States Attorney James D. Bell of Brooklyn said yesterday that he had received several letters complaining that the War Prohibition act was being enforced rigorously. Mr. Bell said that letters containing specific information were being turned over to investigators. Concerning criticisms made by Asa F. Smith, the Anti-Saloon League leader in Brooklyn, Mr. Bell said that persons interested in enforcing the law should turn over any concrete information to the proper authorities. He added that as Federal Attorney, he was charged with prosecuting the violators of the law, but not with searching out and detecting violations.

Charged with a conspiracy to smuggle liquor into Georgia, Louis Einsidler, a wholesale dealer of Long Island City, and Jacob H. Middleman of 383 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, were arraigned before United States Commissioner McGoldrick in Brooklyn yesterday and held in $3,000 bail each. It was asserted by Government officials that, before the War Prohibition act went into effect, thousands of dollars' worth of whisky was smuggled in suitcases into Georgia, a "dry" State, and that a number of Pullman porters and local dealers in Georgia would be arrested in the alleged conspiracy.

ORDERS PROSECUTION OF 2.75 TEST CASES

Department of Justice Issues Instructions to District Attorneys in "Wet" Jurisdictions.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—In line with the announced policy of the Department of Justice to proceed immediately to bring test cases in all jurisdictions where beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol are being sold, Assistant Attorney General Frierson today issued orders to all district attornies in "wet" territory to prosecute all cases thus arising.

Specific instructions were sent to the district attorneys of San Francisco and Chicago, where alleged violations of the wartime prohibition law had been reported, to act at once to have the courts there decide whether 2¾ per cent. drinks are intoxicating.

A report from the district attorney at Atlantic City said a number of arrests had been made there and that the sale of alcoholic drinks had been stopped.

NEW ORLEANS, July 3.—A Federal indictment charging "unlawful manufacture and sale of beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. alcohol" was returned today against Edward C. Schlieder, President of the American Brewing Company. The bill will form the basis of a test case.

Senate Measure Provides Deportation of Convicted Aliens.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The Senate Judiciary Committee is putting the finishing touches upon a bill, to be introduced soon, to curb the spread of Bolshevism.

The measure, according to Senator Nelson, Chairman of the committee, is to embrace suggestions of various Senators based upon revelations made at the hearings on Bolshevist propaganda last winter.

One feature of the bill is a strict prohibition against displaying the red flag. Another will provide severe penalties for spreading Bolshevist propaganda in which violence is urged. Another will stipulate heavy penalties for resort to violence.

Still another provision will embrace the deportation of aliens convicted of offenses enumerated in the bill.

Palmer, Senator King, Justice Holmes and other prominent citizens were mailed in the latter part of last April there appeared in various cities thousands of copies of an anarchist publication called "The Anarchist Soviet Bulletin." When on June 2 the homes of Attorney General Palmer, Judge Nott and other leading citizens were bombed, a second edition of the same bulletin appeared. Yesterday copies of the third edition were discovered in the mails. Copies are in the possession of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation and officials admitted last night that the paper, print, and composition of the articles proves beyond reasonable doubt that all three issues were of the same origin. There is nothing on the paper to indicate where or by whom it is published.

"Land the persons behind this publication, and you will be, in my opinion, right on the heels of the assassins responsible for the attempts upon the lives of the Attorney General and other citizens," said a Federal agent last night.

On its front page the Soviet paper, which was discovered in the mails yesterday, prints a page long article addressed to working men of America. That article, Federal agents say, comes very near being the most incendiary expression in this country since the removal of anarchists and Bolshevist activities that followed the signing of the armistice on Nov. 11. Among other things it contains threats against President Wilson, and calls for the opening of the jails and the liberation of all criminals. The appeal to class war concludes as follows:

> First make known that as soon as you are organized strong enough into your soviets, you are going to open the door of every jail in the country. You will free not only the political victims of capitalism, but also the economic victims of capitalism whose vain striving for betterment of conditions is their only crime! For, remember, the real criminals are not in the jail houses!
> Would Put President in Jail.
> During the period of reconstructing the capitalistic society into communes we will have to put in jail all such honorable exploiters, liars, oppressors, rulers, misleaders, and hypocrites as Woodrow Wilson and Rockefeller. Putting every harmful Government official or capitalist in jail will give us the chance to free ourselves.
> We, the workers here, shall take over the factory, the store, the farm, the warehouse and every other necessity for life and happiness, without having any profiteer Government or Church parasite to profit by our labor. This country is big enough for every human being who is willing to do his share of work—to live and enjoy life as human beings can in free workers' communes.
> Are you willing to stop being a submissive slave? Are you willing to become free?
> If you are, then listen to those who dare again to tell you the truth for your benefit and theirs.
> Start to act, and if you want it to be real action, organize into Workers' Commune Soviets, wherever you are.
> Your motto shall be:
> The country or place where you choose to live belongs to those that produce the necessities of life and happiness—not to those who have always profited by their slavery.
> It is necessary for all of us to realize that not only must we exclaim, "Long live the Workers' Commune Soviets of Russia," or "Long Live the Workers' Commune Soviets of the World," but we must realize that before we can see the Workers' Commune Soviets of the World, we must see to it that we shall first have the Workers' Commune Soviets of America!
> The success and life of the Russian Workers' Commune and its realization in other countries depends upon us workers, wherever we happen to be.
> We happen to be in America, and we must do all we can to organize in the mine, store, and farm Workers' Commune Soviets.
> Present society as it is now stands for your slavery!
> Workers' Commune Soviets will bring you real freedom.
> The power lies in your hands whether the present slavery shall continue or be destroyed.

Following the appearance of the third Soviet bulletin, agents of the Government in a New Jersey town where it is said there is reason to believe it was published were ordered to make a thorough investigation. In the event of the discovery of the source of publication, it can be stated on authority that those responsible for the publication will be promptly arrested and held.

All Deputy Sheriffs on Duty.

Sheriff James F. Donnelly of Bronx County issued an order to all deputy and special deputy sheriffs in that county yesterday in which he instructed all of them to report for duty today as part of "a general program of peace officers to thwart the intention of anarchist and Bolshevist agitators and supporters to resort to disorder and violence."

The Sheriff instructed them to cooperate in every possible way with the police and Federal authorities and when necessary to call, as provided by law, upon civilians for assistance.

A permit which had been granted to the International Bible Students' Association to hold a picnic in Prospect Park today was revoked by the Park Commissioner yesterday. The permit was revoked, it was explained, because it developed that the picnic was to have been a rally of the "Russellites." The park regulations forbid religious meetings in parks, and this was the reason given for the cancellation of the permit. During the war several members of the Russellite organization were arrested for violating the war laws of the country, and some of them served several months in the Federal penitentiary before they were released following a reversal of the conviction by the higher courts.

DAVISON ASSAILS POLICE.

Quotes from Roosevelt Letter Demanding Protection from Radicals.

The closing of Carnegie Hall to public gatherings on Independence Day which was announced on Wednesday, was the occasion of much comment yesterday. The hall was to have been used tonight for a mass meeting, under the auspices of the Russian Committee for the Relief and the Salvation of Russia, at which meeting Senator King of Utah and Charles Stewart Davison of this city were to have been the principal speakers. Those who were behnd the proposed meeting were adherents and supporters of Admiral Kolchak, head of the anti-Bolshevist Government at Omsk, which has received the support of the allied nations. The meeting was called off, it was said, because of threats of violence which had been brought to the attention of the Police Department. The meeting was to have been attended by delegates from anti-Bolshevist Russian organizations in all parts of the country.

Mr. Davison, who was to have presided at the Carnegie Hall meeting, made some comments yesterday on the action of the police in having the meeting called off. He said that "the elements of disorder in this city have found no difficulty in obtaining full police protection for open meetings at which they advocated revolution," and he cited a letter written Dec. 19, 1917, by Colonel Roosevelt to Felix Frankfurter in which Colonel Roosevelt "censured," said Mr. Davison, "the authorities who fail to give lawful citizens the needed protection against the radical elements." Mr. Davison added that "the time has come to put the matter clearly before the people."

"In saying this," said Mr. Davison, "I but reflect the opinion of Colonel Roosevelt as expressed by him on Dec. 19, 1917 in a letter to Felix Frankfurter."

Mr. Davison then quotes Colonel Roosevelt's letter to Mr. Frankfurter, which, as given out through the American Defense Society, of the Board of Trustees of which Mr. Davison is the Chairman, reads in part as follows:

> When no efficient means are employed to guard honest, upright, and well behaved citizens from the most brutal kind of lawlessness, it is inevitable that these citizens shall try to protect themselves; that is as true when the President fails to do his duty about the I. W. W. as when the police fail to do their duty about gangs like the Whyo gang; and when either the President or the police, personally or by representative, rebuke the men who defend themselves from criminal assault, it is necessary sharply to point out that far heavier blame attaches to the authorities who fail to give the needed protection, and up to the investigators who fail to point out the criminal character of the anarchistic organization against which the decent citizens have taken action.
> In times of danger nothing is more common and nothing more dangerous to the republic than for men—often ordinarily well meaning men—to avoid condemning the criminals who are really public enemies by making their entire assault on the shortcomings of the good citizens who have been the victims or opponents of the criminals.

Senator King of Utah, who was to have been the principal speaker at the Carnegie Hall meeting, is one of the Senators to whom bombs were mailed last April. He is one of the most outspoken critics in this country of Bolshevism and other radical and "red" movements. Senator King was also a member of the Overman Committee, which investigated Bolshevism in Russia and in America.

BOMBS FOUND NEAR BOSTON.

Maker Says Powerful Destroyers Were Meant for Celebration.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 3.—Nineteen bombs, seized at the home of Howard Davis, 22, of East Walpole, were taken in charge today by George E. Kelliher, head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

According to United States Inspector Daniel F. O'Connell, the bombs are of high explosive capacity and are of the same type as that with which an attempt was made some weeks ago to blow up the home of Judge Albert F. Hayden in Roxbury.

The bombs are of gas pipe, filled with black powder, with a fuse attached. Each is plugged at both ends. Some of the bombs are from 5 to 6 inches in length and 4 inches in diameter, the remainder being 2 or 3 inches long and 3 inches in diameter.

Davis, who is an employe of Bird & Son, paper manufacturers of Walpole, admits, according to the East Walpole police, that he made the bombs, and said that he made the explosives to use in the Fourth of July celebration tomorrow.

Davis, who is an employe of Bird & Fire Department of East Walpole and says he took the powder into town from Boston after receiving a permit from District Chief McDonough of this city. He told the police, according to Chief Thomas P. Leonard, who made the seizure, that his sixteen-year-old brother Leo helped him in making the bombs.

The seizure of the bombs was due to information received by the East Walpole police from neighbors of the Davises, who reported mysterious activities in a shop at the rear of the Davis home.

An analysis of the bombs will be made by the explosives department of the United States Bureau of Investigation. The story told by Davis will also be investigated and he will be detained for the present. The district where the bombs were found has been closely watched since bombs were planted recently in a nearby town.

CHICAGO WATCHING REDS.

All Policemen and Federal Agents Put Upon Continuous Duty.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Chief of Police Garrity today issued an order that every policeman and every police reserve should go on duty at 6 o'clock tonight and remain subject to immediate call until Monday noon. This order is the result of growing threats of disorder from radicals and Bolshevist sympathizers. The Federal Secret Service men and Department of Justice agents also will be held in readiness for any outbreak over the Fourth of July.

Propaganda urging a general five-day strike in protest against the conviction of Eugene V. Debs and Tom Mooney has been spread for several months by radicals. The agitation has been frowned upon by the American Federation of Labor, but the Socialist press here has disregarded this fact and several strike meetings have been advertised to be held in Chicago tomorrow.

"We do not expect any general uprising," said Philip J. Barry, head of the Bureau of Investigations of the Federal Department of Justice. "Organized labor as a whole has paid no attention to the agitation, and not even the radicals intend any concerted action, according to our agents. Sporadic outbreaks may come, however, if the situation is not watched closely. It is to prevent minor disorders that we will keep men in the field tomorrow."

Labor Leader Admits Situation Has Become Disquieting.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 3.—Labor leaders are much concerned at the position which the I. W. W. is gaining on trades unions in Chicago. The influence of this element is said to be largely responsible for the trouble which has been fomenting for several weeks in the building trades, and which took form conspicuously this week in the rejection by the hodcarriers and building laborers of the agreement negotiated by their Executive Committee with the contractors.

Simon O'Donnell, President of the Building Trades Council, acknowledged today that the situation is disquieting.

"I know that the I. W. W. are getting into our organization," he said. "I am told that their headquarters have been signing up union men lately at the rate of 100 a day. Their instructions to the recruits are to stay with their labor unions for the present, but to be ready to move when the I. W. W. pulls the strings."

SAYS FRENCH WANT AMERICAN TOURISTS

Minister Le Brun Denies Asking United States to Restrict Traffic.

VISITORS OBJECT TO PRICES

But Paris Authorities Insist Natives Are Affected as Well as Americans.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 3.—Indignant agitations have begun here over the statement that the United States Government is restricting tourist travel to France and the British Isles. The report that the restrictions are due to requests of the French and British authorities is denied as far as France is concerned.

It is well understood in American circles in Paris that the refusal of the State Department to furnish passports to tourists is due to the necessity of utilizing all available steamships for transporting American troops home. Until the number of Americans in Europe has been appreciably reduced the State Department objects to permitting tourists to come here for a brief stay with the probability to take a return passage during the period of intensive movement of American troops to America on already overcrowded vessels.

Judge Walter Berry, President of the American Chamber of Commerce of Paris, has taken up the matter of the restriction of American tourist travel to Europe with the view of obtaining abrogation or modification. Correspondence made public shows that the French Government denied to Berry that it asked the United States to refuse to let American tourists come to France. In a letter to Albert Le Brun, Minister of the Liberated Regions, Berry writing as President of the American Chamber of Commerce, said:

"The United States authorities are refusing passports to tourists and other persons, declaring France is not in a position to receive them. Can you confirm to me the statement that France does not desire the arrival of American travelers? We know for a fact that thousands of wealthy Americans are ready to come here, not only to visit the devastated regions and battlefields, but also to buy articles of luxury and to make other purchases as formerly."

Minister Le Brun sent the following answer:

"You kindly called my attention to the obstacle which American authorities are raising to the delivery of passports to travelers desirous of visiting France. I immediately transmitted your communication to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, mentioning that my department would necessarily favorably receive Americans who come to visit our unhappy regions that have been victims of invasion. By letter dated June 3, the Minister of Foreign Affairs notified me he had informed the United States Government that our country is in position to receive American travelers, and that it will endeavor to facilitate the granting of French vises on their passports. The question thus seems to me to be answered in the manner you desire."

Already many representatives of American business houses and contracting firms, including some women buyers, are arriving in Paris. These received passports from the State Department because they were able to show they had some definite object in coming to Europe. That a large amount of tourist traffic is expected is already evident by the appearance of motor buses which are making excursions to nearby devastated regions which the bulk of the tourist traffic is expected to make its mecca.

It is being denied that prices were exorbitantly high, but prospective American visitors should understand that they must be provided with plenty of money. They will find it costs more to tour Europe nowadays than before the war. There is a disposition among Americans in Paris to feel that they are being charged higher prices than the French, but there is complaint among the native and permanent residents that they likewise are feeling the effect of the great increase in the cost of practically everything. Restaurant prices are much higher than before the war, and these are imposed equally on French and Americans.

Among the American soldiers the allegation is general that they have been overcharged, and efforts are being made through French official or semi-official sources to show that this is based on misapprehension. It is realized that the stories that will be told by hundreds of thousands of returning American officers, soldiers, sailors and welfare workers probably will have a deterrent effect on American tourist travel to Europe.

The matter is of political importance in that the smaller the number of American visitors in France the smaller will be Government revenues. The greater income the merchants, hotel and restaurant owners, and others receive the greater will be their contributions to the Treasury. American purchasers also contribute considerable to the French luxury taxes. Among some Paris merchants there is a disposition to credit a report that the French Government does not want a great influx of foreign visitors on account of a shortage of foodstuffs. That such a shortage exists or is likely to exist is denied by the heads of big firms. Prominent jewelers, art and antique dealers, and dressmakers say the bulk of their trade is done with Americans, and they are deeply concerned over the reports that tourist travel will be checked.

MUGELLO VALLEY AGAIN SHAKEN

Latest Earth Tremors in Italy Cause Collapse of Previously Damaged Buildings.

BORGO SAN LORENZO, Italy, July 2.—(Associated Press)—Several new earth tremors occurred in the Mugello Valley today, but there was no loss of life. Several buildings, cracked by the earthquake of Sunday, fell into ruins.

The inhabitants of the valley are living in tents as far as possible, being afraid to return to their homes with the possibility of being buried under falling walls. The deaths in the Mugello section Sunday were not as numerous as at first reported. The number of dead will not reach 100.

Concerning casualties on the other side of the Apennines in the Romageno section there is little information as it is almost impossible to reach there because of the lack of transportation and the damage caused by the earthquake.

In the smaller villages on this side of the mountains, survivors of families continue to dig in the ruins for relatives believed to be buried there.

PARIS, July 3.—Two American Red Cross relief trains are leaving France today for the Italian earthquake zone. The trains are carrying food, United States army barracks of steel and tents. Colonel R. E. Olds, the Red Cross Commissioner for Europe, is advised that there is great distess in the Florence district.

FRENCH ARMY AND NAVY LOST 1,366,000 IN WAR

Of These 1,095,000 Men Were Killed and 271,000 Were Reported Missing.

PARIS, July 2.—The French losses in killed and missing on land and sea, as officially established up to the day of the armistice, Nov. 11, were 1,366,000 men.

These figures were given to the Chamber of Deputies today by Deputy Louis Marin in a report on the disposal of the effects of missing men.

The losses of the army were 1,089,700 killed and 265,800 missing, or 16.2 per cent. of the total mobilized force of 8,410,000.

The losses of the navy totaled 10,735, of which 5,521 were killed and 5,214 are missing. The losses in the navy were 4.19 per cent. of the complement.

TO FEED ARMENIA FROM SOUTH RUSSIA

American Relief Ship Taking $500,000 of Goods to Novorossysk to Barter for Grain.

PARIS, July 2, (Associated Press.)—The American steamer Kickapoo, carrying $500,000 worth of cloth, shoes and various manufactured goods, left St. Nazaire today for Novorossysk, a non-Bolshevist port on the eastern coast of the Black Sea, where it will trade its cargo for Russian wheat, which will be shipped across the Black Sea to feed the starving Armenians.

This experiment in bartering, which is being conducted by the American Relief Administration and financed by the American Committee for Relief in the Far East, is being watched with great interest by Peace Conference economists, who believe that a return to bartering will be necessary in many parts of the world because of the depreciation of currency and the difficulties of exchange.

Novorossysk is the chief port for the Government of General Denikin, which has its headquarters at Ekaterinodar. The Denikin Government controls the Kuban wheat district, which has a large surplus of grain and no place to market it because of the lack of railway and steamship transportation. Money in the Kuban district has depreciated greatly and the merchants there are without goods for sale.

Colonel C. B. Smith, who is directing the Kickapoo experiment, purchased the goods on the steamer from the United States Army Liquidation Board and the American Red Cross. The cargo includes garden tools, needles, thread, nails, blankets and an assortment of clothing. An effort will be made to regulate the resale of the goods through the Denikin Government in such a way as to prevent speculation and to assist the forces which recently have been successful in repelling the Bolsheviki.

The Kickapoo also is carrying several hundred tons of medical supplies from the American Red Cross, which will be given away in the Kuban territory.

MINOR GETS CHARGES.

Told He May or May Not Be Tried for Treason.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, July 1.—Robert J. Minor, suspected of being a Bolshevist agent, has received a copy of the charges accusing him of treason. At the same time he has been told he may or may not be tried on that charge. His father, who is a Federal Judge in Texas, has arranged for civil counsel for the former New York newspaper man who was arrested in Paris almost a month ago.

Minor's case had developed, through investigation, into an affair far greater and more important than it appeared when there was found in his trunk pamphlets of an incendiary nature, said to be intended for distribution among American soldiers in Germany. His trail, which led back through Germany and into Russia, has brought many things to light which may be said to be of great moment.

The case has been taken out of the hands of the Army of Occupation authorities and turned over to American General Headquarters. Minor, who at first was kept in solitary confinement in a cell in the American military jail, is now getting entirely different treatment. It requires seven soldiers to care for him now. He has an orderly, like an army officer. He has a man to sit within his room for company and a guard without. These are changed three times daily. He gets good food and excellent treatment, with the right to summon for counsel any one he chooses.

Extraordinary efforts are being made to save Minor from trial for treason. These efforts extend far further than the radicals with whom he had associated. He appears to have been able to interest persons in high political and official standing in American Governmental circles.

Many officers view Minor's alleged offense as one of the greatest gravity. At a time when it was not only possible but apparently probable that the American troops would be called on to begin war again he, it is charged, prepared Bolshevist propaganda for circulation among our troops to prevent their advance into Germany.

I learn that when Minor was in Germany recently he was considered by newspaper men with whom he worked as a convert to Bolshevist doctrines. I have talked with correspondents who said they gained that conviction from conversations with him. They understood that he had become a convert to the Soviet Government in Russia and had become deeply interested in the furtherance of that doctrine in Germany and elsewhere.

SUMMER'S HOTTEST DAY.

Thermometer Registers 95—Great Rush to Cool Resorts.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the Summer, and will rank with July 3, 1911, as the hottest 3d in the history of the local Weather Bureau. The highest temperature was 95 degrees at 6 o'clock last evening and the lowest 74. The heat caused the death of James McGriegan, a watchman of 46 Manhattan Street. He collapsed in Amsterdam Avenue near his home.

The heat drove thousands to the beaches and to other resorts near the city. So great was the congestion at the East New York station of the Long Island Railroad in Brooklyn last night that police reserves were called to direct those bound for the Rockaways. At one time it was estimated that 3,000 persons, many of them children, were trying to board the trains.

The prediction is for fair and continued warm today, with local showers and lower temperature on Saturday.

The heat of Wednesday night was the indirect cause of two deaths reported to the police yesterday morning. Phillip Burgess, 70 years old, of 787 Amsterdam Avenue, fell from a wharf at Ninety-seventh Street and North River, where he was sleeping, and was drowned. While seeking a cool place on top of the six-story tenement at 11 Rutgers Street, Sarah Cohen, 68 years old, walked off the roof in the darkness and dropped to the pavement.

Three persons were drowned at resorts yesterday. Joseph Audorie, fifteen, of 2,999 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, was missed by friends with whom he was bathing at Manhattan Beach, and after a search his body was found in shallow water. August Reiber, five years old, of 8,814 Twenty-third Avenue, Brooklyn, was drowned in four feet of water in Gravesend Bay at the foot of Bay Parkway. Andrew Epsimonte, 16, living at Gravesend Avenue, and Kings Highway, went into Coney Island Creek at the Shell Road and sank before aid could reach him.

CITY TO CELEBRATE A VICTORY FOURTH

Patriotic Organizations Plan Demonstration as Answer to Radicals.

UPTON TO HAVE FIREWORKS

Pageant Will Be Given in City College Stadium—Security League Makes Plea for Americanism.

Celebration of victory and peace will mark most of the Fourth of July observances to be held throughout the city today. Although the Mayor has given warning that fireworks will be under the ban, the indications were that the celebrations today would exceed those of other years through the determination of patriotic organizations to disclose to radicals the depth and scope of the city's patriotic protest against un-American movements.

The out-of-town exodus yesterday and last night, according to railroad men, was greater than any year since 1913. Extra coaches were added to regular trains and several of the trains ran in two sections. A number of specials will be operated today. The turn to typical Fourth of July weather had its effect in swelling the throngs leaving the city.

As a result of the efforts made by Brig. Gen. Nicholson, commander at Camp Upton, soldiers awaiting demobilization there and relatives who visit them will today see the most elaborate fireworks display in the East. The feature will be in charge of Lieut. Col. E. J. W. Ragsdale of the Ordnance Department and in charge of the manufacture of pyrotechnics for the service. A vast quantity of rockets and other spectacular material, rendered useless through the end of the war, will be used. Big celebrations also will be held at other nearby camps and in all of the base and general hospitals of the city.

There will be athletics and festivals in 100 city parks, playgrounds, and athletic fields, under the supervision of William J. Lee. More than 20,000 boys and men will take part in the athletic contests, while 30,000 girls and women are expected to participate in the festivals.

The Victory Pageant.

The day's program will close with the great Victory Pageant planned by the Mayor's Committee of Women, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst is Chairman. The pageant will be preceded by a musical program beginning at 7 o'clock tonight in the City College Stadium. Adolph Lewisohn will be master of ceremonies and will introduce Mayor Hylan, who will make an address. George Gordon Battle will also speak. Among the many who are to appear will be Elsie Janis, Julia Arthur, and Rosa Ponselle, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who will sing "America."

A timetable of the principal events of the day in the Metropolitan district follows:

A. M.

5:30—Flag raising at Block House, Central Park. Escort by Continental Guards. Mrs. C. L. Moorehouse will read the Declaration of Independence.

9:00—Camp Merritt, N. J., twenty-two athletic events on field north of camp. Baseball game at 3 o'clock, and entertainment, fireworks display, and presentation of athletic prizes by Major Gen. George B. Duncan at 7 o'clock.

9:00—Camp Upton, N. Y., oration by United States Senator Calder; fireworks display and aerial show. Athletic contests in forenoon.

9:00—Indian Field, Van Cortlandt Park, auspices Woodlawn Heights, McLean Heights, Wakefield, and Williamsbridge Community Councils, flagraising and salute of twenty-one guns. Athletic program at 2:30 o'clock, and dance and community song festival, with band concert, at 8:30 P. M.

9:30—Liberty Field Day, United States Army General Hospital No. 3, Colonia, N. J., with a program lasting five hours.

9:30—Program of events for patients in United States General Hospital No. 1, Gunhill Road, Williamsbridge, the Bronx.

10:00—Athletic games and festivals in all city parks, playgrounds, and sports fields.

10:00—Campus of Fordham University, auspices of Knights of Columbus. Speakers include Chaplain Duffy of the 165th Infantry and the Rev. Edward P. Tivnan, President of Fordham.

10:00—Tammany Hall's celebration in the wigwam in East Fourteenth Street. First "dry open house." Long talks by United States Senator Ashurst, Senator Harrison, and Representative Claude Kitchin; short talks by Miss Elizabeth McCrystal, Bronx District Attorney Francis Martin, and Assistant District Attorney Alexander I. Rorke. Governor Smith will read the Declaration of Independence.

10:00—Jersey City's "Victory Fourth" celebration in West Side Park, Jersey City. Six parades, with 25,000 industrial workers in line, will dismiss at the park. Speakers will include John Temple Graves. Joseph P. Tumulty will attend.

10:00—Forest Hills Gardens—Isaac F. Marcosson will discuss Bolshevism at meeting, and in afternoon spectacular flying by army airmen.

10:00—Parade at Peekskill, N. Y., in honor of 700 service men. In the afternoon William Church Osborn, Arthur S. Tompkins, and Rear Admiral Gleaves, U. S. N., will speak at meeting in Depew Park.

P. M.

12:00—Observances at Garibaldi Memorial, Rosebank, Staten Island. Speakers: General Guglielmotti, Italian Military Attache, and Congressman La Guardia.

1:00—Baby parade, auspices Hamilton Council, at Carmansville Playground, Amsterdam Avenue and 151st Street.

2:00—Celebration at Cardinal Farley Soldiers, Sailors and Marines' Club, 15 East Thirtieth Street.

3:00—Patriotic exercises, St. Mary's Park, the Bronx.

3:30—Henry Street Settlement, children entertainments and exercises, and from 8:30 to 10:30 P. M., block party in Henry Street from Jackson to Scammel Streets.

4:00—Patriotic program, St. James Park, the Bronx.

4:00—Band concert, the Mall, Central Park. Kaltenborn Orchestra.

Call for Prayer and Thanksgiving.

Maurice D. Blumenthal, counsel for the Independent Order Free Sons of Israel, yesterday sent the following to the organization's seventy-two subordinate lodges:

> All those allied with this organization will usher in the Sabbath on the evening of Independence Day, in the house of worship, with prayer and thanksgiving for the peace of the world and the advancement of civilization that have just been established. This organization today enters formally upon a great service to the nation. We shall lead the way among fraternal organizations to the Americanization of the stranger on our shores and shall endeavor to save him from the influence of irresponsible and lawless doctrinaires.
> We have decided to conduct a persistent public campaign among the present and future immigrant population of our faith to teach that the stability of our Government and the happiness of our people are based upon the recognition of law over license, right over might, and duty over inclination.

After declaring that the 1,000,000 persons who responded to its call to fight Bolshevism throughout the country today would observe the birth of liberty, the National Security League last night issued a statement in part as follows:

> Make this Independence Day the opportunity for impressing upon all citizens, native and foreign-born, the magnificent principles embodied in the Declaration of Independence, which made heroes of our ancestors, and are the very essence of the law of freedom and opportunity, as enacted in our Constitution. The shocking impertinence of those who now challenge these principles must be rebuked and suppressed.
> Since 1915 all Americanization agencies have planned celebrations and receptions for newly naturalized citizens, and have united in making July Fourth a day of special loyalty demonstrations by the foreign-born.
> Now, for the first time in our history, threats are made against the sanctity of the nation's natal day. With blasphemous bravado July Fourth has been set as the date for anarchist mass terror and revolutionary demonstrations. The day on which the inalienable rights of man were first declared by a nation created to maintain them is threatened with desecration by those who recognize the rights of none but themselves, and bend to no law but their own lust.
> If we are worthy of the blessings of independence bequeathed by our founders in the name of nature's God, and with firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we will, each of us claiming to be American citizens, devote all our efforts to demonstrating the fundamental difference between the independence, liberty, and the rights of man secured for us on that July Fourth, 143 years ago, and the degenerate license and flouting of law preached by those unfit for freedom.

MOVE COSTIGAN AGAIN.

Former Inspector Goes to Westchester in Transfer of 11 Captains.

Police Commissioner Enright ordered several promotions and changes in precinct commanders yesterday, which brought comment at Police Headquarters because of the apparent demotion of certain captains approved by the former administration of Commissioner Woods.

Heading the list of changes is ex-Inspector "Dan" Costigan, who is sent from the Beach Street station to Westchester. There is not much change in this particular transfer, but it was recalled that Costigan, whose activity as the head of the vice and gambling squads came to an end when he was removed from command of that important work and sent to the east side several months ago, was demoted from Inspector to Captain and sent to Beach Street.

Eleven Captains are affected by the order of transfers. This is considered the second largest shakeup in precinct commanders since the present administration went into office. One of the most important changes is the transfer of Captain Maurice Hannon from the Elizabeth Street station to Far Rockaway. Hannon, like Costigan, will have nothing more to do than to look "over his books," as one of their friends expressed it.

The Elizabeth Street Station has supervision of the section known as "Chinatown," and since Woods sent Hannon there the war of the Tongs is ancient history, it was said.

Captain Edward Bourke, a protege and friend of the late Colonel Roosevelt, who was ostracised by Tammany politicians because of that friendship, goes from the Arsenal station in Central Park to succeed Hannon. There is no doubt about Bourke's determination to continue the good work of Hannon, but the work there is new to him.

Other transfers are: Captains Jacob Brown, from Westchester to the Arsenal station; John P. Reith, from Tottenville, S. I., to Newtown, L. I.; John Kelly, from Newtown to Flushing, which was made vacant by the suspension of Captain Peabody; John Shevlin, from Rockaway to Jamaica; Charles H. McKenna, from the Third Detective Division, south of Forty-second Street and Broadway, to the Beach Street station, and George H. Kauff, from Jamaica to Glendale.

Commissioner Enright also announced the promotion of Henry McQueeney to a captaincy. McQueeney succeeded Enright as president of the Lieutenants' Benevolent Association, and he was appointed by the Commissioner to a section of the Training School at Police Headquarters. McQueeney's promotion was followed by the announcement that he is to take McKenna's place in command of the detective division.

Lieutenant Joseph A. Howard of 358 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn, was promoted to captain. He is Sergeant at Arms of the Lieutenants' Association. Howard was assigned by the Commissioner to the office of Special Deputy Commissioner John Shaw. Sergeants Bernard F. Byrnes and Bernard C. Downs were made Lieutenants, and Patrolmen John Bridgeroon, Frank J. Woods, James Nolan and Richard Rauch were promoted to Sergeants.

SEIZE RIFLES HELD BY ALIEN

Foreigner Tells Police He Planned Honduras Mining Expedition.

Agents of the Department of Justice and detectives from the police bomb squad began an investigation yesterday after Alfred Bitterling of 318 West 113th Street had been arrested on the charge of violating the Sullivan law by having a considerable quantity of arms in his possession. Bitterling, who has lived in this country for fourteen years, but is still an alien, admitted that he had possession of a quantity of rifles and pistols, and said that he was thinking of organizing a mining expedition to Honduras.

Detective Edward F. England, who made the arrest, found no guns in the room at 318 West 113th Street, but after questioning his prisoner he went to the jewelry store of Adolph Blunk, at 1,436 Third Avenue, where, under a safe, were found half a dozen rifles, several revolvers and 2,500 rounds of ammunition. The jeweler explained, according to the detective, that Bitterling was a friend and that he allowed him to use the space under the safe. In a second search of Bitterling's apartment Detective England found some tenting, which, he said, might have been useful for such an expedition as Bitterling described.

Bitterling was taken before Magistrate Tobias in Washington Heights Court and held in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury. The complaint against Bitterling was made by his brother-in-law, Edward Phillips, of 318 West 113th Street.

$10,000 BAIL IN LILLY CASE.

Frank B. Taylor Surrenders to Face Grand Larceny Indictment.

Frank B. Taylor, 33 years old, of 548 East Fifth Street, Brooklyn, who, the District Attorney said, was the active head of the stock promoting firm of H. C. Loup & Co. at 50 Broad Street, surrendered yesterday in General Sessions to answer an indictment charging grand larceny. Judge Wadhams released him under $10,000 bail until Monday.

Assistant District Attorney J. T. Dooling asked that Taylor's bail be made $25,000. Dooling said the specific complaint against Taylor was based on the allegations of Miss Margaret McCabe, a school teacher, of 540 West 153rd Street, who asserted that she had lost $12,000 invested with H. C. Loup & Co., representing her entire savings.

T. J. McManus and State Senator E. J. Dowling, counsel for Taylor, objected, declaring that prohibitive bail would keep their client in jail until Monday. Finally District Attorney Swann agreed to the lower amount of bail because of the reported agreement with his assistant concerning the amount. "I will only release this defendant provided you assume the responsibility and assure me that $10,000 is sufficient," said Judge Wadhams. Mr. Swann then accepted the responsibility for Taylor's appearance.

Among the papers found in the Lilly office was a separation agreement between Lilly and his wife, Elizabeth Lilly of Nutley, N. J., dated March 23, 1917, wherein Lilly agreed to pay his wife $45 weekly. The names of three children are mentioned. The District Attorney said he had requested the police to arrest Lilly on a charge of suspicion of grand larceny.

BRADY AWARDED $40,000.

Appellate Justices Decide Old Chicago Suit Against Erlanger.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in an opinion concurred in by five Justices, yesterday awarded William A. Brady $40,000 in a suit brought by him against A. L. Erlanger. The action, which is of many years standing, was concerned with the leasing and operation of the Auditorium Theatre in Chicago. Mr. Brady brought suit for a share of the profits earned in the operation of the house, but Mr. Erlanger claimed that no partnership had existed. The first decision, given by Justice Geigerich in 1911 was in favor of Mr. Erlanger.

WARNING TO MEXICO ON ANOTHER MURDER

Lee R. Moye, an American Oil Driller, Slain by Rebels in Tampico District.

DEMAND FOR PROTECTION

John Mantellero, Employed on American's Plantation, Killed While Carrying Gold.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Following the receipt of a report that Lee Roy Moye, an American citizen, had been murdered at Tepetate, Mexico, on Tuesday night, the State Department today instructed the American Embassy at Mexico City to make "urgent representations" to the Carranza Government, not only for the punishment of the slayers, but for the institution of effective steps to protect Americans in the Tampico oil district.

The murder of Mr. Moye served to make the situation more acute, as several Americans have been killed or robbed in Mexico within a comparatively short time, and evidence has been obtained concerning conditions in the Tampico district and other sections of Mexico, supposed to be under the control of the Carranza forces, which has made the general situation appear highly unsatisfactory.

All of this will be taken into consideration if, as reported in unofficial dispatches from Mexico City last night, the Carranza Government asks for an agreement that no American troops be sent across the border in the future to protect American lives and property. The general feeling here is that no such assurances will be given to Carranza under present conditions in Mexico. There was, however, no official comment upon these dispaches.

Murderers Said to be Rebels.

The State Department, in announcing the murder of Mr. Moye, referred to the murderers as "rebels." Few details concerning the incident were obtainable. The official announcement read:

"The murder of Lee Roy Moye, an American, by rebels, at Tepetate, in the Tampico oil district of Mexico, was reported to the Department of State today. Moye was killed on Tuesday night.

"Moye's home is Livingston, Texas. He was an oil well driller in the employ of the Mexican Gulf Oil Company, and was 28 years old. He was a native of Alabama.

"Acting Secretary of State Phillips today cabled the American Embassy at Mexico City to make urgent representations to the Mexican Government for the apprehension and punishment of the murderers as speedily as possible and for the protection of Americans in the Tampico district."

Disorganized conditions in Mexico, it is reported, are seriously affecting the educational system there, and particularly in Mexico City. Advices received today give specific examples of the disintegration of the educational system, which is causing alarm among the educated classes and the pupils.

The Mexico City Council reduced the number of grade schools from 300 to 100 following the settlement of the recent strike of teachers in those schools because of irregular pay, and now the university is affected to such an extent that public protests are being made daily. There has been friction in the faculties of the various schools of the university because of certain "free" professors. These are prominent professional men in Mexico City, who gave free of charge a portion of their time to teach advanced classes in the university. The salaried force formally protested against the continuance of this sytem.

The Board of Regents of the university investigated and decided that it would be inadvisable to deprive the advanced students of the opportunity of learning from these successful professional men what they had time to teach, and accordingly approved the system then in vogue. From that time on the regular teaching staff began neglecting the work.

Mantellero Slain on Train.

Reports of the murder on June 17 by Mexican bandits of John Mantellero, employed by Dr. Albert J. Ochsner of Chicago, on his planation in the State of Colima, Mexico, have been sent to the Italian Ambassador in Mexico City and the State Department at Washington, the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico announced here tonight.

According to these reports Mantellero was carrying 1,500 pesos in Mexican gold to pay off plantation hands, when the train on which he was traveling was attacked. He was killed, his body was burned when the train was set on fire, and the gold was stolen.

The association Executive Committee today took action on the murder of John W. Correll of Ada, Okla., the attempted murder of his 16-year-old son, and the attack on Mrs. Correll, by bandits within twenty miles of Tampico on June 16. Resolutions were adopted asserting that the association would "provide funds to return Mrs. Correll and her son to the United States forthwith, and to render every possible assistance in pressing, through the Government, their demand for the punishment of the criminals who cimmitted this outrage, and their claim for reparation from the Mexican Government."

A statement was made by the association that Moye was the fifth employe of the Gulf Refining Company to be murdered. The others were Dunn, Cooper, Esparola and Millard, all of whom were killed in 1918 within a radius of one and a half miles of Tampico.

ANSWERS AGUILAR ON MEXICAN POLICY

Society for Protecting American Rights Finds Facts at Variance.

The National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico, with offices at 347 Fifth Avenue, issued yesterday, through Charles H. Boynton, director of the association, an answer to the interview on Mexican conditions which Candido Aguilar, the son-in-law of Carranza, gave in this city on Wednesday. In that interview, Aguilar denied that Carranza contemplated the seizure of foreign owned mines, and also denied that Carranza had ordered that certain companies be compelled to stop drilling for oil in Mexican properties held by those companies.

Mr. Boynton, in his reply, said in part:

"The interview, given through Manuel Carpio, the chief of the Carranza propaganda service in the United States, as interpreter, contains mis-statements attributed to General Aguilar, which may be due to mis-translation or over-zealous propagandism.

"Mr. Aguilar is quoted as saying, as to the order to stop drilling of oil wells by force of arms, 'I know that no such order was ever issued.' The fact is that on May 16 of this year orders were issued by the Mexican Petroleum Commission to Mexican military forces in Tampico and Tuxpam. The official copy of this order has been received by our own State Department.

"Acting under this order, on June 10 the General in command in the Tampico district appeared at the derrick of the Panuco-Boston Oil Company, with armed forces and forced the American drillers to leave the rig, stopping the drilling.

"Mr. Aguilar is further quoted as saying, 'The only order issued has been that the Mexican law be enforced.' The 'Mexican law' to which he refers, is a decree forbidding drilling in the lands of foreign companies unless they admit Government ownership. They have refused to make such admission.

"Mr. Carpio reports General Aguilar to have said, 'We are looking toward a taxation system that will be fair and equal to all, whether they be Mexican or American.' The fact is, no Mexicans are producing and selling oil except locally. There are no taxes levied on local sales of oil, where on export of oil a tax is being paid equal to from 25 to 50 per cent. of the value of the oil in the port.

"This tax the American companies are paying, together with all normal taxes paid by all Mexicans on industry and conduct of business, plus a bar due, and plus a monthly imposition of $100,000, American currency, for 'dredging' of the Tampico harbor, actually completed two months ago. Failure to pay the 'dredging' tax results in stoppage of shipments by the delinquent company.

"General Aguilar is quoted as saying, 'Credence is given to individual stories, which have no basis in facts.' He evidently has reference to the tragedy of the Correll family, which happened within 20 miles of Tampico.

"News of the Correll murder made public by this association was thoroughly confirmed by our State Department. On the correctness of this actual barbaric happening he strives to cast discredit.

"We cannot believe that an accredited officer of the Mexican Government made the misstatements attributed to General Aguilar, and must believe that a misunderstanding arose in the process of the interpretation of the interview he granted."

PESSOA TO SAIL SATURDAY.

Brazil's President-Elect Attends a Gala Performance Here.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—President-elect Pessoa, of Brazil, will leave New York for home on Saturday. Secretary Daniels today instructed the commanding officer of the new superdreadnaught Idaho to have his vessel in readiness to sail on that date. Four torpedo boat destroyers will escort the Idaho to sea.

Dr. Epitacio Pessoa was a guest last evening at the Criterion Theatre, at a performance of "Three Wise Fools." The theatre was hung with flags lent to John L. Golden by Captain Thompson, of the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo, and the Latin-American colony of this city made a gala audience, headed by Dr. Garcia Leao, the Consul General.

The national anthem of Brazil was played as the President's party entered. With Dr. Pessoa were his wife and daughter, Captain and Mrs. Armando Burlamaqui, Secretary and Mrs. Lauro Muller, Jr. and Ipanema de Moreira, Charge d'Affaires of Brazil at Washington.

Among the guests of Consul General and Mme. Leao were: Dr. J. Carlos Muniz, the Vice Consul; Souza Dantas, Brazilian Consul at Paris, and Dr. Amaral, Charge d'Affaires of Brazil at Mexico City. Captain Thompson's party included the officers of the Sao Paulo in brilliant full-dress uniform.

Man Arrested at Strasbourg Accused of Taking $16,000 Machine.

PARIS, July 3.—An automobile understood to have been the property of the former German Emperor has been stolen at Strasbourg.

A man named Lanvin has been arrested, charged with the theft of the machine, which is said to be worth 80,000 francs.

AUTO RACER KILLED AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY

High-Power Car Turned Over While Speeding at 115 Miles an Hour.

DRIVER MORTALLY INJURED

Surgeons Say Raymond Howard Cannot Survive—Steering Gear Broke in Test for Race Today.

Emilie Gamdelli, an expert automobile mechanic, of 14 West Sixty-fourth Street, was killed, and Raymond Howard, a racing driver, was mortally injured when the car they were to pilot today in the one-hundred-mile Derby at Sheepshead Bay turned turtle last night on the racing course.

For several days the racer and his mechanic had been trying out their entry, and last night they decided to give the machine a speed test as part of the final tuning up. At 8 o'clock they climbed into the powerful racer and started around the two-mile course. Before leaving the stand, which contained a few spectators, they announced that they would try to get 115 miles an hour out of the car.

Thrice around the course the low-hung automobile flashed, gaining speed with every turn of the wheels. Flying along at a speed estimated at 110 miles an hour, the two dim figures were observed leaning over in preparation for taking the bank on the east curve. Suddenly the racer made a sharp zigzag move, flopped completely over under the force of its impetus, and slid down the incline.

Headed by Eddie O'Donnell, who was to compete against Howard today, drivers and mechanics ran down the course to the curve. They found the car, its wheels still spinning and engine running, lying at the foot of the bank with both men pinned beneath it. O'Donnell said he believed the accident was caused by the breaking of the steering arm.

O'Donnell's racing car was rushed to the Coney Island Hospital, where surgeons declared that Gamdelli had been killed instantly. They found that Howard had suffered fractures of the legs and the right arm, a fractured skull, and was injured internally. Just before midnight surgeons operated upon Howard in a final effort to save his life.

Beyond the fact that he had been driving racing cars in most of the big races of the last few years, no one at the course last night knew anything about Howard. It was said that his home was in the West.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—Toledo tonight is a city of 350,000 population. A month ago 225,000 resided within its borders. It is estimated that the normal population will have been nearly doubled by noon tomorrow.

Of the 200,000 visitors who will have been drawn here less than half will see the bout for the world's heavyweight championship. The others are here, or will be here, simply to watch the scurrying crowds, to sip the excitement of the scenes, perhaps, Oh, crown of joys, to catch a glimpse somewhere, somehow, of a new champion or a dethroned one, or a beaten challenger or a successful defender.

An accepted verb for crowds is "pour." This particular throng is not pouring into Toledo, however. It passed the pouring stage at noon today. It is now jamming and crashing its way in. Trains tread upon the heels of trains at each of the three stations, and each one disgorges its happy hundreds. Automobiles in almost continuous streams sputter and buzz along every highway entering the city. These trains and automobiles will have their multitudes of successors tomorrow morning. Laden with the final thousands who were unable or unwilling to find accommodations over night in heated, thronged, tumultous Toledo.

That the hotels are full goes without saying. The adjective hardly does justice to a condition which necessitates the crowding of flimsy cots into rooms beside the self-respecting, horrified bedsteads. We'll let it go at "full" though because its hard to think of a word that means fuller than full. Hardly a private house, too, is tonight without its guests, paying or otherwise. Men of affairs, of other affairs than boxing, will roll into town tomorrow morning, most of them in their private or chartered cars, to the arena, and back again after the great whirl is over, to the comforts of a well-stocked buffet. Such will be the program for the day. They should fret about the merits of Toledo cooking. A few substantial citizens will not have to risk their lives in the jam, and have already disembarked here. Their baggage, although not large, appeared heavy, and clinked pleasantly as the bellboys bore it to the elevators.

Oldtimers on the Scene.

The pugilists are here in force, almost to a man. They always gather for an affair of this kind, both because of intense interest in the outcome and because they are certain of encountering practically all of the promoting gentry, through whose efforts they convert their talents into cash.

They are scattered all about, greeting, buzzing, posing, prophesying; champions, near-champions, and ex-champions; the now-ares, the has-beens, and the never-wases; names of current or past interest and names that never mattered outside of Dubuque or Duluth.

Bennie Leonard, the lightweight champion, at present New York's favorite pugilistic son, finds here three former wearers of the mantle, Jack McAuliffe, Battling Nelson, and Freddie Welsh. The eccentric Nelson is camping out in a tent up by the training quarters, but for the other three sons of battle hotel life holds no terrors. They are devotees of the hair mattress and the well-cooked breakfast.

Jim Corbett, thespian and author, is the sole member of the little coterie of living former holders of the world's greatest ring honors who will see the tussle for the title. Then there is Tommy Ryan and Frank Moran, the only boxer who has been honored with Willard's attentions since he gained the title, and a host of lesser lights.

The old-time pugs are drinking in the atmosphere of an affair like this. They breathe great draughts of it into their lungs and are revived and revitalized by it. The call of the old game has drawn them from cities and hamlets and farms, from gymnasiums and stores and carpenter shops, where they have been living forgotten entirely, most of them, by the public. Here for a brief day, they bask again in the outer rays of a sun which beams upon their successors. They meet old comrades, exchange reminiscences and receive a touch of adulation, couched in the past tense. They realize afresh that they have helped to write pugilism's history and are refreshed by the experience.

It is believed that tomorrow's bout will reveal a tremendous growth in interest in fistic encounters among women. They are here by the hundreds, at any rate, if not by thousands, guided and guarded by husbands or male relatives, and they have not come for the ride or to test the merits of Toledo as a Summer resort. They are going to see the great athletes battle.

The parlors and the lobbies of the hotels are decorated with femininity. The word decorated is accurate, for not only is the average of pulchritude high among these fair pilgrims of pugilism, but they have little to envy the lilies of the field in the matter of array.

One section of the great arena has been set apart for the women who have traveled, many of them from distant points, to see the encounter for the world's title. The idea is to avert the possibility of their being subjected to the annoyance of hearing such expressions as are likely to burst from the lips of the coarser element, at such an affair during the heat and excitement of battle.

To Have Military Flavor.

For days past military uniforms have been plentiful in all public places, and now, on the evening of the great day, officers and soldiers dot the points of assembly. The interest of the military men in the match of tomorrow is enhanced by the fact that boxing was generally taught and generally enjoyed in the army during the war, and by the additional fact that the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board is in direct charge through the well-advised action of Tex Rickard. Discharged soldiers are to serve as ushers. All in all, there will be quite a military flavor to the affair.

Side shows, all the blatant forms of cheap amusement which customarily fringe the scene of a championship bout, are conspicuously lacking in Toledo. On the other hand, certain more classic forms of entertainment are provided for would-be revelers. The lid has been somewhat tilted, if not entirely lifted, and if July, with its threatened aridity, is upon us, Toledo has not yet heard of it. Moisture in all its most popular forms, without reference to the amount of alcoholic content, is available for parched palates.

Gambling places have been open, too, with most of the familiar games of chance except roulette going on, and no introduction needed by casual wayfarers who wished to participate. One resort of this kind, run on a considerable scale, had quite the atmosphere of an old time gambling house in the far West, including a burly, surly lookout, with a rifle resting against his knees. This place was closed a day or two ago and a few other raids have been made. On the whole, however, the forms of recreation likely to appeal to a gathering of tens of thousands of sportsmen have been lavishly provided.

This morning as the writer sat at a table in the cafe, wondering why his melon was tepid while the ice upon which it perched seemed to be quite thoroughly chilled, there poured around the corner of the hotel, directly under his window, a column of men, irregularly massed and of many types, but alike in one thing, their voluble, gesticulating interest in whatever was going on. They were smiling, conversing, and trudging rapidly. Recognizable in the crowd were pugilists, promoters, and other sporting men, and there was a large admixture of youths evidently of local origin.

The sun was beating down upon already thoroughly heated sidewalks. This same sun knows its way about in Toledo and gives this city its most effective work. It seemed no day at all for people to cruise about in that manner. Yet there they were, still crowding onward, paying no attention to the rivulets of perspiration coursing down their bright morning faces.

Merely Moving Pictures.

From one of the waiters clustered like flies about the window, the explanation was received. A moving picture camera was installed in an automobile by the sidewalk and the scurrying crowd was being filmed. For what purpose was not divulged. But the writer herewith hazards the conjecture that he was one of the privileged few who first saw the "great throng emerging from the vast arena at the close of the World's Championship Battle between Willard and Dempsey."

Billy Gibson, the well-known New York impresario of bouts at fist cuffs has his own original version of the underlying facts in Dempsey's sudden and temporary leap to favoritism over the champion.

"It's all propaganda," says Billy. "Nothing else in the world. Here's as good-natured a fellow as you ever saw. Likes men, women, children, babies, pets, youngsters, and their mothers go back home and send him picture postcards wishing him well. Tell all their friends what a fine fellow he is. Then here's Willard, kind of shy and awkward with people, not sunny and affable, likes babies broiled, same as Charles Lamb, or was it Sydney Smith? People see them both, or hear about them both, and naturally want the pleasant one to win.

"Besides that, folks generally root for the challenger. It's exciting to have a new champion installed; monotonous to see the same old bird perched up there all the time. What people want to have happen they soon come to expect, and even to bet it will happen. That's all there is to it."

Ring Lardner, the semi-pro golfer, who was signed up by his managers for a match in Toledo this week with the crack New York featherweight golfer, Rube Goldberg, finds energy, after eighteen holes and after writing his daily 200-word article on a prize fight, which he understands is to occur here, to lead the Hotel Secor Volunteer Glee Club in its evening carols. Ring finds the energy and the auditors find the endurance. He is disably assisted in his machination against the peace and dignity of Toledo by a band of vocal flatterers whose outstanding merit is enthusiasm. Massed about their leader and gazing upward into his earnest face, Ring ceases immediately when viewed horizontally, but continues for a considerable distance vertically. They tell the world fair in outbursts of great volume that they were seeing Nelly home or that merrily they roll along.

Mr. Lardner, when interviewed directly after last night's concert, remarked that he believed his new idea of forming choruses for midnight work in hotel lobbies had great merit.

"Hereafter," he said, "wherever I am sent, in order to attract crowds large enough to assure the success of a prize fight or a world's series, I shall at once recruit a good husky glee club. We shall rescue from oblivion the sound, old-time ballads like 'Annie Rooney' and 'Throw Him Down McClosky,' we shall thus gradually lead the public taste away from the deplorable jazzes and cause an outburst of enthusiasm for the sweet simple songs of elder days such as 'Whoa Emma' and 'What You Goin' to Do When the Rent Comes Round.'" In reply to a request that he teach his present chorus one more little thing, namely, "We Cannot Sing the Old Songs," Mr. Lardner sniffed audibly.

BIG BOXERS READY FOR BATTLE TODAY

tomorrow there will be thousands arriving by automobile. Several specials are due tonight, including the Jim Coffroth special from San Francisco. The New York special will be along tomorrow morning. By the time the fight starts it is estimated, by professional and amateur statisticians of high and low degree, that there will be 200,000 visitors in Toledo, almost doubling the population, as Toledo, when it has no Willard and Dempsey within its borders, boasts but 225,000 native sons and daughters.

Toledo has run as true to form as do all American cities when they are hosts to a big crowd, and in consequence, prices have gone up further than Eddie Rickenbacher ever thought of mounting.

Hotels are getting $5 a night for a single cot stacked in with all due regard for military information, with a dozen others in a room, which seems to run the Black Hole of Calcutta a close race for heat honors. Restaurants are right in style and have shot up the prices for the festive lake whitefish and its little running mate on the menu to a point where the humblest dish must feel as if it had joined the Fresh Caviare Society. Fifty cents for five slices of tomato is the rate in one hotel for the unfortunate vegetarian who may try to get up a flirtation with the vegetable list.

But Toledo is merely following the fashion set by the rival fighters on the financial end. The men who will meet in the big bout tomorrow are going to get a return which would make an old-time fighter pop-eyed. Willard draws down $100,000 for his share, win or lose, and has received his check for the last payment on the amount from Rickard, which is $75,000, the other $25,000 having been paid some time ago under the terms of the contract. Dempsey gets $27,500, win or lose.

Profits in Exhibitions.

In addition, the fighters have made a nice clean-up on the training camp admissions. The first innocent days of their arrival here they were charging 25 cents a head for admission to their training camps, but they soo accumulated enough worldly wisdom to shove the price up to 50 cents on Saturdays and Sundays, while for the last few days Dempsey has been removing four bits from each spectator every day. It is estimated that the fighters have each gathered in $20,000 for the training camp stunts alone. In addition, they are each collecting from the movies. When it is considered that Sullivan and Corbett fought for a purse of $25,000 in their New Orleans battle, one can see how altitudinous the high cost of fighting has become.

It had originally been planned that the festivities tomorrow would start at 10 A. M., it having been intended to have enough preliminary bouts to keep the fans amused until 3:30, but this has been changed, and the proceedings will be initiated at 12 o'clock noon. Two of the eight-round preliminaries have been canceled. There will be two eight-round affairs, and then will come a ten-round go between Jack Malone of St. Paul and Navy Rostan, the Chicago mariner. The semi-final will be between Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne and Carl Tremaine of Detroit. Then will come the big show.

In case any one in New York may think that the picture of jammed and heated Toledo is too sad to contemplate without tears, it may be whispered, as a happy finale to this tale, that Monsieur John Barleycorn is attending this championship fracas, although the 30th of June has gone.

It is possible to obtain the festive highball at hotel and restaurant tables, while beer of a stronger sort than the 2.75 variety may be plucked almost anywhere.

HOLD UP BIG BETS TILL LAST MINUTE

Two Million Dollars Expected to Change Hands on Fight—Wagering Is Brisker.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—The fight crowd in Toledo tonight is waiting until the last minute before making the big bets. The racetrack crowd from New York hasn't arrived, but will be in tomorrow morning on the specials, and as this gathering contains numerous individuals with real money, wide-open gambling is going to take a big jump around here before the fight.

Gambling started today in earnest. In less than two hours this morning one betting commissioner had taken $12,000 in bets. He now holds more than $25,000 in wagers. All the other commissioners said business was beginning to get lively. The sensation of the day was Ed Huston and his crowd of Kansas jayhawks, who came here with $100,000 to bet on Willard.

There was brisk wagering among the crowds in the hotel lobbies, and the odds favored Willard at 5 to 4. One bet was recorded at the Waldorf making Dempsey an 8 to 10 favorite, but there was a rush to get bets like this and no more was obtainable. The man who made the bet acknowledged that he might have let his enthusiasm get away with him.

It is not unusual to see about the hotels men running around with checkbooks and fountain pens in hand, yelling out their offers on the fighters. Toledo has never before seen such a revelry of finance. Every one who has come for the fight has brought a roll and expects to place at least some of it on the outcome of the scrap.

It is figured that at least two millions will change hands on the fight. Yesterday and this morning a few bets were made by enthusiastic Dempsey followers at even money, and in fact many of them are still shouting even money. Most of these reported wagers do not materialize when they are investigated. The majority of the bets up to the present have been made at odds of 5 to 4 on Willard to win. This would seem a normal price on the champion, for there never has been a fight where the challenger has been the favorite at the ringside. The number of bets at odds of 10 to 8 on Willard which have been made in the last few days is a reasonable indication of what the wagering will be tomorrow.

Betting at a fight like this, anyway, is about 90 per cent. talk. Two men get to talking, and before they know it, they are arguing on the fighters. One tries to quiet the other by an offer of a bet. In most cases they both get mad and walk off, without betting at all. This was seen over and over again in the hotels this afternoon and evening.

Those who bet as a cold business proposition go to the betting commissioners. These men say there was more betting talk than they ever had heard in their lives. They admit that there was less actual betting than they had anticipated.

The freak bets continue to be made. Some were made at 1 to 3 that Dempsey would win by a knockout. This bet, at the Boody House, was snapped up in a minute.

Wagers of 90 to 100 were received at several refreshment emporiums which have bartenders busy serving near-beer. Some of the officials believe that prohibition will be a great success, for in several saloons about the city there are more bartenders at work than there were before prohibition came.

On the pari-mutuel machines at one betting headquarters betting on the twelfth round was about even. A bet of $235 was made that Dempsey would get the decision in the twelfth, while $230 was bet that Willard would get the decision.

As the Willard money appears in greater amounts the Dempsey backers demand odds. Tomorrow it is expected they will demand even more than 5 to 4. A wager of $100 to $500 was made tonight that Willard would not come up for the seventh round. The seventh and eighth rounds seem to be the popular choice on the pari-mutuel machines for the bout to end.

One bet which was snapped up was $25 to $300 that Dempsey wins in the first round. Several other freak bets of this sort have been made. Some men are betting $75 to $100 that the fight will end before the eleventh round.

While the town is buzzing with chatter of all sorts of bets, the gamblers look for the big wagers in the morning or just before the fight. Some of the richest and most prominent men have not arrived, because they did not want to come to a crowded city and have to sleep on cots. They will come in on all the specials tomorrow, while thousands of others will reach the city by automobile. Among these late arrivals will come the men who will make the big wagers.

WOUNDED TO GET RETURNS.

Soldiers in Hospitals to Receive Fight News by Rounds.

The soldiers and sailors in six hospitals, five camps, and one recreation house in and around New York City will receive news of the Willard-Dempsey fight round by round today through ticker service which has been installed by the Knights of Columbus.

The wires will connect with Greenhut Hospital, Gun Hill Road Hospital, Ward's Island Naval Hospital, Fox Hill Hospital, United States Base Hospital No. 2 at Rahway, and United States Base Hospital at Mineola. The news from the Toledo ringside will also be wired the aviation field at Garden City, L. I.; Camp Merritt, Camp Upton, Camp Dix, and the Lakewood Hospital. Soldiers and sailors in the heart of New York may receive the news at the Knights of Columbus hut in Times Square.

OFFICIALS DO NOT BAR 'RABBIT PUNCH'

Conference Also Decides in Case of Foul Referee Must Consult Judges.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—The preliminary battle to the Willard-Dempsey scrap tomorrow took place today at a meeting held by Tex Rickard, Referee Ollie Pecord, Ray Archer, Willard's manager; Jack Kearns, representing Dempsey, and W. A. Gavin, representing the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control. Verbal swings, hooks, jabs, and swats bounded to and fro while the rules for the bout tomorrow were under discussion.

The so-called "rabbit punch," which Dempsey and his manager have been objecting to, will not be barred. Willard can use it if he wants to and can hammer the challenger on the back of the neck. This blow is delivered just behind the ears and is called the "rabbit punch" because when a bunny is hit in the neck he takes the count without a struggle.

The Toledo Boxing Commission rules will govern the bout. This rabbit punch has to be delivered with the fist to be legal, and if Willard should smash Dempsey on the back of the neck with the heel of his glove it will be declared a foul. Willard would not listen to Kearns's argument that the "rabbit punch" be barred. This has been a favorite weapon of Willard's, and with a well-directed swat in the back of the neck he has knocked out at least two men—Sailor Stanton and Jack Heinan.

The only punch barred in the fight will be the kidney punch, which is barred under the Marquis of Queensbury rules. Kearns put up a lively argument against the judges having too much to say about the fight. He is for a single referee system, and he held out for Pecord to have the last word in the event of a foul by either fighter.

Tex Rickard then put up a howl. He said that there was so much money involved in this scrap that in the event of a foul or any violation of the rules, both judges, Rickard and Biddle, should be consulted before either boxer is disqualified. Rickard said he wasn't going to risk his reputation on this fight resulting in a fizzle. If a foul is committed, he wants the referee to consult with himself and Biddle before firing either fighter out of the ring.

Kearns Opposes Plan.

In spite of Kearns's objection, this plan was adopted, so three officials will have a say in case of a foul. Kearns says this state of affairs is too radical to suit him, and that the old-fashioned way of having the referee of the ring invested with the authority of a Czar has given way to having fights decided by a jury. He's against the jury system in the fighting game.

If both boxers are on their feet at the end of twelve rounds the two judges shall make their decision, and in the event of a disagreement between them the referee shall make the decision.

Kearns scored only one victory at the conference. The judges, Rickard and Biddle, wanted to sit together at one side of the ring, but Kearns put up such a strong objection to this that Rickard decided to give way to the challenger's wishes and sit on the opposite side of the ring. In this way, Kearns says they will not be able to compare notes during the fight.

Major Biddle was not present today and it was reported about that the representative of the Board of Boxing Control had decided not to attend the fight. W. A. Gavin of the board emphatically denied this report and said: "If Major Biddle isn't present at the fight I will eat my hat." Major Biddle was in Cleveland today aiding in a recruiting campaign and will come to Toledo in the morning.

It developed at the meeting that Kearns and Dempsey have some objection to Major Biddle as a judge. They suggested, it is said, that Mr. Biddle be the official timekeeper and that W. Warren Barbour officiate as judge. Mr. Barbour is the official timekeeper. Rickard would not consent to any change in the officials at this time, and they will serve as appointed.

Explains Willard's Stand.

Ray Archer explained Willard's attitude was that he was willing to abide by any rules agreed upon, while Kearns argued that the bout should be held under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, as called for by the articles of agreement signed by the two boxers. As the bout is held here, it was pointed out that the bout must be held under the rules of the Toledo Boxing Commission. In the end Kearns agreed that this plan must be followed out.

There is only a slight difference in the rules. In the recognized code the boxers can fight their way out of the clinches with one arm free. Under the rules of the local boxing board they can fight in the clinches with one arm free, but must break absolutely clean at the order of the referee.

Jack Dempsey's camp at Point Place was locked tight today. He had only one visitor. This was S. M. Vauclain, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, who came here today with a large party in a private car. Mr. Vauclain was the only one for whom an exception was made, and he and his friends motored out there this afternoon and looked over the challenger.

Dempsey did not work at all. He lounged around and seemed to be in excellent spirits. He got up about 6 o'clock and took a walk down along the shore of the lake. After he had been up a couple of hours he ate a hearty breakfast. Only eggs were served at the morning meal. He ate a heartier meal at noon, and a good dinner in the evening. This policy of allowing Jack to eat so much was made at Dempsey's own request. His training, there is no doubt, has brought him down to 193 pounds, somewhat lighter than Trainer Jimmy De Forest planned.

Wants More Weight.

His handlers are anxious to get a few more pounds on the challenger today because he perspires so freely and will lose considerable weight in the ring as the fight progresses tomorrow. De Forest believes that the complete rest today and the three meals will bring Dempsey just about to concert pitch for tomorrow's ordeal. He expects to go into the ring weighing 195.

Dempsey will rise or fall on the boxing tactics that he has used during the training season here. He will throw defense to the winds and will plan to break through Willard's long arms with the very aggressiveness of his attack.

Jack uses his left arm constantly to jab and jolt, and it is seldom used to guard the left side of his face and jaw. He will depend upon his marvelous foot work and his elusive ducking and dodging to avoid the blows which Willard will send at him.

Willard also had a day of rest, but in the afternoon he went out for a long automobile ride along the shores of the lake. He was up early and there was a quietness about his private house on Parkwood Avenue all day. Jess ate only a light breakfast and did not break his rule of eating two meals a day. He expects to go into the ring at 245 pounds.

Willard is supremely confident. In fact, his confidence is so strong that, according to many old ring judges, it may have a bad effect. They argue that when a fighter is so cock sure of himself that he will take no one's advice but his own, and will train under a system which violates all established rules, he is pretty sure to come a cropper.

Knows Shortcomings.

Willard, however, is an unusual man. He cannot be compared with any man who has ever made a business of pugilism. He knows his own shortcomings and has favored them. It was for this reason that he refused to do any road work. He says that his legs will be stronger without the road work. As pugilists from time immemorial have indulged in miles and miles of running on the roads to get into condition, the oldtime trainers scratch their heads and disapprove the champion's methods.

Sentiment seems to be divided as to whether the bout will result in a knockout or go twelve rounds to a decision.

If both men are on their feet the two judges, Rickard and Biddle, will decide, and if they disagree Pecord will decide. If the boxing is to decide the bout the chances would favor Willard, it would seem, because with his advantage of reach and height he should be able to land more often and effectively. What most of the spectators are going out to see, however, is a clean konckout.

THE KANSAS DELEGATION.

Willard's Townsmen Arrive and Begin Spending Money.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—The breeziest bunch of individuals that have yet hit this hive of fight fanatics drifted into town this morning from Lawrence, Kansas, the home town of champion Jess Willard. They circulated through the crowd in the hotels giving away real money.

Nice new crisp one dollar bills, pinned to which was a printed slip telling all about the philanthropic jayhawkers, were handed out right and left.

On the slips, attached to the dollar bills, was printed: "We make it every day of the year. Spend it. There's lots more where this came from, Lawrence, Kansas, the home of Jess Willard the champion. The People's State Bank of Kansas is furnishing it. The jayhawkers are spending it."

Signed to the slip were the following names of the Kansans who are distributing the free money. They are: Billy Hutson, Ed. Brucker, Ben Strauss, Tildy Fink, Wallace Robinson, Frank Henley and Jim Corbett.

Toledo never saw anybody give money away before and the natives were dumbfounded. Ed. Hutson, the leader of the jayhawkers, said that they had $6,000 in one dollar bills to give away and he said before they got through they would put Lawrence, Kansas, on the map.

This party is having the greatest joy party that ever came out of Kansas. They brought along, so Ed. Hutson said, a pool of $100,000 to back Jess Willard. The news of the jayhawk money gave the shoestring gamblers an awful shock, and when they saw the Kansans actually giving money away before their very eyes, one confidence man from New York rubbed his eyes and said: "Look at those guys giving it away and we have to steal it. I think I'll go out to Kansas to live happily ever after."

FIGHT ANNOUNCER PICKED.

Neecy Weinstein, with Clarion Voice, to Shout to Sea of Faces.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—The man who has been chosen as announcer at the big ring battle tomorrow is a local Demosthenes named Neecy Weinstein, who has a voice which he can throw all the way across Lake Erie.

Neecy has been announcing at fights hereabouts for a number of years, and while he hasn't the Bronx dialect that is so dear to the ears of New Yorkers, he can shout a language which is as far removed from English as it has to be to qualify him as an announcer.

Demosthenes used to go down to the shores of the roaring sea and practice his speeches, but today Neecy Weinstein went him one better, and went out to the fight arena.

Around him the carpenters were hammering and sawing, and the foreman was shouting orders right and left. In the midst of this rumpus Neecy held his rehearsal.

He yelled with all his might, "Ladeeeezzz and gentlemen, in this corner, &c.," and far above the noise and turmoil of the laborers Neecy's oratory floated out over the muddy Maumee. Then Neecy, like all great orators, took a throat lozenger and will rest his voice for the big shout tomorrow.

RUMOR STIRS FIGHT FANS.

Denied, However, That Dempsey Asked More Money.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—A wild rumor sent a thrill through the crowds of fight fans which jam the streets tonight. It was to the effect that Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, had made a demand on Tex Rickard that the challenger receive $50,000 as his share of the purse for the fight. Under the articles of agreement Dempsey is to receive $27,500.

With indications of fair weather and with thousands of people pouring into the city tonight it looks as if the gate receipts would surpass the million mark anticipated by Rickard. Kearns, it is said, made an effort to have Dempsey's share raised, but without success.

Kearns, when asked about the rumor, indignantly denied it, and so did Rickard. The amount of money to be given each of the boxers will not be changed. A flood of Willard money made its appearance tonight and the champion is the ruling favorite.

EVEN MONEY RULES HERE.

One Wall Street Wager Favors Willard, $40,000 to $35,000.

Willard money made its appearance in New York yesterday, and from local indications the fighters will enter the ring with wagers at even money this afternoon. Followers of the sport say that the contest has resulted in fewer bets than any big bout event in recent years. The reason which they advance is that the public is confused by the conflicting reports of the fighters' conditions.

Jack Doyle placed $1,000 on Willard at even money before leaving for the fight yesterday afternoon. Smaller bets were also at even money, although early in the week Willard was favorite by 7 to 5 or 10 to 7. Dempsey is the favorite in freak bets, such as 100 to 15 for a knockout in the first or a victory before the third round.

Wall Street wagers were generally at even, or nearly even, money. Willard is a slight favorite, one wager giving him the heavy end of $40,000 to $35,000, which is the largest wager recorded here. Other bets, $25,000 at even money and smaller sums at slight odds, were also placed.

Public sentiment is behind Dempsey, because he is the David going after Goliath. He was the favorite in local and Toledo betting, until it was feared by some that he might be overtrained and go stale before the bout. Willard backers did not show their money until they were sure the champion had done enough work to get rid of the surplus weight. Willard naturally draws part of his backing through the fact that he is champion.

VIEWS ON OUTCOME TOUCH ANTIPODES

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 3.—The doctors are sadly at variance in the important case involving Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey. For example, an old campaigner in the game of chance like Willie Considine of New York came here this morning firmly believing that Willard should be a big favorite. He backs Willard to win.

"I can't see where Dempsey can beat such a big fellow as Willard," said Willie. "I know that Dempsey and Jack Kearns are popular fellows, but I never imagined their popularity would swing the betting the way it has."

In direct opposition to this opinion is that of Bill Brown, the veteran New York referee. "Dempsey will win and I have put up a bet to back my opinion. This big fellow is glued to the floor. Dempsey has the youth, which is more than 50 per cent. of the battle right there."

Many of the old trainers here are either undecided or favor Dempsey. There is perhaps a reason for this. It will be remembered that when Jeffries fought Johnson in Reno all the expert trainers and physical culture men said that Jeffries would win easily. They made him a big favorite. Now, as they look back and realize the mistake made, they swing the other way and bank on Dempsey's youth to win.

Then, again, take the attitude of all the pugilists. Most of them favor Dempsey to win. They do it in conversation, even if they do not back their convictions with money. The pugilists are always with the younger fighter.

Willard has never been popular among fighters. He hasn't mixed with them much since he became prosperous. He has had as little to do with them as possible. The fighters all want to see the title change hands; they want the champion to be what they call "a regular feller."

In the case of some who are backing Dempsey, the wish is father to the thought. A few of the opinions of some of the well-known sporting men are as follows:

Tom Jones, former manager of Willard: "I can't see where Dempsey can beat Jess. He's in pretty good shape and has too many physical advantages for the challenger to overcome."

Sandy Griswold: "I look to see Willard win by a knockout."

Tommy Ryan, old-time fighter: "Dempsey hasn't any defense. Don't let any one tell you Willard isn't in good shape. He is. A man of his size could train for a year and not show it. He is so big and strong that I can't see haw Dempsey can get at him. Dempsey is wild with his boxing. He doesn't seem to know what he is doing. Willard will win."

Frank Moran, former heavyweight challenger: "Willard should be an easy winner. He is a big improvement over his form three years ago when he boxed me at Madison Square Garden. He can box much better. Dempsey seems to me to have gone a little too far with his training and is liable to be a bit stale."

Jack McAuliffe, former lightweight champion: "For a time I was undecided between these two. I liked Dempsey at first and when I saw Willard work I didn't see how the smaller man could beat him. Now, however, I have gone back to Dempsey and I expect to see him win."

Battling Nelson, former lightweight champion: "Dempsey is my choice. He will spill the big guy."

Benny Leonard, present lightweight champion: "Dempsey is the logical winner. He is too fast and has all the advantage of youth and good legs."

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien: "Training weakens a man of 37 years. Willard can't win, in my opinion. There's too much speed and youth on Dempsey's side."

Jack Dillon: "I have boxed both men, and take it from me, Willard will be minus his title after July 4."

Jack Monroe: "Dempsey will win."

Ring Lardner: "I ain't a scream at pickin', Al, but the large party will win by a knockout in three rounds."

BOTH PREDICT VICTORY.

Champion and Challenger Make Statements Expressing Confidence.

TOLEDO, July 3.—In statements prepared for The Associated Press, Willard and Dempsey gave their views on the contest of tomorrow as follows:

Champion Jess Willard.

"From the day I signed the contract for the championship it has been my one idea to enter the ring in condition to give my best efforts to the public and titular honors which I am fortunate enough to hold.

"I have trained with this in mind for a period of more than three months to the best of my ability, and intend to give every ounce of strength and degree of skill that I possess to the defense of the championship. I know that some followers of boxing do not agree with my system of training, but I am convinced I know myself and my conditioning requirements. I believe that I am in perfect shape, and confident that I shall successfully defend the championship. If it should prove that I am wrong I shall stand up like a man and admit the superior boxing ability of my opponent without quibble, excuse or alibi. Beyond that I feel that events must speak for themselves."

Challenger Jack Dempsey.

"Six weeks of consistent training has made me fit for the big event of my life. In all my career I never felt better than I do right now, and I am as certain of victory as man can be. The bigness of Willard does not bother me. I like the big ones. Carl Morris and Fred Fulton were not dwarfs, and I put both of them away, doing the trick each time in less than one round. No man in the world can withstand the attack I will wage when I enter the ring with Willard.

"My youth, strength, and natural fighting ability will prove more than an offset to the extra poundage of the champion. That I have real confidence in my ability to take the title away from Willard is to be believed. I have never yet met a man I feared. They all look alike to me, and unless Willard is the superman claimed by his supporters, I will knock him out in a hurry. I would not be surprised to list him along with Fulton, Morris, and the other one-rounders. He may get by the first, but if he does he is only framing a lot of trouble for himself. I'm sure ready to go to him. I hope it is a good battle, no matter how short it is. Take it from me, though, you are talking to the winner."

TURNER TO BE RELEASED.

Cleveland Veteran, with Team 15 Years, Gets Ten-Day Notice.

CLEVELAND, July 3.—Terry Turner dean of the American League baseball players, was given ten days' notice of unconditional release by the Cleveland Club today. He had been a member of the local team for fifteen years. All the other American League clubs waived on his services. The move was made necessary in order to keep within the player limit, it was announced.

Class P Race Not Official.

Because of the loss of buoys which were to have marked the course, officials of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club have declared their recent regatta for Class P yachts "no contest." The race will be resailed when plans for the event can be completed. The original race resulted in a victory for Bernice, sailed by Norman Gooderham of Boston.

Both Fighters Are Trained to the Minute for Bout

Both principals are reported to be trained to a perfect condition, and each expresses perfect satisfaction with his physical and mental state. Willard will probably enter the ring weighing about 245 pounds, while Dempsey is expected to be within a pound or so of the 200 mark. In almost every physical measurement the champion will have the advantage of the challenger, being the largest man who ever held the title.

TOLEDO IS MAKING HAY.

Prices Boosted on Everything That Fight Fans Must Buy.

TOLEDO, July 3.—Toledo having once determined to stage a big ring encounter, decided that it should be a benefit performance, with the city as beneficiary. That has become pretty obvious to the invading army of visitors, and has been a source of some chagrin to those who came here equipped with anaemic bank rolls. The prime necessities of the wayfarer, a place to sleep and food and drink for his nourishment, have developed remarkable aviating power under the urging of the thrifty hotel men, restaurants and merchants.

Prices, already wafted aloft to where the average person could just reach them with his finger tips, have developed, in this rarified lake air, a propensity to soar to uncanny heights. The tariffs quoted on a public dining room menu cause the absent-minded to wonder if they have drifted into a jeweler's shop by mistake.

A humble cot in the corner of a bedroom is glorified by being rented for a single night for several times its value. No, Toledo is not in the business for its health. It had been figured that a million and a half in general expenditures would be left in the city by the invading throngs. It is now quite evident that the decision has been reached to build this sum to even greater figures.

"While these dear people are here let us relieve them of superfluous weight and do them as well as we can," the sentiment seems to run. "When they get home they'll be wiser, perhaps shrewed men, and, therefore, much better citizens."

MINX WINS YACHT RACE.

First in Event at Opening of American Club's Season.

RYE, N. Y., July 3.—Still another one of the Long Island Sound yacht clubs hoisted the racing burgee today and held its first regatta in two years. The organization was the American Yacht Club, which has a handsome home at Milton Point near here. Although the fleet was small and the breeze light and fluky, the return of racing was heralded as a great success.

When the Race Committee, in F. L. Munson's power yacht Ranora, established the starting line off the Scotch Caps' red gas buoy, the wind was coming lightly from west by north. H. de B. Parsons, Chairman of the committee, who is also Chairman of the Race Committee of the New York Yacht Club, decided to send the thirty-footers, the largest class to fill, over a sixteen and one-half-mile course that took the craft to a buoy off Woolsey's reef, another off Matinicock Point and then home. As the wind came the craft had two reaches and a short beat on the last leg home.

The division was made up of five yachts. With the exception of Adois, the property of Fred Richards, they all made a pretty start, well bunched on the port tack. Adois started three minutes late. In the light air it was any yacht's race. J. C. Clarke's Minx through good seamanship, finally won the cup offered by Vice Commodore Henry W. Howe, by four minutes and twenty-five seconds from Ogden Reid's Lena. It is the first time the Lena has been beaten this year.

In the Larchmont Inter-Club class the winner was Barbara, the property of C. Shields. In Class U the prize was taken by W. T. Hornidge's Tern. Five of the Star class raced for a special cup offered by Rear Commodore C. W. Leavitt. The winner was Shooting Star, the property of J. B. Shethar.

In addition to Chairman Parsons, there was on the committee Commodore John L. Cutler, Vice Commodore H. W. How, Rear Commodore C. W. Leavitt, Stuyvesant Wainwright, William Remsen, and Nelson Macy.

COBWEBS SPINS OUT A NEW TRACK MARK

H. P. Whitney's Entry Covers Five Furlongs in 57 4-5 at Aqueduct Meeting.

Favorites are easier to pick the younger the horses are, according to the results at the Queens County Jockey Club meeting yesterday. The only races to be carried off by the first choices were the two for two-year-olds, taken respectively by J. K. L. Ross's Smite and H. P. Whitney's Cobwebs. The latter set a new track record for five furlongs in 0:57 4-5. The former Aqueduct mark was 0:58 1-5, made by W. R. Coe's Terentia, carrying 112 pounds, on July 8, 1918. Smite was at 15 to 20 and Cobwebs at 7 to 5.

The second choice, Columbine, at the good price of 5 to 1, captured the fourth event. The other winners were Mohican, in the steeplechase; Leading Star, in the third, and Tantalus, at the tempting odds of 15 to 1.

Smite, a chestnut gelding, by Prince Ahmed-Smirk, was the first winner to be bred by Mr. Ross at his farm, Yarrow Brae, in Maryland. Loftus, who broke a streak of losing rides by bringing Smite home first, kept his mount always in front and won easily by a half length from Brynhild, which was four lengths ahead of the third horse, Acid Test. L. Garth claimed Smite, at the price of $1,250.

Cobwebs and George W. Loft's Germa made a two-horse race of the sixth, although there were eleven starters. Germa was the pacemaker, with Cobwebs in second position until the stretch when Knapp took command and with a vigorous hand finish secured the verdict by four lengths. Germa was the same distance in front of the show horse, Robert L. Gerry's Indiscretion.

There were ten engaged in the steeplechase for maidens, four-year-olds and upward. Mrs. W. M. Jeffords's The Dean was a well-supported favorite, but the Greentree Stable's Mohican, running as a big chief wild on the warpath, waited on the pace and won easily by five lengths from Mrs. W. A. Prime's Bronze Eagle, which was a neck ahead of The Dean. Women owned the three placed horses.

Dave Campbell opened up a big lead at the start, being ten or fifteen lengths to the good at the three-quarters, but taking the water jump at the end of the first mile Buchanan Brady was in front, attended by The Dean and Mohican. Buchanan Brady dropped back, a tiring horse, and, three jumps from the finish, collided with the siderail of the fence, losing his rider, Cheyne. At the next fence J. E. Griffith's Mademoiselle Maxime, which was running strongly, fell with Kennedy. Neither horse nor rider were hurt seriously.

A. K. Macomber's Fruit Cake, winner on a sloppy track when last out at Aqueduct last Friday, had the support of the talent for the fourth race, the Miss Woodford, at a mile. Cobalt Lass and Rose d'Or, however, had the best of the situation at the head of the stretch, with Fruit Cake running third. Then J. Byer's chestnut mare, Columbine, came sailing up on the outside and won cleverly by a length, Cobalt Lass nosing out Rose d'Or for the place, and the favorite two lengths off.

The sixth race was also at a mile, for a group of thirteen nonwinners since May 15. John I. Day and Goldvale, the latter the favorite, made it a race all to themselves, running as named until the last sixteenth. R. H. McC. Potter's Tantalus, carrying the mystic number thirteen on his saddle pad, rushed up from behind and snatched the race by half a length, John I. Day beating Goldvale two lengths for the place.

In the three-year-old handicap, The Africander, Leading Star and My Friend finished ahead of the favorite, Rodgers. It was a pretty ending up to a fast race, although not a particularly close one, for the winner and second were a length and a half apart.

With Rodgers being whipped out on the rail and My Friend next, also under punishment, Leading Star came breezing past on the outside and took the lead. The time was 1:11 2-5, the fraction being the difference from the track record of 1:11, made on July 6, 1916, by H. P. Whitney's Thunderer, 116 pounds up.

Giants' Veteran Southpaw Is Shelled from Mound in Fourth Inning at Polo Grounds.

MAMAUX PROVES A PUZZLE

Brooklyn Boxman Registers Eight Strikeouts—Benny Kauff Hits Homer to Right-Field Stand.

The Giants were roped, thrown and hog-tied yesterday on the Polo Grounds by young Al Mamaux, a product of Allegheny County, Pa., and pitcher extraordinary for the Brooklyn Dodgers. While young Al was casting his doleful spell over the McGraw clan, Uncle Wilbert Robinson's Dodgers were shelling Rube Benton into oblivion and burying the Giants in another defeat. The disaster was measured by the unwholesome margin of 6 to 3.

As a result of this setback McGraw's athletes are tottering at the top of the National League pennant ladder. Nine percentage points is all that separates them from the blissful career of league-leaders and the humiliation of an engulfing slide. The nine points represent less than one-half a game, which illustrates the crisis more concretely than mere figures. The team dispelled the gloomy reports of a slump which had preceded its first clash with the Robins at the Polo Grounds, by pounding the Brooklynites into subjection. There was plenty of room for a revival of the reports in the second game which went to Brooklyn, and yesterday the joy-killers broke out in full bloom with their "I-told-you-so" demonstrations. The team must take a decided brace if it is to remain on top and there must be no delay in this recuperation.

Benny Kauff was the Giant hero yesterday and the only thorn in the side of Mamaux. None of the other Giant players could do anything with the balls served them by Wilbert Robinson's pitching selection. Benny had the temerity to bounce a home-run drive off the façade of the upper right-field stand in the sixth. Arthur Fletcher scored ahead of Benny on the blow.

This was the only inning for the Giants and the only alarming session for Mr. Mamaux. But in the light of subsequent events there wasn't really much for the Robin pitcher to become excited about. Kauff's thump simply made Mamaux recover when he was on the point of relaxing his vigil, and the Giants suffered thereby. Only nine Giants faced Mamaux in the three closing innings, and there wasn't an indication of a thump by any one of these hitters.

One Lapse by Mamaux.

Mamaux treated the tottering League leaders to a pitching display that completely baffled them and was absolutely effective. Like a skilled physician, the Robin hurler prescribed just what would cure each batsman, and then gave it to them whether they liked it or not. And the Giants didn't like it at all.

The New York hitting was conspicuous by its absence. All told, the Giants collected seven safe thumps, two of which were made by Kauff. Benny's four-ply clout is provided for in this brace of hits. The Giants' stick display was confined to three innings, the second, third, and sixth. In every other session Mamaux, as cool as an ice floe, retired the Giants in order.

By way of indelibly impressing his pitching wizardry on the minds of the National League pennant pretenders, Mamaux fanned eight of them. Larry Doyle was humiliated twice. The others to fall victims to Mamaux's enticing hooks and slants were Young, Zimmerman, McCarty, Ragan, Chase, and Burns. In the fifth Mamaux fanned McCarty and Ragan in order.

While Mamaux was subduing the Giants his teammates unburdened themselves of a cannonade which must have shaken the foundations of Ebbets Field over in Flatbush. Rube Benton bore the brunt of the attack, and finally was shelled off the pitching peak in the fourth. When Rube shambled off the field the Robins were leading by 5 to 0 and Jimmy Johnston was resting easily on third with the prospective sixth Flatbush run. Don Carlos Pat Ragan replaced Benton and yielded a brace of hits up to the seventh. Pat was relegated to the background in a seventh-inning effort at a rally, when Earl Smith batted for him. It might just as well be mentioned here that Earl didn't do anything. Poll Perritt finished the game, and with the Robins content to rest on their laurels, Poll didn't encounter any dangerous situations.

Johnston Hits Hard.

Jimmy Johnston showed the way in the Brooklyn attack. Jimmy landed on Benton's service for three hits, scored two runs himself, and figured in the scoring of two others. At second base Jimmy played faultlessly. Outside of that he didn't do a thing.

Benton quivered under the rattling of Brooklyn hits in the opening frame. Olson skied out to Kauff and then the Robins started right out to win the game. Johnston singled to centre and took second when Jimmy Hickman hit to the same pasture. Zack Wheat lifted a fly to Kauff. Hy Myers, back in the game after a day's rest, picked out one of Benton's slants and sent it crashing against the fence in left centre for a triple, scoring Johnston and Hickman. Konetchy closed the inning with a rocket to Kauff.

Myers made Benton quail with a single which bounced off the right-field wall in the second, but no score resulted. Johnston got his second hit starting this frame, a scratch in front of second. Hickman fanned and Johnston was forced at second by Zack Wheat. Myers nicked the right-field wall with a single, sending Wheat to third, but Myers was killed off at second on Konetchy's rap to Fletcher.

In the fourth a loud crash informed the 5,000 sweltering fans that the Giants were done. After Zimmerman had thrown out Ward, Arthur Fletcher started the Robins on the road to four runs with a criminal heave to Chase on Miller's grounder. Otto raced to second before the throw was recovered. Mamaux sent his battery mate to third with a single to centre and Olson almost bowled over Benton with a hot slash. Rube recovered quickly and tried for Miller at the plate, but the Giant pitcher's throw was late. Mamaux perched on second and Olson on first.

Benton Taken Out.

Johnston dumped his third hit of the day in centre field. The ball rolled right past Benny Kauff's expectant hands and Mamaux and Olson raced over the rubber while Johnston ended his travels at third. Benton was here removed from the scene and Don Carlos Pat Ragan sent in as a rescuer. With this change Manager Robinson quickly lifted Jimmy Hickman and sent Tommy Griffith, the regular Robin right gardener, to bat. Tommy lifted a sacrifice fly to Kauff, and Johnston scored with the Brooklynites' sixth run. Zack Wheat followed with a single to centre, but was left stranded when Ragan tossed out Myers.

The Giants' part in the pastime can be told in a few terse sentences. It all happened in the sixth. Burns died by the air route to Wheat. Young doubled to left and raced home on Fletcher's single through Konetchy's legs to right. Doyle skied out to Wheat. Fletcher was chased home ahead of Kauff when the diminutive fly chaser put all the strength of his shoulders into one mighty swish of his bat and sent the pill careening off the upper tier façade.

CURVES AND BINGLES

Mamaux had everything a pitcher should have—and then some.

Mamaux hadn't won a game in two years up to this season. Looks like he accumulated a lot of good baseball in that space of time, to unload it on the Giants yesterday.

The Brooklyn pitcher scored his third straight victory when he beat the league-leaders. He shut out Chicago for his first victory in two years, allowing the Cubs but three hits. His other success was made at the expense of Philadelphia.

Brooklyn has made life miserable for the Giants in the past two series between the teams. The Robins have taken four out of six games. A glance at the percentage column will show the effects of this maltreatment.

While the Giants were lashed to the mast Pat Moran's Cincinnati Redlegs trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals and advanced to within a few strides of the leaders.

The Giants didn't lose any time leaving town last night. The team left on the eight o'clock train for Philadelphia where they will remain over the week-end.

Mrs. Wilbert Robinson, Mrs. Al Mamaux and Mrs. Jimmy Hickman enjoyed the proceedings immensely. They watched the game from a box back of the Brooklyn bench. Naturally they were all smiles.

One chance to score slipped away in the second through a confusion in signals. With two out, Kauff on third and Zimmerman on first as a result of singles, the double steal was tried. McGraw was coaching on first and Matty on third. Zimmerman started for second, drawing Mamaux's throw to first. For some reason Kauff was held on third as if anchored and Zimmerman was an easy out at second for the third demise.

Manager McGraw disgustedly threw a glove to the ground and didn't appear on the coaching lines again.

In the third McCarty occupied third and Burns first with one down, but Mamaux rose to the occasion and squelched the run outlook.

Kauff's circuit clout in the sixth gave him the edge on Doyle in the season's home run blows, according to the statistical Al Munro Elias. Kauff has made seven and Doyle six.

Zach Wheat made a scintillating catch of Burns's fly to deep left in the sixth.

Frank Frisch, former Fordham University star, got into the fracas in the sixth when McGraw relieved Zimmerman. Frisch handled three chances faultlessly.

Larry Doyle expostulated mildly when called out on strikes in the second. He went into a rage when the dose was repeated in the ninth.

The Yankees come home and entertain the Senators in morning and afternoon games today.

YANKEES SHUT OUT BY WALTER JOHNSON

Shore Pitches Good Ball, but Goes Down to Defeat, 1 to 0—Peck Still Hitting.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Walter Johnson's sturdy right arm was on its best behavior this afternoon and the Yankees drew nothing but blanks in their section of the scoreboard. Huggins's men got to the Washington Wizard for seven hits, but they were so well separated that the Yankees never seriously threatened to score. Two of the visitors traveled as far as second base, but that was the deadline for Yankee base runners. The Senators got the verdict by the score of 1 to 0.

Brilliant pitching in the pinches by Shore, coupled with some spectacular fielding at times, made the game close all the way. Shore scattered six hits through five different innings, but the drives made by the home team were more lusty than those manufactured by the Yankees off Johnson and the Griffmen threatened time and again to score. Usually Shore was able to shut them off, but on two occasions Roger Peckinpaugh came to the front with some of his spectacular defensive work to block off runs.

Peckinpaugh and Duffy Lewis maced Johnson for two hits apiece, but the other Yankees were very tame against the Big Gun. Peckinpaugh singled to left in the third and again in the eighth inning, running his string of continuous hitting through twenty-two consecutive games. This is the season's record to date.

The Senators put over their lone run in the opening inning, in which they made only one hit. Joe Judge greeted Shore with a drive to the right field wall for two bases, and he moved along to third on Leonard's sacrifice, Shore to Pipp. Milan hit a long fly to Bodie and Judge came across with the run that settled the game.

The home team threatened in the third when Judge doubled with two out and took third on Pratt's fumble of Leonard's grounder. Milan closed the inning by grounding to Shore. In the fourth Rice opened with a triple and remained on third while Gharrity popped out, Murphy fanned, and Shanks was retired on a spectacular play by Peckinpaugh. In the fifth Grover and Johnson opened with singles and both advanced on Judge's sacrifice. After Leonard had popped to Pipp, a pass to Milan filled the bases, and Rice closed the inning with a line drive to Pipp. In the sixth Murphy doubled with one out and reached third on an infield out, but was left. Shore was continually in trouble, but unhittable in the pinches. Wickland batted for Shore in the eighth, and Schneider worked one inning, which produced one hit and no runs.

The Yankees got a runner to second in the second inning when Pipp singled through the box, was forced at second by Pratt, and Johnson made a balk, sending Pratt to second. In the fourth Del doubled to right with two gone and was left. No other Yankee player reached second base. In the sixth Baker and Lewis got singles, but the former died stealing before Duffy's hit arrived. Johnson walked Vick, the first man to face him in the opening inning, but thereafter had perfect control.

The two teams left this evening for New York, where they will play seven games in the next four days. Double headers are on the bill for the holiday, Saturday, and Monday, and one game will be played Sunday.

Naylor Weakens After Holding the Champions Hitless for Four Innings.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—Walker's home run in the first inning with Witt on base gave Philadelphia a flying start today, but Naylor, after holding Boston hitless for four innings, went to pieces and the champions made it two out of three by winning, 8 to 2. Walker also robbed Ruth of a home run by a sensational catch and Ruth pulled a drive by Dugan out of the bleachers.

DAREDEVIL DRIVERS AFTER NEW RECORD

Expect to Lower Existing Mark in 100-Mile Auto Derby at Sheepshead Bay Today.

Auto racing history wil be made this afternoon at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway when fifteen of the world's greatest speed demons will flash their high power machines over the 100-mile route in the Independence Derby, one of the feature events of the big racing card. Preceding the 100-mile classic, Ralph De Palma and "Howdy" Wilcox will renew their old feud for sprint honors in a special match race to be decided in three ten-mile heats, which will decide the championship of America. This match has been hanging fire for more than a year and thousands of dollars will be wagered on the result. The match will attract the leading motor builders of the country, it not only being a test of the nerve and daring of the drivers but a true test of the Liberty motor. Wilcox will drive the same Peugeot that carried him to victory in the $50,000 race in Indianapolis six weeks ago when he beat De Palma and his famous Packard speedster. Both De Palma and Wilcox will clash again in the 100-mile Derby.

The special match and the long-distance event should furnish plenty of thrills to the throng that will be present. There will be the usual corp of doctors and stretcher bearers. There is no telling what is likely to happen when these daredevils get their machines warmed up.

Veterans of the auto racing game who have watched the pilots in their workouts during the last few days predict that the 100-mile record of 54:20.98 made by Louis Chevrolet on the "Bay" track will be shattered. Gaston Chevrolet will be on hand to defend the honor of the family of Chevrolet. Gaston will drive the Frontenac that Louis piloted when he established the world's record. A new moter has been installed, which means greater speed. Gaston says the Frontenac can travel 123 miles an hour.

Among the favorites for the big race are Tammy Milton and Eddie O'Donnel, the Duesenberg team. The latter machines were the sensations of the last meeting at the "Bay." Dave Lewis, who furnished the real thrills in a race for second place on June 14, is also a dangerous contender. Ira Vail, the pride of Brooklyn, is another that must be reckoned with. Bennett Hill, the Bronx driver, and Steve Olsen will drive Aetna Specials. These are more or less mystery cars.

The patrons of the races will receive complete returns of the Willard-Dempsey fight in Toledo, Manager Johnston having arranged for a special wire, and every detail of the big fight will be given the crowd.

Another feature this afternoon will be Lieutenantt Arthur Chapelle's race against time on a motorcycle. He expects to ride a mile under thirty seconds. The first race will be staged at 3 P. M. Special trains will leave the Brooklyn Bridge Terminal every few minutes. The following drivers and cars will start in the 100-mile Derby:

Drivers and Cars They Will Pilot in Auto Race Today

NEWARK GETS THIRD IN ROW

NEWARK, N. J., July 3.—Newark made it three in a row by beating Jersey City, 6 to 4, here today. Ed Rommel, who had a tryout with the Giants in the Spring, pitched, and although touched up for eleven safeties, got away with his game due to the excellent support he received.

Jersey City got to Rommel in the first two innings, when they tallied twice. Rommel then held Smiling Bill Donovan's tribe safe until the ninth when they bunched three more hits for two runs. George Bausewine, who started for Jersey City, was hit hard besides being wild. He was derricked in the fifth after being hit safely six times and walking six batters.

Morrisette, who followed him on the mound, was wild, too. Miller and Letter got two hits apiece for Newark. Sargent, who faced the Jersey City pitchers four times, was not at bat officially once. He walked once, sacrificed twice, and drove out a sacrifice fly.

AMERICAN SCULLER WINS.

Major Withington Defeats Britisher by Three Lengths.

HENLEY, July 3 (Associated Press.)—The heat of the Kingswood Sculls between Major Withington and Colonel Salier was one of the best races of the regatta. Colonel Salier took the lead early in the race and kept ahead of Withington's spurts until the three-quarter-mile post was reached. Thereafter the American gradually overhauled the Britisher. The pace then became gruelling, and Colonel Salier became tired. Withington finished in good style three lengths ahead, in 9 minutes 28 seconds.

In the race for the Leander Cup, the Leander crew leaped off, rowing forty strokes to the minute, against thirty-four by the Americans, securing a lead of a boat length. The Americans, finding the wind annoying, steered into Leander's water. The Leander crew maintained the high speed and was nearly two lengths ahead of the Americans at Fawley Reach.

The Americans attempted to quicken their stroke, but failed to attain the speed of their opponents. The Americans were beaten by a length. The time was 8 minutes 12 seconds.

The American Army eight-oared crew beat the French Army crew today in the elimination trials for the King's Cup. The Americans won by three lengths. The time was 7:56.

STEARNS LEADS THE FIELD.

Nassau Player Has Card of 76 at Shackamaxon Tournament.

The novelty of starting an invitation golf tournament to extend over the Fourth of July was tried at the Shackamaxon Country Club yesterday, and although the field was small, there was little left to be desired in the way of quality. First in the testing round at eighteen holes was John N. Stearns, Jr., the Nassau amateur, with a score of 76, six strokes better than Gardiner W. White, a Nassau clubmate, who was second.

Visitors were unanimous in their praise of the links, which covers a playing length of 6,500 yards. There is a stiff par of 72 for the circuit, but anything better than 80 is regarded as good going. Stearns got his score by his deadly approaching and steady putting. For instance, going out, the former Princeton golfer required only one putt on four greens.

After failing to get home on his second shot at the 434-yard second hole, Sterns finally ran down a twenty-foot putt for a par 4. Again, at the sixth, he was trapped on his second shot, but recovered to the green and holed a sizeable putt for a 4. At the seventh he laid a third shot from the rough to within two feet of the hole, and got another 4, a stroke under par. He also laid a short chip shot dead at the ninth. These enabled him to make the outward journey in 37.

Coming back, his only slips were at the tenth and eleventh holes. The first named is 569 yards long, and Stearns fell short of the green on his third shot, taking 6 there. He also missed his 3 at the short pond hole, but from there on played along practically in par figures.

His card follows:

Out ....4 4 5 5 3 4 4 4 4—37

In ....6 4 5 5 3 4 5 3 4—39—76

Unlike most tournaments these days, Shackamaxon got quick action by pairing up the players for match play in the afternoon. The luck of the draw put Stearns and White on opposite sides, which means that, if no upsets occur, these favorites are liable to meet in the final tomorrow. They won their matches without difficulty yesterday, Stearns defeating J. K. Weidig of the home club to the tune of 8 and 7, while White won almost as decisively over Walter B. Mehl of the home club.

The scores:

HALL TO MEET PELL.

Will Be Finalists Today in Nassau County Club Tennis Tournament.

The final round of the invitation tennis tournament at the Nassau Country Club, Glen Cove, this morning will bring together Walter Merrill Hall and Theodore Roosevelt Pell, both of whom won their semi-final matches yesterday. Hall defeated Henry S. Parker in a curious three-set encounter, losing the opener, 2—6, and then cleaning up in even more one-sided fashion, 6—1, 6—0. Pell's victory was won over Hofman Nickerson in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3. Parker's semi-final bracket was gained by the default of Leonard Beekman. The doubles finals will also be played today.

WILL HOLD AUTO DERBY.

Best Drivers to Race at Uniontown on July 19.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., July 1.—Uniontown's mile and an eighth automobile racing track will be the scene of the midsummer championship events on July 19, when practically all of the racers who drove at Indianapolis and New York will be seen on the Uniontown Speedway at the games being held in connection with the Welcome Home Celebration in honor of Uniontown's soldiers in the world war, and several thousand service men will be the guests of the Speedway management, which is arranging an all day's program. The executive committee of the Welcome Home Celebration is cooperating with the Speedway management in providing for the accommodation of the returned service men on July 19, while the automobile racing, motor cycle racing and aerial features will provide a day's entertainment of unusual merit.

Announcement will be made in a few days as to the detailed plans for the automobile and motor cycle racing events.

NEAR ROW OVER DECISION

Robinson Causes Argument by Refusing to Finish Play in Semi-Darkness.

Elliott H. Binzen and Henry H. Bassford will play for the North Side tennis championship this afternoon as a result of their victories in the semi-final round at the University Heights club yesterday. Binzen defeated Percy L. Kynaston in straight sets, both scored at 6—4, while Bassford was given a default over Howard W. Robinson when the latter refused to continue play in the semi-darkness, with the deciding set standing at 4—2 in Bassford's favor, the first two having been divided, 8—10 and 6—3.

Vincent Richards and Allen Behr, metropolitan and Manhattan doubles champion, reached the final round of the team event by a default, and the elimination, first, of George S. Groesbeck and Leon Croley, and later of the Anderson brothers, the last-named combination succumbing only after a thrilling three-set struggle, 3—6, 11—9, 6—3.

In the upper half Binzen and E. H. Henderson will face A. J. Ostendorf and F. T. Hunter this morning for the final bracket, both teams winning yesterday in straight sets.

While Kynaston gave Binzen a splendid fight in their singles semi-final, it was felt by the gallery that the Fordhamite was never in real danger, and most of the attention of the onlookers was concentrated on the other matches. Kynaston's awkward style somewhat disguises the really fine qualities of his game, and it was not always obvious just how hard he was making Binzen work for the points. The winner, however, with his tricky, double-edged service, his combination of chop and drive, and his tremendous overhead smashing, was able to sustain an aggressive attack throughout, and is today the favorite for the North Side title.

Argue Over Decision.

The other semi-final almost produced another upset, and after the decision of the committee had been made in Bassford's favor the argument was taken up in violent fashion by partisan spectators and players alike. Tennis has surely outgrown that mild and peaceful prefix "lawn," with which it used to be adorned.

Bassford began well, outplaying Robinson at his own game of steadiness, and, with a lead of 5—2, seeming to have the opening set in his grasp. But the Westerner kept on doggedly returning the ball, and eventually began to drive his opponent into errors, the score gradually equalizing until deuce games were called.

It was an absolutely even battle after that, until on the eighteenth game Robinson broke through and captured the set, 10—8. Bassford then changed his tactics somewhat, employing more speed and finer placement to earn the points. As a result he forged ahead and was soon leading again at 5—2. Although he dropped one more game, he took no chances this time, closing out the set at 6—3 and squaring the match.

It was then already too dark for first-class tennis, but both players agreed to try to reach a decision, with the understanding that the match should be completely replayed if the third set could not be finished. Bassford continued his forcing tactics with fair success, although both men were handicapped by the bad light. With the games standing 4—2 against him, Robinson decided that he could no longer see the balls, and refused to continue. The committee thereupon produced a new set of balls and suggested that two more games should be played, in the hope of either finishing the match or ending with a tie score.

When Robinson still insisted upon stopping he received the choice of defaulting or playing the two games suggested. By way of answer he left the court, and Umpire Ostendorf then announced Bassford the winner. The action of the committee was considered necessary to avoid an extra hard match for one of the finalists on the day of the deciding struggle for the championship. Robinson lodged a vigorous protest and threatened to take it up with the National Association.

For sensational tennis this bitter argument was easily eclipsed by the team play on the adjoining court.

The big doubles match of the day began with Frank Anderson serving, and there was an immediate break as a result of unsteady work by the brothers overhead. Richards made it 2—0 with his service, and then Fred put the Anderson family on the score sheet on his own delivery. Behr also served successfully, but at 3—1 the champions stopped dead, while the Andersons began a pull-up which lasted until the set had fallen to their credit, 6—3. Fine driving and smashing by both the Brooklyn boys featured this five-game rally, the earned points outnumbering the errors.

Andersons Take a Brace.

When the second session began with a break against the service of Richards already missed by his brother and lobbed the youngsters' stock rose perceptibly. The deciding point of this game was won when Fred Anderson recovered a ball it to the very corner of the court. Frank made it 2—0 with some fine overhead work after Fred had missed an attempt at a tricky volley close up.

Behr won his service, and the Anderson lead was increased to 3—1 on Fred's delivery, the server scoring the winning point with a smash which just nipped the baseline. Two fine passing drives had Richards in a hole on the next game, but he switched to a reverse twist service with good effect, and pulled it up to 3—2, mixing in a heavy overhead smash with his opponent's errors. Frank then practically blew the match by missing two smashes and a low volley in succession, losing his service and squaring the set, 3—all.

From then on there was a steady alternation of games until the champions finally broke through for the set, 11—9, by passing Fred twice on his service. The rubber was decided when Fred Anderson again lost his service on the eighth game, making it 5—3, after which Richards put the match on ice with a deuce victory from his deceptive delivery, match-point being twice called before Fred Anderson netted the final shot.

The summaries:

North Side Championship Singles.—Semi-final Round—Elliott H. Binzen defeated Percy L. Kynaston, 6—4, 6—4; Henry H. Bassford defeated Howard W. Robinson, 8—10, 6—3, 4—2, (defaulted.)

Von Bernuth, 7—5, 6—3; Vincent Richards and Allen Behr defeated the Anderson brothers, 3—6, 11—9, 6—3; W. H. Pritchard and Jerry Lange won from Dr. G. B. Stanwix and T. Cooke by default.

Semi-final Round—Vincent Richards and Allen Behr won from W. H. Pritchard and Jerry Lange by default.

TENNIS MATCH THRILLING.

Miss Ryan Plays Well in Wimbledon Doubles.

WIMBLEDON, July 3, (Associated Press.)—In the fourth round, mixed doubles, R. Lycett of Australia, and Miss Ryan of the United States, defeated Aurrentz and Suzanne Lenglen of France, 2—6, 6—4, 6—2.

This was the most thrilling match of the whole tournament, and was conspicuous for the magnificent volleying of Miss Ryan and Miss Lenglen. The winners have now reached the semi-final.

AMERICANS WIN RELAY.

Take 1,600-Meter Event at Pershing Stadium.

PERSHING STADIUM, July 3, (Associated Press.)—The United States won the 1,600-meter relay race in the inter-allied games here today. The Australian team was second and the French team third. The time was 3:20 4-5.

General John J. Pershing saw an American horse and an American rider win the individual competition in the military prize jumping event. Lieut. Col. H. D. Chamberlain, U. S. A., rode Negra, a seven-year-old American mare, over fifteen obstacles in beautiful form, the performance being particularly peasing to General Pershing. The team prize jumping competition was won by Belgians, who were mounted on Irish and English horses.

Lieut. Col. Chamberlain and his mount were fortunate, performing just before the start of a veritable torrent of rain. Both received an ovation from the doughboy grandstand following every jump. General Pershing brought the worst weather the Stadium has as yet seen, for no sooner was he seated than the thunder began, which elicited from the doughboys the remark: "As soon as 'Black Jack' arrives the barrage starts."

Scudder, Spink, and Eby, Americans, qualified for the final in the 800-meter run, Scudder winning the heat in 2:00 3-5, putting out Arnaud, the French record holder, who was badly off form. Masson of New Zealand and Frazer won the other two heats, the former in 2:00 flat and the latter in 2:00 1-5. Atkin, England's sole entry for the 800-meter event, was eliminated by Spink.

In the shotput E. Caughey of Ukiah, Cal.; H. Liversedge of Oakland, Cal., and Wallace Maxfield of Bloomfield, N. J., qualified, with Paoli of France fourth. Caughey's toss was 13.357 meters, which is about 44.08 feet.

ROCKAWAY BLUES WIN.

Defeat Clubmates in Fast Contest by 11¾ to 3¾.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., July 3.—Two fast riding teams of the Rockaway Hunt Club played today for the third leg of the Independence Polo Cups.

Seward Carey, Elliott C. Cowdin, J. Anderson, and J. D. Richards, playing as the Rockaway Blues, won from the Rockaway Whites by a score of goals to 3¾.

Playing on the Whites were, W. T. P. Hazard, E. R. Leonard, C. P. Dixon, and E. W. Leonard. The winners were allowed a 3 goal handicap and scored 8 more, losing ¼ for safety in the seventh chukker. The Whites appeared considerably off in direction, but at times played effective combinations which, if commenced in the first half, would have told a different tale.

THE NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM.

Those truths which, 143 years ago today, the signers of our Declaration of Independence declared to be "self-evident" have now come into such acceptance over the whole face of the earth that millions of our fellowmen, happy in their new-born freedom, will feel that on this Fourth of July they have a right to join, with a fervor all their own, in our expressions of gratitude and rejoicing. Those truths which we sincerely believed to be self-evident, that men have an inalienable right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and that Governments should derive their just power from the consent of the governed, have been an unconscionable time in gaining this broad recognition. But the torch of liberty which we kindled, which we early handed on to the few who were able and willing to accept it and keep it burning, has of late been borne irresistibly forward by the legions of liberty through all the strongholds of stubborn unbelievers. The mighty have been thrown down, the humble raised up, the last of the great military autocrats has been swept or frightened from his seat of power, the thrones have been shattered, the principle of the consent of the governed has been established by the sword, as it had to be, and peoples who through all these years since we won the right to govern ourselves have lived in bondage or oppression, who only a year ago today were wavering between age-long despair and new-born hope, are today taking thought about how best they may create and administer their own governments. It is an Independence Day we share with the whole world.

What it has been worth while to build it is worth while to preserve. We entered the war not only in defense of our own rights and for the protection of our own liberties, which would have been imperiled by the triumph of Germany, but unquestionably because the American people felt profoundly that it was their duty to come to the aid of their sister nations in the hour of their peril. All the consequences of the war could not be foreseen, but when we did foresee that old wrongs would be righted and races in bondage set free, we felt that our taking up arms was doubly justified, and the great mass of Americans now feel that we have duties to perform that have outlasted the war. Some there are among us who take the narrower view, we may say the ignoble view, that having brought Germany to submission we have no further concern with the affairs of Europe; that the new nationalities may shift for themselves; that we, through a false understanding of precepts given to us in remote past time when this was a very different world and we a new nation of uncertain future, may throw off all responsibilities for the welfare of the peoples we have helped to make free. It would be but a sorry honoring of our Independence Day if the American people did not by inward resolve or open expression affirm that their love of liberty is undying, and that their interest in the freedom of men is not too flabby and feeble to span the ocean's breadth.

We still have work to do in the cause of liberty, both at home and abroad. It has its enemies here, those who would destroy the institutions we have created. Now that the heel of authority has been lifted from the enemy propagandists who were so active before we entered the war and afterward, all that venomous brood is astir again, its increasing boldness bespeaks a common understanding and purpose. It has been reinforced by radical groups even more defiant of opinion and authority, with whom there must be a reckoning unmixed with that indulgence we have too long shown toward them.

In that broader field where we must take and hold our place among the defenders of liberty, our duty, our interest, and our inclination make plain the force of action to be taken. In the proposed Treaty or agreement between France, the United States, and Great Britain it is set forth that the United States and the French Republic "are equally animated by a "desire to maintain the peace of the "world"; that "in their view an unprovoked attack by Germany upon France would not only violate the Treaty of Versailles, but in troubling the peace of the nations would involve "inevitably and directly the States of "Europe and indirectly the entire "world." Therefore, Germany is prohibited from preparing for such unprovoked act against France and "the "United States of America shall be "bound to come immediately to her "aid in case of unprovoked act of aggression directed against her by "Germany." This is a wide departure from American tradition and practice. It may well be doubted whether a Senate not of the President's party and so largely moved by hostility to his policies would consent to ratify such a treaty. We are not certain that the American people would approve it, we are by no means certain that such a treaty is necessary.

Germany, for the time being at least, has been made powerless. We have felt that the League of Nations will serve for the protection of France. But we have a deep conviction that the United States by jealously safeguarding those relations of esteem and friendship with France and Great Britain that have been built up during the war, by a continuance of the common understanding that these three great Powers are knit together by ties of interest and affection, may and should put its attitude toward such acts of aggression and menace to the peace of the world so far beyond question that no treaty would be required. The United States, Great Britain, and France, as the three greatest Powers in the League of Nations, can assure peace by their friendship, common understanding, and effort. Nothing can be permitted to shake that friendship and understanding. Evil forces are at work to sow the seeds of discord. The sources from which they have come are altogether un-American, and they are destructive of Americanism. They are odious to every true-hearted American. And this Fourth of July is a highly appropriate occasion for renewing our resolve that between these three great nations there shall be not only perpetual peace but uninterrupted good understanding.

A BLOW AT FREE SPEECH.

It is a shameful confession the Police Department makes when it informs the management of Carnegie Hall that it will be unable to guarantee protection for a meeting of Russians designed to be held there this evening, and therefore advises them to keep the hall dark. These Russians are not Bolsheviki; if they were, we judge from our late experiences that authority would not interfere. Socialists are allowed to hold their meetings in Madison Square Garden and denounce the Government they live under, but opponents of the Bolsheviki cannot have the privilege of holding meetings at which to set before the public their own side of the case. This is not because the police sympathize with the Bolsheviki; it is because they confess themselves incompetent to give protection against disturbers.

No matter what criticisms may have been made of the New York police force, it has always been their boast and the city's pride that they could cope with organized violence. Never before, that we remember, have they retreated before an armed foe. It is true that in 1916 it was requested that an anniversary meeting to be held in memory of the victims of the Lusitania be abandoned, but in that case it was not so much fear of violence as a desire to avoid the stirring up of any ill feeling in this then neutral country, and it has always been understood that the city authorities acted at the request of the Federal Government. In this case no such excuse can be made.

In defense of their action it is said that the authorities have received threats from our local Bolsheviki that bombs would be thrown if the meeting were held. The defense is worse than the act. Consider what it means. It means that at any time in the future, when opponents of Bolshevism desire to express their opinion of it, the Bolsheviki have simply to send a warning letter to the police and the meeting will be called off. Must we infer that any Socialist, Bolshevist, or I. W. W. crowd will be permitted to hold any meetings they desire and curse the Government to their hearts' content, because their opponents will not send any warning letters to the police? Is free speech granted in full measure to the Bolsheviki and denied to their opponents? The only limitation on the freedom of speech allowed to the Bolsheviki is that police stenographers will be there to take down their words, a limitation at which they laugh, for they know how to keep within the technicalities of the law and yet instill poison into every mind that hears them.

It was in no such spirit that the New York police force received the threats of the draft rioters of 1863, the Irish rioters of 1870, or any of the other threats of riot that have been heard in this city from the time of the negro "uprising" in the middle of the eighteenth century. A minority, and no one doubts that the Bolsheviki are a minority, bestraddles the city and issues its orders to the police concerning what meetings can be held and what cannot, and the police obey. Can anybody imagine fearless old TOM ACTON or even WILLIAM S. DEVERY or THOMAS BYRNES meekly taking orders from assassins? What has come over the Police Department?

ANNA HOWARD SHAW.

There passed away on Wednesday a genuine American, with all the qualities which in fiction collect about that name, but which are not so often seen in real life; an American with the measureless patience, the deep and gentle humor, the whimsical and tolerant philosophy, and the dauntless courage, physical as well as moral, which we find most satisfyingly displayed in LINCOLN, of all our heroes. The girl pioneer looking down through a crack in the attic floor at a band of drunken and dangerous Indians rioting in the cabin and waiting for the moment when they might discover her hiding place; the young woman preacher alone in the wilderness with a driver who told her she was at his mercy, a girl whose revolver made him drive sullenly to safety at her order; the somewhat older preacher who fought with unruly sailormen at Cape Cod—what parts ANNA HOWARD SHAW played in an America that went with the passing of the frontier!

As the world has come to know her in the last fifteen years, the years of her national fame, she was a statesman. Her wise guidance of the woman suffrage cause, a guidance which emphatically impressed upon the public mind that neither she nor the cause was responsible for the antics of the mad wing, the so-called militants, probably had as much to do with its triumph as anything that contributed to bring it about. Her spell was not to be evaded. Even in conversation her voice had the indefinable quality which makes the orator; and no one could look into those speaking eyes, or see that majestic head, without being aware that he was in the presence of an unusual human being. Sanity, liberality, cheerfulness, and that humorous patience that one finds exemplified but seldom, except in the case of such a man as BALFOUR, all went to the making of a great American. It is true that she was not born in this country, but she lived all her life among us, and many a native son or daughter is less of an American than she. ANNA HOWARD SHAW lives in the hearts of those who knew her and in those of that far wider circle that came under the magic of her personality and character, even though it were but for an hour.

THE MEXICAN OIL CONTROVERSY.

In a statement made about the oil controversy in Mexico General CÁNDIDO AGUILAR, personal representative of President CARRANZA, says that his Government "has no desire to confiscate the property of the mine owners," and that it is "looking toward a taxation system that will be fair and equal to all, whether they be Mexican or American." But General AGUILAR mars the effect of this assurance of equitable treatment by adding that "the great natural resources belong to the people," and that there will be no desire to disturb the private owner "so long as he works the resources." Private owners of oil lands who are foreigners with a title that antedates the Mexican Constitution of 1917, a title based upon the mining law of Nov. 22, 1884, enacted in accordance with the Constitution of 1857, contend that the oil in such lands does not belong to the people, but to the proprietors of the lands. "Private property," declared the Constitution of 1857, "shall "not be taken without the consent of "the owner except for reasons of "public utility, compensation having "been made." The mining law of 1884 provided that petroleum was "the exclusive property of the owner "of the land."

What the American, British, and French proprietors are now protesting against is a system of taxation that severs "at one stroke," to quote Ambassador's FLETCHER's note of April 2, "the ownership of the petroleum deposits from the ownership "of the surface," and is confiscatory in its nature, the intent apparently being to turn the ownership of the oil back to the Government, which claims under the new Constitution of 1917 that the title to petroleum is in the nation. This Constitution proclaims that "only Mexicans by birth "or naturalization and Mexican companies have the right to acquire "ownership in lands, waters, "or to obtain franchises to develop "mineral fuels in the Republic of Mexico." It has been well said that, "if the principles of Article "27 of the [new] Constitution are "carried out, American companies "lose their titles to petroleum lands "irretrievably, and may not acquire "any rights to oil lands by concessions." The titles would be lost through confiscatory taxation, of which the decree of Feb. 19, opposed by Ambassador FLETCHER, was the first manifestation.

The British Government on April 30, 1918, formally protested against the decree of Feb. 19, maintaining that it was "in open conflict with "laws and contracts in force, according to which considerable investments of British capital have been "made in petroleum-bearing lands "and in the petroleum industry in "Mexico." The note also asserted that it "would be contrary to the "principles of the Mexican Constitution and those of justice to separate "surface rights from subsoil rights "which now belong to those land "owners who have invested capital "in the petroleum-producing zone." General CÁNDIDO AGUILAR, who was then Minister of Foreign Relations, refused to accept "the diplomatic protest from his Britannic Majesty," and referred complaining owners of oil lands to the tribunals of Mexico, "which are always found ready," he said, "to administer justice." These tribunals, however, are subservient to the Carranza Government.

The French Government on May 13, 1918, also lodged a protest in which it was said that "these regulations, "[of the decree,] strict compliance "with which might entail confiscation, rest on principles of law "wholly different from those on "which was based the legislation in "force when their [the oil land owners'] investments in petroleum in "Mexico were made." General AGUILAR in this case merely replied that the interests of French stockholders would be protected. He did not attempt to argue the question or to justify the decree.

Thus three nations, whose citizens own oil lands in Mexico acquired under mining laws enacted to carry out the provisions of the original Article 27 of the Constitution, have protested that the decree of Feb. 17, based upon the new policy of claiming petroleum for the State, threatened confiscation of the property of their citizens. General AGUILAR, in his statement made on Wednesday before sailing for France, spoke of "adjustments" in cases where the Mexican law conflicted with foreign interests. He no longer refers complainants to the courts. His Government has confiscated nothing yet. It has made a step toward confiscation. That step can be retraced. It would be the part of wisdom not to delay "adjustments."

A CUBAN "WHO'S WHO."

The Hispanic Society, which before the war was most popularly known through its exhibitions of SOROLLA, ZULOAGA, and GOYA, now comes forward with an enterprise of a very different character, but thoroughly appropriate to the era of reconstruction. A volume entitled "Cubans of Today" gives brief biographies of two hundred and twenty representative living men and is illustrated by ninety portraits. It is by WILLIAM BELMONT PARKER, whose biography of the poet SILL has taken a high rank among works of its kind, and it is the result of an extended sojourn on the island. This Cuban "Who's Who" is to be followed by similar volumes covering all the Latin-American countries.

On many grounds it is desirable that we become better acquainted with our southern neighbors. The prostration of Europe has diverted an increasing stream of tourists to the American tropics and beyond. The importance of these volumes, however, is commercial. Before the war the United States had a subordinate interest in Latin America. English capital was largely represented, and Germany held a grip in the most important centres which was rapidly strengthening and spreading. Now we have an opportunity which can occur but once. English rivalry will be honest, but none the less vigorous and able. Germany, as is already evident, will take up her campaign where she dropped it in 1914. If there is any change in her methods, it will be to make them more subtle and acute.

The great deficiency of our merchants and bankers has always been in a lack of knowledge of local conditions and men. These publications of the Hispanic Society come at the critical moment and should serve as a real asset in the impending struggle.

THE TREASURY'S YEAR.

Measured by dollars, it is aeons ago that this was a billion-dollar country. Last year its disbursements were $34,508,044,491. But that was so far from reaching the bottom of the till that the Treasury ended the year with a credit balance in the general fund of $1,251,664,827, although in ordinary times the Treasury got along easily with a mere hundred millions, or even half that, of free cash. There are nations which would be glad if their deficits were no greater than our surplus. But that is an old story. Customarily our surpluses trouble us by enticement into extravagance and meretricious appropriations as much as foreign Exchequers are bothered to make both ends meet. One reason why foreign public finance is often better than ours is that it has to be. We begin the Government new year with a gross debt of $25,484,506,160, after a reduction during the last month of the year of $436,645,113. That half billion indicates the Treasury's policy of redeeming certificates before maturity, which over a twelvemonth saves some forty millions of interest.

This year's excess of ordinary disbursements over receipts was $9,789,966,193, but war expenditures were on the full scale less than half that time. Accordingly, it is a moderate estimate that next year's expenditures will be no more than half those of 1919, or, say, about equal to 1918 before we had begun to fight. That has been anticipated by a reduction of taxation already enacted, which is in collision with a proposal for higher tariff taxes. Other taxes are recognized as burdensome, but customs are paid by foreigners for the privilege of entering our market—so protectionists argue. It is a limping argument, but there can be no contention that the customs can be of substantial assistance in meeting the Government's necessities.

Last year's total customs were $184,457,867, against internal revenue of $3,018,783,687. Internal taxes are our main reliance, and must be so particularly when the whole world is in our debt and must pay us in goods if at all. To make that process difficult or costly is not to our main interest. Hereafter we must measure our prosperity by our imports as much as we have heretofore measured it by exports, and we can maintain our exports only by fostering our imports. By another crop year our foreign friends will need less of our foods, and in another year or two there will be a less abnormal demand for our manufactures for their reconstruction needs. As conditions become normal a larger part of our productive capacity will be released for our own use, and the conditions of living will become easier, presumably. At present we are in that state of abnormal prosperity which gives some soberness of thought to estimates of either its continuance or ending. If it should continue too long, our friends abroad will have drained us of goods in exchange for paper of diminishing worth, unless their prosperity shall revive. And if our prosperity should stop too suddenly, we should be submerged in a flood of foods and goods which it would be impossible to consume or to sell. Our affairs were never in stronger or more sober control, and there is little doubt that better years lie ahead, even if less hectic.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Nobody Minded This Task.

Perhaps it was from a laudable desire for having at least one thing cheaper now than it was while the war was on that our Great Ones in Washington decided to restore the two-cent postage rate on letters of ordinary weight. The result, of course, is to give a mild but real thrill of satisfaction to the entire American population, or at least to the large part of it that occasionally writes, stamps, and mails a letter. The pleasure experienced, however, in using a two-cent instead of a three-cent stamp hardly counterbalances the pain that was inflicted at first by the compulsion to use three-cent instead of two-cent stamps.

The explanation of this curious psychological phenomenon or paradox may have a mathematical basis, for while the change from 2 to 3 cents was an advance of 50 per cent., that from 3 cents to 2 is a decrease of only 33 1-3 per cent. But there is another and probably better theory of the public's failure audibly to rejoice over even a small decrease in its daily expenditures. It must have occurred to a good many people that, as taxes go, the one imposed when the postage rates went up could almost be called enjoyable. Certainly it was that in comparison with many—with almost all—of the other new taxes we have to pay nowadays, and it had practically every claim to cheerful toleration that a tax can have. It was largely productive, its collection cost next to nothing, it was widely distributed, and each person's payment was in fairly equitable ratio with his need or inclination to utilize a privilege offered by the Government. About it there was nothing inquisitorial and it involved no changes in established customs—qualities never more appreciated than now.

Post Office Surpluses and Profits.

Yet in spite of the general contentment of the public with higher postage as a means of raising needed revenue, it is from this particular war tax that we are relieved instead of one chosen among at least a dozen others no more or less productive, and felt to be irritating and burdensome by all who pay them.

On general principles, indeed, it is not necessary or even desirable that the Post Office should be a money-making institution. Of it the most reasonably to be expected is that it shall pay its own expenses. A surplus, even when it is only an imaginary surplus, attained in the queer departmental way by ignoring fixed and overhead charges that no private corporation could forget long without running into bankruptcy, has always been taken by the Post Office, properly enough, as something between a license and a command to reduce its rates. These are not ordinary times, however, and in the readjustment of general principles that war expenditures necessitate there would have been nothing wrong in letting the patrons of the mails continue for a while longer to pay the special tax that resulted in what it has pleased the departmental bookkeepers to call a profit of $17,000,000 a year.

That's not much in an era of expenditures by billions, but it did help a little, and its extraction could be called painless with an approach to truth closer than is that of some dentists when they use the same word.

Time to Lift the Bans.

In announcing her abandonment, now that peace has come, or at any rate is in plain sight, of efforts to prevent the presentation here of German plays and operas and the public playing of German music, Mrs. WILLIAM JAY puts herself again in accord with the better as well as the greater part of American sentiment.

It was not with entire satisfaction, even while the war was something of a terror as well as an unmitigated horror to us all, that we approved of drawing national or racial lines in art. Approve of it we did, however, for the circumstances were more than unusual, and German artists, like German scientists, had proved so clearly that they were much more Germans than artists and scientists that it was right and even necessary to treat them in their individual rather than their professional capacities.

They chose to be the enemies of civilization, to justify or deny the enormities committed by the German Government, and to the extent of their ability to work against civilization rather than for it. Not quite all of them were thus guilty or misguided, but the acts of the great majority had put the exceptions under a suspicion that was just because legitimately self-defensive. Instinct, if not reason, insisted that even the works of German masters long dead should for the time being be put under the common ban on all things Teutonic. To do that was absurd, but it was also somehow right, and it was done, though reluctantly.

The crisis is past now and well passed, and German music can again delight the ear without offending the sensibilities that lie deeper. In the letter printed on this page yesterday Mrs. JAY "prayed" that the former friends of German Kultur henceforth would "uphold the principles of freedom, honor, and justice which they now see triumphant and everlasting." The wish expressed is more pious than confident perhaps, but it is one that all can afford to share.

His Caution Was Quite Unnecessary.

Seemingly it was a fear like the one felt by KIPLING's man who saw the two sea serpents that prevented Commander READ, when speaking at the Hotel Commodore dinner, from telling the guests there assembled what the European aviators and airship navigators say they can and will do in the near future. Yet he probably exaggerated the danger to the reputation of his professional brothers as men of truth and sanity, for the public has ceased to regard "impossible" as a safe word to use and it is ready to believe anything about flight and fliers that comes from an authority as high as he is.

Certainly his cautiously brief references to the attainment of a height of 60,000 feet, and of crossing the Atlantic one way in the forenoon and the other way in the afternoon of the same day, will not excite derision or even 'incredulity. Such things might happen tomorrow without filling anybody with real astonishment. Achievements of that sort are not yet become commonplaces, but this generation hears of them calmly and trustingly, and today the "greatest story" that any aviator can tell will be printed in any newspaper that can get it.

Readers have developed strong nerves, and the accomplishment of what used to be impossible they take almost as a matter of course.

NEW YORK REVISITED.

Impressions After an Absence of Fifty Years.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was last in New York in 1869. From what I can see today that must have been when Moses had his last attack of gooseflesh.

Getting into New York today is like getting into a Brooklyn Bridge car at the rush hour.

I have made a circuit of your largest hotels, and have at last found a place to hang from by my toes at one of your smallest hotels.

It consumed the tenth of a baby gnat's eyebrow this side of an hour to purchase a ticket to get out of New York on the morrow.

The Brooklyn Bridge car at rush hours serves as an illustration both ways.

I passed the Biltmore Hotel. A man fell from a window under the roof and was crushed to a jelly at my very feet. He attracted as much attention as a swatted fly.

A clerk in a cigar store where I purchased a weed referred to the city as "Sodom." I found my old-fashioned self apologizing, here and there, from time to time, for some jostle, or what not, without a response.

And yet I am impressed with the splendid citizenship of this town, or metropolis, or whatever you may call it. I should be proud to be one of its citizens. It seems to me the one thing it needs is to be humanized. And what incomparable material you have to work upon!

I am on my distant way to Hawaii and am seeing New York for the last time today. God bless her and prosper her. And may your noble paper long do her honor. I shall feel easier on a pinhead in the midst of an immeasurable cushion, known as the Pacific; but I do not shake the dust of New York from off my feet. I want her to be a metropolis of the new democracy, the new epoch, for which we all pray, of which the world may be proud, and she can be it. Help her to be so.

Smilingly yours—for the old man smiles over New York, and does not imprecate over her, like Jonah.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your clear and comprehensive editorial article in today's TIMES under the heading "Their Only Way Out" should be a warning to all United States Senators, especially the Republicans.

Instead of using their spare time during the present short vacation holding meetings where they smile upon an audience that hisses our splendid President, and for which meeting they deserve a reprimand from every true American citizen, they could use their time to much better advantage pondering upon ways and means of curbing all profiteers in order to reduce the outrageously high cost of living, and thereby receive the everlasting gratitude of all the people. The Republican Party has reached the end of the trail. I say this in all sincerity as a stanch Republican of many years' standing, and I pray that all true Republicans will not be misguided by these prejudiced Senators.

NAMES.

(A ship launched in America is named Quistconck.)

The sea winds whisper, soft and low,
names beautiful and sweet,
Of white-towered ships whose loveliness
the Dawn God rushed to greet—Tall ships with beauty burning high, sea
queens with pride afire,
Their names are borne upon the winds to the islands of desire:
*Queen of the Seas, White Wings, Sea
Foam, Heartsease,* and Halcyon.
Their music and their beauty now with
Helen's lure are one,
And through the old, sweet cadences the roaring hammers sing:
"Way there, way there, O futile ghosts, for the Quistconck's clattering."

The rainbow dreams of old Romance still drift upon the seas,
And names of old endeavor float in whisp'ring symphonies:
Rose, Pelican, and Golden Hind, Mayflower and Morning Star.
Hermione and Waterwitch, Day Dream and Castlebar.
Snow-white were Ariadne's wings, a cloud upon the blue,
Adventure shone upon the flag the *Lady
Jocelyn* flew.
Their names are perfumes in the dusk
that lead in memories,
Sweet bells that slowly, softly chime the charm of all the seas;
But through the twilight's magic breaks the racking siren's call—
"Quistconck! Quistconck! Conck-Conck-Conck-Conck!" in Beauty's funeral!

REINSCH LAUDS CONSORTIUM

Joint Loan Plan Will Help China, Says Our Minister.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, July 3.—While Chinese official opinion is silent regarding the new consortium, the Japanese press in China violently attacks it, asserting that it is tantamount to the partition of China's remaining rights and recognition of the spheres of influence already established in China.

The American Minister, when interviewed concerning these attacks, stated that the consortium was the outcome of efforts of friendly nations to find a sound basis for financing China, which would assure abundant financial support to the Chinese Government on fair terms and relieve the Government of the necessity of contracting unfavorable loans.

PEKING, July 3, (Associated Press.) Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, American Minister to China, in explaining the consortium, said:

"The agreement involves no monopoly. Each national group is to include every institution interested in Chinese finance. Other nations interested in China will be admitted when they have the necessary capital strength. As the consortium unifies foreign interests in China, it will arrest the progressive partition of China through the growth of local spheres of influence. The Chinese Government, with the unified support of the great powers, will be strengthened in every function it exercises."

FOR CLASSICAL EDUCATION.

Educators at Milwaukee Told It Is Required by Youth of Nation.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 3.—The American Classical League, holding its sessions in conjunction with the National Education Association, wound up its business today. All the speakers urged the continuance of the classical languages. Charles M. Schwab sent the following letter:

"In reply to your inquiry, it gives me pleasure to say that I am an earnest advocate of cultural and classical education for our young men of America. It has always been accepted as a prerequisite for the training of men entering what have been termed in the past 'the learned professions,' divinity, law, and medicine. Today our leading engineers very generally believe that the thorough educational training of an engineer calls for a basic foundation of broad study on which to erect technical education.

"I personally have always believed that it was essential for successful business that a man be possessed of sentiment, love of music, and an appreciation of the beautiful things of life, and we know that this can only be found in a man who has a cultural and classical education as a foundation.

"Nothing can better emphasize this than the remark that dear old Uncle John Fritz, the great engineer, a pioneer and a lifelong leader in the development of our iron and steel industry, made to a friend when he said that if he had a boy he would wish him to study Greek and Latin as a part of his education. A remarkable statement, coming from a self-educated man, but one recognized as a leader in the promotion and support of thorough education and training of our young men."

Josephine Corliss Preston, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Olympia, Wash., was nominated without opposition for President of the National Education Association by the Nominating Committee today. Her election tomorrow seems assured.

George D. Strayer will become First Vice-President by virtue of his retirement from the Presidency. Vice-Presidents nominated are William H. Davidson, Pittsburgh, Penn.; Sallie Hill, Denver, Col.; J. H. McConnell, St. Paul; Anna Webb Blanton, Austin, Texas; J. A. C. Chandler, Williamsburg, Va.; Susan N. Dorsey, Los Angeles; L. D. Nobry, Carnet, Kan.; W. S. Booth, Springfield, Ill.; May Trumpter, Helena, Mont., and T. J. Knapp, Highland Park, Mich. A. J. Matthews, Temple, Ariz., was renominated for Treasurer.

WOULD EXCHANGE EDITORS.

James Keeley Has Plan to Strengthen Anglo-American Relations.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 3.—An exchange of representatives of the press between the United States and Great Britain was advocated today by James Keeley, Chicago editor, as a means of bringing about "what might be termed a moral partnership" between the two countries. Within a week publicity is to be given to this proposition in England, Mr. Keeley announced.

"At a banquet in London last Summer, attended by Sir George Riddle, editor of The News of the World and President of the British Newspaper Proprietors' Association, I suggested," said Mr. Keeley, "that leading English newspapers each send a representative to America to work in an American newspaper office, and that American newspapers send men to England to engage in newspaper work there.

"The men to be sent should be practical newspaper men. The presence in a newspaper office of a man from the other side, a man who is thoroughly familiar with American or British conditions, as the case may be, would tend to accuracy and the avoidance of grotesque errors, geographical and personal."

Mr. Keeley said he thought there were at least twelve newspapers in the United States that would be willing to co-operate in carrying out his plan, and that a like number of British newspapers would send men to America once the first steps toward materializing the plan had been taken.

Seeks Aldermanic Presidency.

Ex-Senator William M. Bennett, who was defeated when he ran for Mayor on the Republican ticket against Mayor Hylan two years ago, made it known yesterday that he would enter the Republican primaries and seek the nomination for President of the Aldermanic Board. He is the first Republican to enter the race against Aldermanic President Herbert L. Moran, who is slated for renomination by the Democrats. Mr. Bennett has been a candidate for Governor, Lieutenant Governor and various other offices, but has always been defeated except when seeking legislative office. Designating petitions are already being circulated for Mr. Bennett in Republican district club houses.

Independence League to Have Ticket

The Independence League, or what remains of it, in Brooklyn will place a ticket of its own for county officers in the field next Fall, according to a statement made yesterday by Commissioner of Records Edmund O'Connor of Kings County. His announcement was taken by politicians as an answer to the local Republican organization, which plans to have Mr. O'Connor's office legislated out of existence and its functions transferred to that of the County Register. Mr. O'Connor aims to be the Independence League candidate for Register, and it was said that Edward T. O'Loughlin, who is looked upon as the league leader in Brooklyn, would probably be the nominee for Sheriff.

To Oppose Socialist Aldermn.

At a conference of Republican and Democratic leaders in the Fifty-ninth Aldermanic District, Brooklyn, last night it was decided to unite on a candidate for Alderman to oppose the present Alderman, Bernard Wolf, Socialist, for re-election. The candidate agreed upon is Jacob Gralla, a lawyer, living at 302 Osborne Street. He is a Democrat, and had previously run for Alderman.

MAYOR DENIES LIBEL IN SCHIEFFELIN SUIT

Declares That Charges Against Drugmaker Were Privileged and Justified.

ACTION IS FOR $100,000

Executive Says Letter to Dr. Copeland Was in the Discharge of His Duty.

Mayor Hylan filed his answer in the Supreme Court yesterday to the $100,000 suit brought by William Jay Schieffelin, to recover damages for libel in letters written to Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland April 15. The letters made accusations against Mr. Schieffelin as head of the drug firm of Schieffelin & Company, in connection with the sale of narcotics. The Mayor admits the allegations,—contends his charges were justified, and asks that the complaint be dismissed. He claims "an absolute privileged occasion for the utterance of the words." In writing the letter, "and in carrying on or directing to be carried on an investigation into the increase of drug addiction and the proper methods to cope with such evils and protect the public," he acted in his official capacity and "the performance of his official duty as such Mayor," he says.

The Mayor says it is his duty "to be vigilant in causing the ordinances of the city and the laws of the State to be enforced" and to confer with heads of the city departments "in protecting and conserving the interests of the city and of the people thereof."

He says that on April 8 he directed the Municipal Civil Service Commission to investigate the Department of Health, and that the Commission, in conjunction with the Commissioner of Accounts, took testimony and received evidence in relation to the various civil service positions in the department, during which Dr. Amster resigned as Health Commissioner and Doctor Copeland was named to succeed him.

The Mayor speaks of an "alarming increase in the number of drug addicts in the country," and says that the hospitals of the city have been treating hundreds of young men and women daily for the drug habit. The Mayor tells of the result of this investigation, and attaches a copy of the report to his answer. He says his letter to Dr. Copeland was "placed in a sealed envelope, given to a special messenger and personally to such Commissioner of Health." Its transmittal, he contends, was in the discharge of his duty, "and was for the sole purpose of officially bringing to the attention of the Commissioner the facts contained therein." He says the letter was written without malice.

As a second defense, the Mayor claims a "qualified privileged occasion" for the utterances in his letter. He says it was written in good faith, and in the belief that statements in it were true. He also argues justification of the letter. He says "on information and belief," that "up to the year 1909 Schieffelin & Company manufactured large quantities of cocaine in its plant in the Bronx, and thereafter Schieffelin & Company have been large purchasers of and dealers in narcotic drugs." He annexes a list of sales by the company, giving the names of drug store proprietors who, he says, had been convicted for illegal handling of narcotics.

The answer also contains a list of drug addicts, arrested and convicted, who bought their supply from the drug stores purchasing from Schieffelin & Company. The Mayor attaches a communication of Schieffelin & Company to the Board of Health, dated February 6, 1918, transmitting 500 purchase order blanks made by the Schieffelin concern of different narcotic drugs, which the Mayor says should have been filed "forthwith," but which, he alleges, were delivered to the Department of Health from one to thirty days after the dates of the orders. He says this was a violation of the law.

On November 27, 1918, the Mayor says, Schieffelin & Company pleaded guilty in the United States District Court to three informations for violations of the insecticide law of 1910. He makes these pleas a part of his answer.

The Mayor says that at the Department of Health narcotic clinic in Worth Street, records are kept in relation to 1886 cases of drug addicts who have received treatment. He says:

"It appears that agents or runners of certain retail druggists voluntarily gave doses or injections of narcotics to those willing to accept the same, and on the recipients becoming addicts, referred them to the druggists where narcotics could be purchased, that said druggists on application made for narcotics gave the names of physicians who would make out necessary prescriptions for the legal sale of the narcotics under the guise of doctors' prescriptions.

"The records of the Police Department show the arrests that have been made by the narcotic squad for violation of the narcotic law. The history of such addicts arrested shows that many have previous criminal records, ranging from the highest to the lowest crimes."

The reference to the violation of the insecticide law shows that the company was accused of misbranding insecticides.

STRIKE FOR CHEAPER LIVING

Italians Quit Work in Several Towns to Show Sentiment.

ROME, July 1, (Associated Press.)—A general strike to protest against the high cost of living has been declared at Faenza, Ancona and other towns in the Romagna districts of Central Italy in sympathy with the movement at Forli, where many shops were destroyed.

In the Romagna district Socialist Republican parties are said to be in virtual control of the local administrations. It was there that the revolutionary Republican movement took place in June, 1914. King Victor Emmanuel visited that district several months ago and was received cordially everywhere, especially by the Republican Mayor, Bellini, at Forli.

The strike at Ancona is complete, it is said, and aggravates the serious conditions due to insufficient food supplies.

Military measures have been taken to insure order at Ancona which is regarded as the centre of the anarchistic movement in Italy.

BRITISH TO DEPORT LINCOLN

Ex-M. P., Self-Confessed Spy, Was Caught Here.

LONDON, July 3.—Ignatius Tribich Lincoln, former member of Parliament, who has been in prison here since 1916 as a self-confessed spy, will soon be deported to Hungary.

Ignatius T. Lincoln, formerly an Austrian subject but later a naturalized Englishman, was arrested in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Aug. 4, 1915, on a charge of forgery preferred by the British Consul in New York. After his arrest he declared he was a German spy and that England wanted to try him for that. At that time the United States and Germany were not at war, and the case proved troublesome to the Federal authorities.

His extradition on the charge of forgery was ordered by the United States District Court but Lincoln tried to obtain liberty by habeas corpus. This was later denied, but Lincoln escaped from a United States Deputy Marshal on Jan. 15, 1916, remaining at liberty for over a month. He was deported on May 27, 1916. Following his arrival in London, he was tried for forgery and was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

140 IN RHINE ARMY SEEK GERMAN BRIDES

MUST AWAIT SENATE ACTION

Liggett Announces That Anti-Fraternization Rule Holds Until Treaty Is Ratfied.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, July 2.—The American military authorities here have received from 140 American soldiers and officers applications for permission to marry German girls. One German girl yesterday applied for the permission, saying that the officer concerned was too bashful.

The total of these applications is expected to be swelled materially as soon as the anti-fraternization military rule is taken off and assurance is given that evidence of violation of the rule will not work retroactively.

While ever since the Americans have been here it has been against the military rule to associate with German girls, it was known all along that the rule was being broken, but it was also realized that strict enforcement of it, especially in cases where Americans were billeted in German homes, was impossible.

The military authorities have taken no action on the applications, which were made under the apprehension that the anti-fraternization rule was off. No action is probable against the men or officers who are serious, and it is considered likely that arrangements will be made by which they may marry German girls when the peace status is definitely established.

Rank From Major To Private.

The rank of those who wish to marry German girls ranges from buck private to major.

Many here thought that the war was over when peace was signed. Among them were the fräuleins and their American sweethearts. They made the mistake of not finding out what General Liggett, commanding the army here, thought.

The first two or three applications for permission to marry did not attract much attention, but when the total reached and passed the hundred mark yesterday General Liggett decided that the time had come to say something. Accordingly, this morning's issue of the army newspaper carries a statement from the General that the war will be over when the Senate ratifies the treaty and not before. He further specified that all rules and regulations would remain in force until the American Army evacuated the zone it now occupies.

To say that this announcement caused a matrimonial stock slump is putting it far too mildly. All those soldiers and fräuleins have not only had their fond hopes smashed but have gone on record as admitting violation of the anti-fraternization law. For this, officers and men have been severely punished heretofore and German women have felt the heavy hand of authority.

General Liggett makes no statement on the subject other than his firm decree, but it is considered a good guess that the evidence will not be used against the officers and men involved to convict them of violating the regulations. At the same time, that is not sure; wherefore there is considerable uncertainty of spirit in our midst.

It is very unlikely that any of the proposed marriages will take place while the American army stays on the Rhine. It is considered here that it may be a matter of months before the Senate ratifies the treaty, and this means that the army expects to be away from the Rhine before those months have passed.

May Come to America to Marry.

Perhaps some of the German girls will be able to go to America and there marry their chosen soldiers. Perhaps many of the proposed marriages will never be celebrated. I know that some higher officers believe that many of the Americans will change their minds in the time they will have to think things over. Some of these affairs are deeply serious. Others are not such.

The situation is difficult to deal with. It reveals that while the M. P.'s were successful in preventing street and cafe flirtations they did not prevent much more serious affairs. The purpose of the anti-fraternization rule was to prevent our men from becoming pro-German, and certainly an engagement of marriage is fraught with more danger in this respect than an evening's wine party.

There is another interesting angle to the affair. When the Americans first came here, in fact, before they got here, German elders and especially priests warned German girls against associating with the Americans, and accompanied their warnings with dire threats. Germans were told that pictures of all girls who associated with Americans were being collected and would be published in the local newspapers after the Americans went away. German physicians also joined in the warning.

All this has amounted to nothing. In the past two days I have seen a number of German girls stop Americans on the street and ask that they go for promenades, saying that it was no longer "verboten."

There is reason to believe that most of the engagements which are so much discussed have the full approval of the German parents. I know of cases where the mothers of men involved have corresponded with the mothers of German girls, both approving the proposed marriages.

I understand that some officers intend to go to men engaged to German girls and talk over matters, calling their attention to a possible lack of cordial receptions to German wives when they get back home, and using other arguments along that line.

It should be mentioned that the men composing the army of occupation did the lion's share of the fighting. Perhaps those who have German sweethearts feel that if they see fit to forgive the enemy to that extent the rest of the 100,000,000 Americans should not bother about it. In the meanwhile they hope that the Senators will hurry on the treaty.

WOOD URGES CONTROL OF WAR MAKING HERE

Special to The New York Times.

CROOKSTON, Minn., July 3.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood, in an address here last night in connection with the Ninth Congressional District home-coming celebration, said that American soldiers would not fight at the orders of a European nation or a group of nations, and that the red flag must be stamped out in the United States.

General Wood presented a Congressional medal of honor to Mrs. G. H. Dale of Linas, Minn. The medal was awarded posthumously to her brother, Nels T. Wold, who was killed in action in advance of his company while attacking German machine-gun nests. He had captured eleven prisoners single-handed, and later saved the life of one of his comrades.

In conferring the medal General Wood stated that "every man returning from France and the training camps should be welcomed with a job." The uniform of the men, he held, was entitled to the same respect as the vestments of the clergy.

"There is only one flag here, and that is our flag," he said. "There is no room here for the red flag. Kill it wherever you see it. It is the enemy. It floats where mobs rule."

Continuing, he said:

"America has a strong national spirit and Americans will not go to war under a group of nations, but under the mandate of our own law.

"The spirit of the training camp has brought out very forcibly the desirability of having one language and that language should be the language of the Declaration of Independence, of the Constitution, of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Cleveland and Roosevelt.

"These are serious times. We should hold on to the Constitution of the United States and stand with our feet on the ground and our eyes on God. Do not listen with too much seriousness to dreams. We believe that arbitration and the council table will delay war, but we do not want it to affect the policies we stand for."

General Wood said that America should not forget the debt she owed to France or England. France, he said, suffered 6,000,000 casualties, and England did not stay neutral, but stepped in at the beginning and fought.

"Let us hold together," he urged, "and forget our little differences, but remember the big thing which helped us win this war."

He said that labor and capital must work together to meet after-war problems.

SEAMEN TURN TO HURLEY.

Appeal Sent as Conference Here Fails to Win Union Plea.

No agreement was reached yesterday between leaders of the various marine unions and R. B. Stevens, representing the United States Shipping Board, in the matter of giving preference to American seamen on ships flying the American Board and private owners, as a step flag.

Following the conferences, the union men gave out a letter that they have sent to Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the Shipping Board, in which they lay their entire case before him. The letter is signed by John H. Pruett, President of the Association of Master Mates and Pilots; William S. Brown, President of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, and Andrew Furuseth, President of the Seamen's Union of America.

The letter goes into details of the attempts to bring about a settlement of the question and concludes:

"If the American Steamship Association shall agree to give preference to Americans first, and to the membership of the Unions second, we hold ourselves in readiness to meet again."

AUTO PLUNGES OVER BANK.

New York Woman Killed, Four Persons Hurt Near Camp Columbia.

MORRIS, Conn., July 3.—Mrs. Eda Arkush, 65, of New York City, was fatally hurt in the upset of an automobile today, and Edward Meagher, an instructor at Camp Columbia, and Miss Dorothy Langdon, both of that city, were injured. Mrs. Frank McIndoe, daughter of Mrs. Arkush, who was driving, and Murray Saunders, a student at Camp Columbia, received contusions.

The party was returning from an entertainment at Camp Columbia to its stopping place, during the night. The machine skidded in a sandy place and toppled over an 18-foot bank to a dry culvert. All were pinned under the machine for several hours until others passing, hearing cries, extricated them. Mrs. Arkush died later. The body was sent to Greenwood Cemetery for interment.

Reception to Minister from Siam.

About four hundred guests attended the reception which Mr. and Mrs. George Pratt Ingersoll gave yesterday afternoon at Ingleside, their home at Ridgefield, Conn., for the Minister from Siam, Phya Prasha Karavongse. Mr. Ingersoll during the afternoon proposed a toast to the King of Siam, and when it had been drunk, the health of President Wilson was proposed by the Siamese Minister. Mr. Ingersoll was formerly United States Minister to Siam, returning recently from his post.

Wed by Justice in Port Chester.

Driving up to the Port Chester, N. Y., Town Hall in a touring car, Miss Anne L. Mayer, daughter of Robert Mayer of Kearny, N. J., and Cosby Ingraham, son of Charles L. Ingraham of Newark, N. J., were married yesterday by Justice of the Peace Evans Ward. Mr. Ingraham returned a week ago after seventeen months' service in France with the First Air Service Machinist Regiment. The bride for four years was the assistant to the Superintendent of the United Hospital at Port Chester. Witnesses to their marriage included the Town Clerk, Charles Darby, and Miss Ruth Ensign of Poultney, Vt., a friend of the bride.

Miss Fenn to Wed Charles P. Siedler

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fenn, of 316 West Ninetieth Street and Bay Head, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Fenn, to Charles Parker Siedler, son of Charles Siedler of Bloomfield, N. J. Mr. Siedler returned recently from France, where he served first with the 42d Division and later, as Second Lieutenant, with the 77th Division. He is a graduate of Princeton, class of '15.

Taylor-Kalt Engagement.

Mrs. George W. K. Taylor of 890 Park Place, Brooklyn, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Anna Cornelia Taylor, to Byrson Francis Kalt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Kalt of 124 East Sixty-fourth Street. Mr. Kalt, who recently received his discharge from the army, served in the Engine Reserve Corps as an authority on aircraft, lumber, and construction. His brother, Harold Leslie Kalt, was married on June 21 to Miss Helen Dirksen Decker of Detroit, Mich, at Rye, N. Y.

PEACE APPEAL LAST WORK OF DR. SHAW

FOR SAKE OF HUMANITY

Private Funeral Services in Moylan, Penn., Tomorrow, and Body to be Cremated—Hundreds of Tributes.

There was received at the office here of the League to Enforce Peace on Tuesday the last written message of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw. The manuscript, much of it in Dr. Shaw's handwriting, is an appeal to the women of the country for the League of Nations. Dr. Shaw was a member of the National Executive Committee of the League and one of the first women elected to office in that organization.

In the manuscript received here Dr. Shaw said:

"Everybody must die some time; and it does not make as much difference, perhaps, as to the number of days we live as it does to the manner in which we live the days we do live."

Dr. Shaw's statement, which probably represents her last work before the relapse which caused her death on Wednesday, is entitled, "What the War Meant to Women." In it she makes an impassioned plea for the establishment of a League of Nations for permanent peace and calls upon the women in the United States to use all their influence to bring about the ratification of the League covenant. Following are some of Dr. Shaw's most striking sentences:

"We know that men are ready to die in war; but there are a great many things harder than to die. There are some things that are worth a great deal more than life, and one thing which was worth more than life to the men who went out and laid down their lives for the countries was not to leave a dishonored nation, a nation unworthy of the civilization of our time, a nation which had no heart to feel and no understanding to realize the conditions of intimate association between nation and nation and the obligation which one nation has to care for and sympathize with another.

"Want Peace Now and Forever."

"While Mr. Wilson said we want nothing out of the war, I said in my own heart: 'It may be that we want nothing material out of the war, but, oh, we want the biggest thing out of this war that has ever come to the world. We want peace now and peace forever.'

"If we cannot get that peace out of this war, what hope is there that it will ever come to humanity? Was there ever such a chance offered to the world before? Was there ever a time when the peoples of all nations looked toward America as they are looking today, because of our unselfishness in our dealings with them during the war?

"The treaty of peace which has been submitted to the Germans I think is the most marvelous document in the world, and I have been wondering how many hundred men it took to think up all the demands they put into that peace pact.

"We must look facts in the face. All humanity is one. The world is one. And no nation can suffer unless all nations suffer. No nation can prosper without all nations prospering. We have got to take facts as they are and we have got to find out the best thing we can have. The best thing that has been given us and the only thing we have before us is this League of Nations. We have no other League of Nations. We have only this one. We must take this one or no one can tell what will come. We have no midway point. We have no purgatory. We have to choose either heaven or hell. We must take it or we must reject it.

"Oh, men, we women, the mothers of the race, have given everything, have suffered everything, have sacrificed everything, and we come to you now and say, 'The time has come when we will no longer sit quietly by and bear and rear sons to die at the will of a few men. We will not endure it! We demand that either you shall do something to prevent war or that we shall be permitted to try to do something ourselves.'

"To you men we look for support. We look for your support back of your Senators, and from this day until the day when the League of Nations is accepted and ratified by the Senate of the United States, it should be the duty of every man and every woman to see to it that the Senators from their State know the will of the people."

Official Funeral Delegation.

The official delegation of the National Woman Suffrage Association which will attend the funeral of Dr. Anna H. Shaw, former honorary President, was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the association at 171 Madison Avenue. The delegation is Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President; Mrs. Frank J. Shuler, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, Treasurer; Miss Esther A. Ogden of the Board of Directors, and Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, writer of historical works on woman suffrage.

The following tribute to the life and work of Dr. Shaw was made public yesterday by the Suffrage Association officials:

"For the dire public and personal loss that has befallen us in the death of Dr. Shaw we find consolation in the reflection that at least death did not overtake her until she had won her fight. The suffrage amendment has been passed, and State by State its ratification is being completed. There are no words to measure the part which Dr. Shaw played in this monumental victory."

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—Funeral services for Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the suffrage leader, who died last night, will be held at her late home in Moylan, Penn., near this city, at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The services will be private with only a few close friends and relatives present. Memorial services probably will be held later at Washington and New York. In consideration of Dr. Shaw's oft-repeated request, her body will be cremated.

Hundreds of telegrams paying tribute to the memory of Dr. Shaw were received at her home today. One of them was from Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, and read as follows:

"The world is infinitely poorer by the death of so great and good a woman."

Mrs. Helen Gardner of Washington telegraphed: "I am saddened beyond words. Have had a wireless from President Wilson."

A blanket of roses was received from the National American Woman Suffrage Association, of which Dr. Shaw was the Honorary President.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 3.—Tribute to the memory of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who served during the war as head of the women's division of the United States Council of National Defense, was paid today by Grosvenor Clarkson, Director of the Council.

"I desire officially to pay tribute to the passing of Dr. Shaw," said Mr. Clarkson. "Aside from her epic contribution to the cause of progressive American womanhood, it is in no sense perfunctory to say that, whether in Washington organizing and directing the 18,000 units of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense or with indomitable courage and power of purpose going up and down the country pleading great public causes relating to the war, this woman of 70 years was an inspiration to all of us."

ARMY'S SURPLUS FOOD OFFERED TO PUBLIC

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A radical step toward reduction in the high cost of living was announced today by the War Department, when it authorized the statement that surplus food supplies held by the army in this country would be made available for sale to the citizens of various cities at 20 per cent. below the prices paid for them by the Government. The goods will include canned corn, peas, baked beans, stringless beans, and tomatoes, bacon in cans and crates, roast beef, corned beef, and corned beef hash.

The plan contemplates the assignment of food in carload lots to various municipalities which may apply for it and undertake to sell and distribute it. The Government would not look for reimbursement from the municipalities until ten days after the goods have been delivered. The idea of this is to obviate the necessity of using city funds or privately obtained donations for the purpose of buying the food from the Government before distributing it, but to enable the various cities to first collect on sales to consumers and then pay the Government. As the War Department's facilities for preparing these goods for shipment are limited, the minimum supply which a municipality will be permitted to purchase will be a carload lot. The War Department will not permit a return of any unsold stocks contracted for by a municipality.

Municipalities interested in this offer are invited to open negotiations with the War Department by communicating with the Surplus Property Officer at the nearest of the zone supply offices, which are located in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newport News, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Fort Sam Houston, El Paso, Omaha, and San Francisco.

TURKISH CABINET SPLIT.

Minister of Interior, at Odds with War Minister, Resigns.

PARIS, July 3, (Associated Press.)—Ali Kemal Bey, Turkish Minister of the Interior, has resigned because of differences with the Minister of War, according to a dispatch received in official quarters here today.

Kemal Bey explained that the Minister of War and his staff were taking a strongly Nationalist position, with which he could not agree.

REBUFF BERLIN STRIKERS.

Street Railway Officials Refuse to Confer with Them.

BERLIN, July 2, (Associated Press.)—Efforts to arrange a conference between the striking street car workers and the Directors of the employing companies were unsuccessful up to 6 o'clock tonight. The company representatives refused to meet the men.

The strike of the railway workers, which was renewed to a certain extent, has now been definitely settled, it is announced. Traffic on the belt lines and the suburban roads is expected to be resumed on Thursday. Meantime large motor trucks are being placed at the disposal of the public by the Government.

BOSTON WRITERS TO STRIKE

Reporters and Copy Readers Want More Pay and Union Recognition.

BOSTON, July 3.—The Newspaper Writers' Union of this city voted unanimously today to go on strike unless its demands for wage increases and recognition of the union are granted.

A committee which has conferred with the publishers was authorized to set the date for the strike. The publishers will be notified of the strike vote on Saturday.

The demands are for a minimum wage of $38 a week for reporters and $45 a week for copy readers. It is asserted that the demand for recognition of the union has been refused.

The union is a subsidiary of the International Typographical Union, which has granted strike sanction to it. It claims a membership from seven newspapers of 180 men and women out of a total of 210 in the city.

TELLS OF POLAND'S NEED OF RELIEF

Investigator for American Committee Sees Demand for Occupational Restoration.

REQUIRE MORE THAN FOOD

Explains That the Main Problem Is Giving the People Another Start as Producers.

Jacob Billikopf, who returned from Poland several days ago as a personal investigator for Felix M. Warburg and other members of the American Jewish relief committees and associated bodies, said yesterday that feeding the 3,000,000 starving Jews in Poland, though essential, will not go far toward restoring them to their normal condition until measures are taken to return these people to their former occupations in so far as that is possible.

"American Jews who desire to aid their co-religionists in Poland must do more than feed them," he said. "We are spending $1,000,000 a month to feed them, but that is not enough. It is only deepening their problem of poverty. The American people must assist them in establishing loan agencies, in supplying them with building materials and shops, in fact, to give them another start in the world."

In an interview at the headquarters of the American Jewish Relief Committee, 15 East Fortieth Street, Mr. Billikopf told a story of the suffering of the Jews in Poland, where he spent six weeks. He visited Warsaw, Lublin, Lemberg, Cracow, Vilna and a large number of the smaller communities and obtained an idea of the urban and suburban conditions. Speaking of the conditions in Vilna, he said they were typical of conditions in the other sections. Vilna had been taken by the Germans, later occupied by the Bolsheviki and then retaken by the Poles.

During the war, he said, the Jewish population of 80,000 in Vilna was reduced to 45,000. Some of the people left before the German occupation, but the depletion was in a large measure due to deaths caused from typhus and starvation. In preparing a budget as to the needs of the 45,000 Jews, he said the starting point was made from the conditions as they existed. The figures showed that 20,000 inhabitants were receiving relief that is barely enough to keep them alive.

Urges Constructive Relief.

The monthly budget in Vilna, as made up after conference with the leaders in the town, showed that 1,800,000 marks would have to be spent in supplying just the elementary necessities. By assessing those that were able to pay 40 marks each it was found that the town could furnish but 100,000 marks, and the remainder would have to come from relief organizations. If large sums are not raised for constructive relief the problem will be a perpetual one, in the opinion of Mr. Billikopf.

Boris Bogen, a member of the American Jewish Relief Committee, is due here in about a month with a complete program on which he has been working for a long time. It is expected that the beginning of the drive for constructive relief will date from the return of Dr. Bogen, who has gone over the ground thoroughly and who will bring back with him a comprehensive plan of operation.

Just before he left the Jewish Relief Committee had set up milk stations where 20,000 glasses of milk were distributed daily. The soup kitchens are feeding about the same number. In the food lines Mr. Billikopf saw from 1,000 to 1,200 men and women who before the war were self-respecting persons who did not know the meaning of dire poverty. Mothers in the milk line carried babies who seemed to be a year or two old and who were really four or five years old, but unable to walk because of starvation. All the orphanages are overcrowded. Thousands of children are being sent to the country every week in connection with the fresh air work of the organization.

Motoring out to the Polish-Bolshevist front, Mr. Billikopf said that he found between the two lines of the armies several thousand women and children unable to reach either territory. The women were living on soup prepared from grass. Nurses and food were sent to their aid just before he left.

In an orphanage at Vilna, he said that he saw a group of sixty or seventy children squinting and blinking their eyes. The physicians informed him that they were suffering from what the Germans had called "huhner krankheit" or "hen sickness." He explained that lack of food resulted in partial blindness for the children, that they were hardly able to see during the daytime, but were able to see to a greater extent at night. The physicians hope that proper diet will restore the children to normal condition. The equipment of the hospitals in Poland is bad, he said.

Belgium Honors New Yorkers.

Two New Yorkers were decorated yesterday by King Albert of Belgium. Henry Clews was informed by the Belgian Legation, Washington, that the King had made him an Officer in the Order of Leopold II, and official announcement was made that the King had bestowed the Cross and Ribbon of a Knight of the Order of the Crown upon George T. Wilson, a Vice President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Belgium Honors Ex-Senator Lewis.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—King Albert of Belgium has bestowed the dignity of Grand Officer in the Order of the Crown upon former United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois in appreciation of Mr. Lewis's "devotion to the cause of Belgium."

Italian Socialists Fight Treaty.

According to a report from Rome, received in Berne on May 30 and relayed to the Münchener Post, the forty-odd Deputies composing the regular Socialist Party group in the Italian Chamber unanimously resolved, at a special meeting, to oppose the ratification of the Peace Treaty and to ask all the Socialist Parliamentary groups of the world to do likewise, and to demand that the treaty be submitted to the voters at the next elections.

Missouri Ratifies Suffrage.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 3.—The Missouri Legislature today ratified the Federal Suffrage Amendment when the Senate, concurring in the action of the House yesterday, passed the adopting resolution by a vote of 28 to 3.

Missouri is the eleventh State to ratify the amendment. Indorsement by twenty-five more States is required to make the amendment operative.

Theodore P. Shonts Slightly Better.

Dr. J. Bentley Squier, the physician of Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, said last night that Mr. Shonts showed slight improvement yesterday, although his condition remained serious. Mr. Shonts has been ill at his home, 930 Park Avenue, for more than a month.

Alexander W. Walters.

Alexander W. Walters, wholesale fruit merchant, and Past Master of Corinthian Lodge, F. & A. M., died at his office yesterday at the age of 50. He was High Priest of the Orient Chapter, No. 138; Commander of Damascus Commandery, No. 58; High Priest in the Council of the Princes of Jerusalem, A. R. S. R., and a member of Kismet Temple, Mystic Shrine. He also belonged to the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks. He was born in Montreal, Canada, and was educated in McGill University there. His residence was at 228 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn.

'REPUBLIC' NOT RECOGNIZED

Boston Legislators Explain Invitation to de Valera.

BOSTON, July 3.—Explanations of the attitude of the Legislature toward Eamonn de Valera on his recent visit to this city followed a question of personal privilege raised in the Senate today. An informal discussion indicated that there had been a disposition in both branches to honor the distinguished guest without committing an official impropriety in recognizing a Government not officially recognized by the National Government.

Last week the House invited Mr. de Valera to address that body in an order which spoke of him as "the zealous and enthusiastic representative of the Irish people."

It was said in the Senate today that the identical wording was used in referring to Mr. de Valera in the order of invitation introduced in the Senate and which failed of action because President McKnight objected to immediate consideration. Mr. McKnight's friends said today that he and they understood that the order spoke of "The President of Ireland," and that this was the sole objection to the invitation.

Subsequently the House passed an order inviting the Senate to meet with the House and hear "President Eamonn de Valera of Ireland." The House Journal, however, shows that "Honorable" later was substituted for "President."

It was pointed out that, according to the Journals, the House, which entertained the Irish leader, had not recognized the "Irish republic," and if there had been such recognition it was by the Senate in accepting the invitation of the House in the form that it was originally introduced.

WARNS OF PLUNKETT MOVE.

De Valera Cables That Irish Are Not to be Deceived.

DUBLIN, July 3. — Arthur Griffith, Vice President of the Sinn Fein movement, announced last night that he had received this telegram from Edward de Valera, who is in the United States:

"I am sure there is no danger that the Irish people will start into a trot after the new Plunkett carrot. The dodge is, perhaps, unknown to the American people, but will be explained to them."

Mr. Griffith said he had sent this cable to Dr. Valera:

"The latest attempt to sidetrack the Irish national demand is dead in its cradle."

Several prominent Irishmen, headed by Sir Horace Plunkett, issued last week, in the name of the Irish Dominion League, a manifesto containing proposals for a settlement of the Irish question. It was proposed that Ireland should be a dominion in the British Empire, but otherwise would have complete freedom.

BELMONT MAKES APOLOGY.

Fined for Speeding, He Tells Magistrate Army Taught Him to Obey.

Former Lieutenant Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont, for whom a warrant had been issued because he had neglected on several occasions to respond to a police summons to the Traffic Court on the charge of speeding his automobile at twenty-six miles an hour, offered an apology and made his peace with Magistrate Frederick B. House yesterday and was allowed to go on payment of a fine of $25. The court was crowded with some one hundred chauffeurs and other violators of the traffic laws when young Belmont appeared and told one of the attendants that he was in a hurry and would like to have his case disposed of.

"Let him wait," said the Magistrate, when the court attendant called his attention to Belmont. The court kept Mr. Belmont waiting an hour while the other cases were disposed of.

The summons had been handed to Belmont while he and his wife were in their car going to the Grand Central Terminal on June 19, and it was returnable on June 23. On that day a member of his family telephoned to the court and had the case postponed to June 27. He did not appear on the new date and the case was continued to July 1.

Magistrate House ordered a warrant after being informed by Motorcycle Policeman Gerhardt, who had served the summons, that somebody at the Belmont office at 43 Exchange Place had answered the court officer's inquiry as to Belmont's whereabouts with the suggestion that "if the Traffic Court wanted him, they had better send and get him."

The court sent Joseph Shepherd, who is known as "the quarter-millionaire cop," because he has inherited $250,000 and keeps two private cars in which he serves the court warrants, to Belmont's Summer home at Westbury, L. I., but he returned without serving it.

When Belmont's case was finally considered by the court, Magistrate House asked:

"Why weren't you here on the return day of the summons?"

"It was all due to a misunderstanding, your Honor," replied Belmont. "I am extremely sorry for what has happened."

Mr. Belmont said he had not known that he was speeding or violating the traffic regulations, but would plead guilty to save any further annoyance or delay to the court.

"Some one telephoned and asked for an adjournment, and you didn't appear then," continued the court.

"The adjournment was requested by my stepmother; I was away," said Belmont. At the suggestion of the court, concerning what the Magistrate said was an "impertinent reply" to the court from his office, Mr. Belmont said he would make an investigation and report who was responsible for it.

"I know what orders mean, your Honor; I have been in the army and have been out of the service only three weeks," he said.

"Let me tell you, Belmont," concluded the Magistrate, "when any one violates a law that comes within the jurisdiction of this court we get the offender, no matter who he is or where he is."

VICTORY FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Court Decides Auditor Need Not Submit His Books to Hirshfield.

By a vote of three to two the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday reversed the order of Justice Hotchkiss, formerly on the Appellate Division bench, directing Henry R. M. Cook, auditor of the Board of Education, to submit himself and his books before Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield for an investigation of the Board of Education ordered by Mayor Hylan. Justice Page wrote the prevailing opinion and Presiding Justice Clarke and Justice Merrell concurred with him. Justice Laughlin and Dowling dissented.

Justice Page said in his opinion:

"The education law provides safeguards and checks against the improper expenditure of funds of the Board of Education and a proceeding for investigation of complaints against that board. There is, therefore, no necessity for the exercise of this power by the Commissioner of Accounts. The Board of Education offered to allow its books of accounts and vouchers to be examined. It objected to an inquisitorial investigation of its methods and accounts, and the haling of its officers and employes before an officer who has no legitimate purpose to serve, to permit the conducting of an examination into its affairs. The Commissioner of Accounts only has authority to issue subpoenas in investigations that are within his jurisdiction. As he had no jurisdiction of the subject matter, the subpoena issued by him could be safely and properly disregarded."

As a result of the division of the court the case will be carried to the Court of Appeals.

DE VALERA UPHOLDS HIS PLEA TO PARIS

Said Ireland Would Join League as Independent, Not as Subject Nation.

HE CALLS ON MAYOR HYLAN

Chaplain Duffy of Old 69th Introduces "Irish Republic" Head at the City Hall.

The second day of Eamonn de Valera, head of the Irish Republic organization, after his return from a pilgrimage to historic points in Massachusetts, was spent in this city yesterday in an hours' chat with Mayor Hylan and the issuance of a series of pronouncements to Paris. With an escort of officers of the 165th Infantry to accompany him, Professor de Valera arrived at the City Hall at 11:30 o'clock.

A good-sized crowd cheered when the party's three automobiles, decorated with the Stars and Stripes and the green, white, and orange of Sinn Fein, hove in sight, while pipers played "The Wearing of the Green."

Later Harry J. Boland, Sinn Fein Member of Parliament for South Roscommon, threw some light on what happened at the interview. He said that Father Duffy of the 165th Infantry, introduced Professor de Valera to Mayor Hylan.

Mr. Boland added that he understood that de Valera and the Mayor had discussed the Irish question, and that the Mayor had expressed sympathy with the national aspirations of the Irish people.

He then gave out what he said was de Valera's "last word to Paris," as follows:

Mansion House.
Dublin, May 26, 1919.

To the President League of Nations, Paris.

Sir: The Irish people share the view that a lasting peace can only be secured by a World League of Nations pledged, when a clash of interests occurs, to use methods of conciliation and arbitration instead of those of force. They are consequently desirous that their nation should be included as a constituent member of such a League.

Therefore, we, the delegates of the nation, chosen and duly authorized for the purpose by the elected National Government of Ireland, desire to intimate through you that we are ready to take part in any conversations and discussions which may be necessary in order that the foundations of the League may be properly laid, and we ask the commission to provide us with an opportunity for doing so.

Apart from the general grounds of right, the Irish nation has a special and peculiar interest in the League at present proposed.

In the form in which the Covenant is now drawn up, it threatens to confirm Ireland in the slavery against which she has persistently struggled since the English first invaded her shores, and to pledge the rest of the civilized world, which has hitherto done us no wrong, to discountenance in future our just endeavors to free ourselves from the régime of implacable and brutal oppression under which we have suffered so long.

Ireland is a distinct and separate nation with individual inalienable rights which any League of Nations founded on justice is bound to recognize.

Accept, Sir, the assurance of our great esteem.

EAMONN DE VALERA,
GEORGE NOBLE (Count Plunkett.)

In another prepared statement, supplementary to the foregoing letter, Professor De Valera was quoted as saying that, had the League of Nations been in existence at the time of the American Revolution France could not have helped the revolting colonies. He held that the League covenant "provides a standing pretext for those who may wish to avail of it later to break up the League."

NEW YORK SOLDIERS CITED BY PERSHING

Distinguished Service Cross Awarded to Heroes in Various Battles in France.

SEVERAL OF THEM KILLED

Fought Courageously Until Put Out of Action—Three Rainbow Division Men Named.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The War Department gave out today the following list of citations for the Distinguished Service Cross, which contains the following names:

Sergeant RAYMOND C. CHISHOLM (deceased,) Co. A, 345th Bat. Tank Corps.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Verennes on Sept. 26. After his tank had been hit by a shell, Sergeant Chisholm ordered his driver ahead, although fatally wounded. He continued to take an importan part in the action until he dropped dead at his post. Next of kin: Robert M. Chisholm (father), 120 William St., Orange, N. J.

Sergeant PETER GILLESPIE, Machine Gun Co., 165th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Villers-sur-Fere on July 29; and Landres-et-St. George on Oct. 15. Locating an enemy sniper, Sergeant Gillespie, then a private, took the rifle of a dead comrade, and with no regard for personal safety, crawled forward under heavy machine-gun fire to a position far in advance of the assaulting wave. After an exchange of shots he killed the enemy sniper, who had killed or wounded several members of his battalion, and worked his way back to his own lines through an area swept by fire from nearby heights. When all of his officers has been evacuated, he rallied the survivors of his company and held them to their task, after another company had been sent up as relief. He aided materially in the repulse of a strong counter-attack, although suffering from the effects of gas, refusing to be evacuated till he became exhausted and was carried from the field. Next of kin: Mrs. George Reis, 1,024 Johns Av., New York City.

Sergeant JOHN J. GRIBBON, Co. D, 165th Infantry—For extraordinary heroism in action near Meurcy Ferme on July 30. When his patrol had been caught under a severe crossfire by machine guns and most of the members killed or wounded, and the survivors withdrew to cover, it was discovered that a wounded man had been left at the farthest point to which the patrol had advanced. Sergeant Gribbon, then a corporal, volunteered to rescue him. Running a hundred yards over open country swept by withering machine-gun fire, he reached the severely wounded member of his patrol, and half dragged, half carried his helpless comrade back with him to safety. Home address: John Gribbon (cousin,) 1,420 Vyse Av., New York City.

Mechanic LAWRENCE CONROY, Co. I, 312th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Grandpre, on Oct. 23. Seeing a comrade lying wounded in front of our lines, he voluntarily made his way forward and rescued the man from direct machine-gun fire. After all platoon leaders had become casualties he assumed command and very creditably directed the action throughout the entire attack. Next of kin: Andrew Conroy, father, 79 Joseph Street, Newark, N. J.

Corporal GEORGE GALLAGHER, (deceased,) Co. L, 30th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Crezancy, on July 15, and near Jaulgonne, on July 23. On the night of July 15, during the intense shelling which preceded the German offensive, he made three trips through the fire and, collecting lost troops, conducted them to their place in the line. On July 23 he led a patrol through perilous fire, and established communication with troops on the right of his position. Home address: Winifred Gallagher, mother, 7,311 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private (first class) FREDERICH GLUCK, (deceased,) Co. E, 165th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Sommerance, on Oct. 16. He volunteered to leave his battalion, which was in support, and help carry wounded men from the field of action. He was killed while in the performance of this mission, after having assisted in bringing in at least a dozen of his wounded comrades. Next of kin: Charles Gluck, brother, 335 East Eighty-fifth Street, New York City.

Private ANGELO GILLOTTIE, Battery E, 12th Field Artillery.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Thiaucourt, on Sept. 12. While acting as spare cannoneer, Private Gillottie sprang at a word from his executive officer to act at No. 1 of the supplementary gun crew for the first piece, whose entire crew were casualties. He assisted in laying aside the dead and wounded and continued in the service of his piece until the barrage had been completed. Next of kin: Paul Gillottie, father, 310 East Fourteenth Street, New York City.

Other awards are:

Captain Thomas H. Fallaw, 167th Infantry, Opelika, Ala.; First Lieutenant Duncan Prasier, 16th Infantry, Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Second Lieutenant Charles M. Ford, (deceased,) Co. D, 141st Infantry, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Sergeant Thomas Cooper, Co. K, 371st Infantry, Darlington, S. C.; Sergeant James E. Durham, Co. D, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, Buffalo, Ky.; Sergeant William M. Feigle, Headquarters, 5th Regiment, U. S. M. C., Chicago, Ill.; Sergeant Leonard E. Guy, Co. C, 58th Infantry, Aladdin, Wash.; Mechanic Ludwig Genrich, Co. I, 60th Infantry, South Bend, Ind.; Corporal John E. Craddock, 316th Military Police, Riverside, Cal.; Corporal Michael J. Cullen, Co. K, 364th Infantry, Chicago, Ill.; Corporal John De Smidt, Co. G, 132d Infantry, Chicago, I..; Corporal Fred Grumley, Co. I, 166th Infantry, Columbus, Ohio; Private first class Mathew W. Forsyth, Jr., (deceased,) Battery E, 12th Field Artillery, Philadelphia, Penn.; Private first class Selmo Folton, Battery C, 129th Field Artillery, Odessa, Mo.; Private first class Stanley Gansag, Co. —, 28th Infantry, U. S. Army; Private Leroy Christensen, Co. F, 2d Battalion, 5th Regiment, U. S. M. C., Glenwood, Minn.; Private Albert De Rogatis, Co. M, 309th Infantry, Italy; Private John J. Eckweiler, (deceased,) Co. C, 3d Ammunition Train, Notch, Penn.; Private Daniel S. Flagg, Co. M, 131st Infantry, Chicago, Ill., and Private C. F. M. Nelson, Co. F, First Gas Regiment, Seattle, Wash.

TO SELL CARTRIDGE CLOTH.

This Silk Fabric to be Disposed Of by the Government.

The War Department, through its sales organization, is asking for bids, which close on July 10, on 17,000,000 yards of cartridge cloth as it was prepared for military purposes. Tests were made to show that the cloth can be processed and offered as silk fabric suitable for dress goods, suitings, tapestries and other uses requiring a silk texture of heavy warp.

Displays of the cartridge cloth in its war state, and also as a processed material, have been arranged so that prospective purchasers may have an opportunity to inspect the goods. Samples of the materials in the different grades may be obtained by applying to the Ordnance District Salvage Board, 1,107 Broadway, where there is a display of the goods, and also samples of it processed, printed and dyed, showing its various uses and possibilities.

An analysis of the cartridge cloth bought by the Government to be used as casing for the propellent charge for projectiles fired by heavy artillery proved it to be a silk of high tensile strength. In its condition for military use it is a gray, gummy material resembling burlap, but by boiling the gum and oil are removed and it may be dyed and printed in all shades and designs.

The surplus on which bids will be asked includes five different grades, and there are from two to three different weaves in each grade.

PRISONERS ROAMED SHIP.

69 Military Offenders Aboard Returning Transport Mingled with Soldiers.

The transport Wilhelmine docked here yesterday with 1,801 officers and men, most of whom belonged to the 51st Pioneer Infantry, who, since the armistice, went into the occupied territory, built bridges and graded and looked after railroads. Colonel J. L. Gilbrich was in command of the troops on the transport.

On the ship were sixty-nine military prisoners, including one convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. The Wilhelmina had no prison quarters on board and the prisoners were allowed to roam the ship with the enlisted men. Before the ship got into port a roundup showed that three were missing, and later one was found dressed in the uniform of a sailor. Before the ship reached quarantine yesterday the missing prisoners were located and all were transferred to Fort Jay, Governors Island, after the ship was docked. The majority have terms of less than four years to serve.

MRS. SKEELS ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

Jury, After Deliberating Nearly Nine Hours, Finds She Did Not Poison Her Patient.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 3.—Mrs. Bessie M. (Skeels) Lundgren, charged with having murdered Miss Florence W. Gay of Andover in December, 1916, by administering arsenic while acting as her nurse, was found not guilty by a jury here tonight.

Mrs. Lundgren became weak while waiting for the jury to report and was attended by her physician. She was pale when brought into the courtroom to hear the verdict, which was announced by Foreman Newhall at 9:32 o'clock. The jury had been out eight hours and forty-four minutes.

Judge Thayer cautioned the fifty spectators against making a demonstration, but there was applause when the foreman said, "Not guilty." The court thanked the jury and Mrs. Lundgren was discharged.

She was accompanied from the Court House by her nurse, Mrs. Margaret Hooper, and her brothers, Mark and William Wilkins of Bayonne, N. J.

Mrs. Lundgren later gave out the following statement from her husband's home, in Andover:

"I want to thank the public who have stood by me in this trial, and I feel that the verdict is a vindication of what I have always maintained: That I am innocent of either of the crimes with which I have been charged.

"I am grateful to the Court and jurors and the attendants. I bear no ill-will toward the other side."

District Attorney Henry G. Wells telegraphed tonight to Pierre Garson, Prosecuting Attorney of Hudson County, New Jersey, informing him of the verdict, and asking for instructions regarding a warrant here for Mrs. Lundgren's arrest, charging her with the murder of her brother, Albert J. H. Wilkins, at Bayonne, N. J.

Mrs. Lundgren earlier in the day gave a last word to the jury in defending herself against the murder charge. She denied absolutely that she had given Miss Gay or her brother, Albert, any medicine not prescribed by a physician.

"I had nothing to gain by the death of Miss Gay or of my brother," she said. "I loved both."

After Mrs. Lundgren had been carried back to her usual place, Judge Thayer began his charge to the jury.

The defense took seventy-eight objections to the charge, one of them being that it was too argumentative.

COLUMBIA HOUSE TO OPEN.

Will be Centre of University's Courses in Americanization.

Columbia House, the centre of Columbia University's nation-wide campaign of Americanization, will be open, beginning Monday, July 7, for the use of the Summer session students, it was announced at the university yesterday. Persons from all over the country have registered for the unique grouping of courses in Americanism and allied subjects being offered in the Summer session. Figures for the first two days' registration indicate that the hope for the largest Summer session would be realized. The courses in Americanism and allied subjects may be taken not only by those who expect to work in foreign communities, but by any American who wishes to broaden his own civic knowledge. The aim of the courses is to provide a body of instructors and a place for students who wish to prepare themselves for Americanization work, or to acquaint themselves with its underlying conditions.

General courses in the Summer Americanization program include a course styled "Americanization of the Immigrant," to be given by Henry H. Goldberger, Principal of Public School 18. This course is intended for those who are now or expect to be engaged in organizing, directing, or supervising forces concerned with the Americanization of the immigrants. Another course embracing the social system of the English-speaking peoples will be given by Professor Franklin H. Giddings, and will take up "the distinctive achievements of the English-speaking peoples, intellectual outreaching, liberalized law and liberalized liberty, industrialism, democracy, world commerce, world distribution, and world influence." There will be wide variety of courses on American history and conditions, general social problems, foreign history and conditions, teaching English to foreigners, and foreign languages, including French, Italian, Spanish, German, Japanese, and Russian. There will also be courses in educational theory and practice and in educational community work, as well as courses in public health and standard of living. The list of teachers includes professors prominent at Columbia and at other American colleges and universities.

OPEN NEW SUBWAY JULY 9.

B. R. T. Extension from Times Sq. to 57th St. to be Put Into Operation.

The Broadway subway of the B. R. T. will be extended from Times Square, its present terminal, to 57th Street and Seventh Avenue at midnight on July 9, the express service will be extended from Union Square to Times Square on the same date, and some time between August 15 and September 15 the service will be extended to 60th Street and Lexington Avenue. The full service to Queensboro Plaza, via tunnel under the East River, is expected to be in operation early in the coming year.

This announcement was made yesterday by Transit Commissioner John H. Delaney, who said that local service to the new station at 57th Street would be operated on a two-minute headway during the rush hours and at a three and three-quarter-minute headway at other times. His announcement also said:

"For handling the traffic on the newly extended line there will be seven-car trains to 57th Street during the morning and evening and four-car trains outside of the rush periods. Trains of the same size will be used for the express service to and from Times Square. The result of this extension of the express service will be continuous express service between Times Square and Pacific Street, Brooklyn daily except between the hours of 1 A. M. and 6 A. M."

The later extension to Lexington Avenue will place in service two additional stations, at Fifth Avenue and at Lexington Avenue in 60th Street. The Lexington Avenue station will be the last station located in Manhattan. At this point the line begins a steep incline into the tunnel, which is well along toward completion. The laying of tracks in the tunnel section was started ten days ago, and will be completed, it was estimated, within four months.

WARNS OF HIGHER PRICES.

Federal Reserve Board Urges Public to Finance Exports.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—In warning that still higher prices and a greater shortage of supply might be expected in the United States if foreign purchases are permitted to continue on the same basis as in the last few years, the Federal Reserve Board in its July bulletin made public today declared that the war period in exportation had come to an end, and that it was now the duty of the investing public to finance shipments needed by Europe.

"There is a shortage of many essential materials and commodities in the world at large," the board said. "Increased credit demand for goods for export necessarily implies relatively decreased supply of goods for domestic use. Demand and supply are automatically equalized by changes in price, but such changes in price are, in the circumstances here under consideration, necessarily upward. If a large export financing process is conducted by banks out of credit, the result is to place the fluid credit of the country at the disposal of foreigners in purchasing and settling for domestic products which they obtain from American producers."

Delaney to Assist Transit Counsel.

Transit Commissioner John H. Delaney yesterday appointed Joseph F. Maguire an assistant counsel in place of Warren I. Lee, who resigned. The salary is $7,000 a year. Mr. Maguire is 36 years old and has been a practising lawyer in Brooklyn for thirteen years.

SEE 'FIXED PRICE' IN BUILDING TRADE

Counsel for Committee Wants Evidence on Cost of Materials Put Before Grand Jury.

Testimony regarding a building trade organization which, it was charged, fixed prices for all materials used in building was given yesterday before the Joint Aldermanic and Mayoralty Committee which is investigating the causes of high rents. After the hearing Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, suggested to Chairman Nathan Hirsch that the evidence be given to District Attorney Swann in order that it might be presented to the Grand Jury as a basis for indictments for possible violations of the Donnelly anti-trust law. Mr. Hirsch promised to act immediately.

Witnesses testified yesterday that there was an organization known as the Association of Dealers in Masons' Building Materials, composed of about fifty or sixty building material dealers, manufacturers, and agents; that the association practically controlled the selling prices for most of the building materials sold in New York City; that it was next to impossible to obtain membership in the organization, as two members voting in the negative disqualified an applicant for membership; that dealers outside of the association who desired to purchase goods from members of the association were prevented by the by-laws from doing so, but occasionally made purchases secretly.

Wright B. Goss, President, Manager, and Director of the Empire Brick and Supply Company, a member of the Association, and S. J. Treat, its Secretary, were subpoenaed yesterday and placed on the witness stand. Robert A. Matthews of the Eden Brick and Supply Company and Frederick Fox of the Central Dealers Supply Company testified that they had attempted to join the Association, but had been blackballed for no given reason. They asserted that the combination by fixing the prices of building materials prevented building operations by keeping the cost of materials high, and that it entirely did away with competition. Dissolving the association, they said, would give an impetus to building construction for it would revive competition in building.

Mr. Goss, the first witness, said that the Association was a membership corporation; that a man had to be proposed by three members, and that the present membership was composed of a majority of dealers, with some five or six agents. He testified that if a man who was unable to become a member of the Association desired to buy brick he could not buy it from a member of the Association, because the members did business only with each other. He said that the quantity of brick sold other than through members of the Association was negligible.

Secretary Treat said he never saw a "price list sheet," but that he sent the members "cost list" sheets. He said that the data on the "cost lists" was made up from figures furnished him by manufacturers, members of the association. He did not know who the individuals were who got up the lists, and said that he had destroyed copies of all the lists sent out with the exception of the last one.

UKRAINIANS SEEK TRUCE.

Try to Open Negotiations with Poles Following Loss of Tarnopol.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, July 3.—From Warsaw it is reported that the Ukrainian troops in East Galicia have been further defeated. Polish troops have recaptured Brody, Zloczov, and Tarnopol.

The Ukrainian Chief Command has expressed the wish to resume negotiations for an armistice.

PROTEST FOREIGNERS' TAX.

Roper Believes It is Handicapping American Money Market.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Protests to the Treasury Department against the present tax on interest paid to non-resident foreigners depositing in American banks have met with a sympathetic response from Collector of Internal Revenue Roper and other Treasury officials. Mr. Roper has recently said in letters that this taxation handicaps the United States as an international money market and discourages other countries from doing business here.

Many of the protests have come from banking institutions on the Mexican border, which compare the American policy with that of the Canadian banks. The Canadian banks allow Mexican concerns to carry balances in Montreal and make checks through New York branches of the banks without payment of any tax. British banks offer to carry Central and South American deposits without the tax.

It is possible that some legislation may be sought from Congress that will repeal the tax, and thus remove one of the restrictions that prevent this country from becoming an international money market.

ENFORCE BETTING-ODDS BAN

Warrants for Publishing Them and Selling the Papers in Detroit.

DETROIT, July 3.—Nine warrants charging violation of the State law in selling newspapers containing betting odds on horse races and two charging publication of such information were issued in Police Court here today.

Six of the warrants charging the sale of papers are against Frank and Louis Grosscup, proprietors of the Wolverine News Company. Three were issued against Max and Sal Solomon, proprietors of the Solomon News Company. Chicago, Toronto, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, and New York newspapers are named as having been distributed by the two companies.

The warrants charging publication of betting odds were issued against E. D. Stair, President, and W. H. Pettibone, business manager of The Detroit Free Press.

New York After Thaw Again.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 3.—Attorney General W. I. Schaffer today fixed next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for a hearing on the request of Governor Smith of New York for the return to that State of Harry Thaw. District Attorney Swann of New York will be represented and Thaw's counsel, former Judge J. J. Gordon, of Philadelphia, will probably oppose the move of the New York authorities.

Spending $6,636,000 on Highways.

ALBANY, July 3.—Highway construction contracts in excess of $6,636,000 have been or are being awarded, State Highway Commissioner Frederick Stuart Greene reported to Governor Smith today. Contracts under way to build and rebuild 304 miles of highways amount to $6,155,909. Bids are being opened for construction contracts for 108 miles of highway at a cost of $2,480,795, and there are two repair contracts amounting to $145,000.

POPE TELLS OF STEPS TO PROTECT MISSIONS

At First Consistory Held Since the War Began He Confirms All Appointments.

ROME, July 3, (Associated Press.)—Pope Benedict delivered today a short allocution to the Sacred College regarding steps taken for the protection of Catholic missions, especially in former German colonies.

The Pope said that as soon as it was realized that some clauses of the German Peace Treaty were infringing upon the rights and interests of Catholic missions he wrote to delegates at the Peace Conference asking them to make some provision to modify those clauses in a spirit of justice.

More than twenty Cardinals, many Bishops and Archbishops and other high dignitaries of the church attended the consistory. Mgr. Bonzano, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, was in attendance.

The Pope at the consistory appointed Cardinal Boschi as Bishop of Frascati and Mgr. Cadi to be Patriarch of Antioch in the Greek Melchite rite. He also confirmed all Archbishops and Bishops appointed by brief since the last consistory, this being the first one held since the war began.

Discussing the mission of Archbishop Bonaventura Cerretti to the Peace Conference, the Pope said:

"We sent to Paris the most distinguished prelate of the Roman Curia to look after the interests of the Catholic missions. Now, I am very happy to inform you that owing to the spirit of fairness shown by the personages at the Peace Conference our requests in greater part have been satisfied. I hope these same personages will be guided by the same spirit of fairness in putting into execution the provisions which have been adopted concerning Catholic missions, not only in the interest of religion, but also in the interest of humanity and civilizatition.

"As hostilities now finally are ended, we implore the Divine Benevolence to grant our wishes, namely, that the blockade which caused so much famine and distress be raised immediately, that all prisoners be repatriated as soon as possible, and last, that all peoples and nations shall reunite in bonds of Christian charity, a spirit we have never ceased to inculcate and without which any treaty of peace will be valueless."

FRANCE'S VATICAN POLICY.

Pichon Explains Appointment of Bishops in Alsace-Lorraine.

PARIS, July 2.—The appointment by the French Government of Catholic bishops for Metz and Strasbourg furnished the subject for an animated debate on the Government's policy toward the Vatican in the Chamber of Deputies today.

M. Demonzin charged that the Government had engaged in unofficial diplomacy with the Vatican, and Jean Bon declared the law separating Church and State had been violated.

Stephen Pichon, Foreign Minister, explained that the policy of the Government contemplated the upholding of the Concordat in Alsace and Lorraine and that there was a true separation of Church and State in the rest of France. He said the bishops were appointed for Metz and Strasbourg because the clergy, which had given many proofs of friendly sentiments toward France, had asked that French bishops succeed the German incumbents.

Critics of the Government declared they were satisfied with M. Pichon's explanations.

Report of Anti-Italian Attitude of Troops Stirs Rome.

Rome, July 3.—The newspapers report that new incidents have occurred at Fiume, owing to the attitude of French soldiers. The Corriere Della Sera says that a French soldier attacked an Italian girl, tearing from her a badge of the Italian colors, trampling upon it and uttering insulting epithets against Italy. An indignant crowd pursued the soldier, who was wounded and fainting when rescued by Italian soldiers.

The news spreading, a crowd hunted all French officers and soldiers, who were obliged to hide in houses. They were defended by Italian and British soldiers and sailors, some of whom were wounded.

Considerable excitement has been caused here by previous reports from Fiume, published in the press, that French soldiers belonging to Inter-Allied forces passed through Fiume, shouting "Vive Jugo-Slavia; Vive France; Vive Jugo-Slavia and Fiume; Death to Italy."

Dispatches state that the feeling caused by such a demonstration was so grave among the Italian population that serious consequences might have followed, but for the prompt intervention of Italian carbineers.

General Wrazioli, commander of the Inter-Allied forces at Fiume, is reported to have lodged a protest with the French General.

Newspapers here remark that statements, declaring the friendship of France to Italy, uttered on official occasions at Paris by President Poincaré and Premier Clemenceau, "seem irony when constantly contradicted by hostile French officials wherever they have come in contact with Italian interests on the Adriatic, Asia Minor, or Africa."

PARIS MEDAL TO PERSHING.

City Confers Similar Honor on Admiral Knapp.

PARIS, July 3.—The Independence Day celebration in France began formally this afternoon with a brilliant reception at the Hotel de Ville in honor of General Pershing and Rear Admiral Harry S. Knapp, representing the army and the navy, when gold medals were presented to them by the city.

Among the guests were Hugh C. Wallace, American Ambassador to France; Marshal Foch, General Weygand of Marshal Foch's staff, many members of the Diplomatic Corps and officers of both the American and French armies and navies.

M. Evain, President of the Municipal Council, greeted the guests. "The Fourth of July is henceforth a popular fête day in France, something like our Fourteenth of July," M. Evain said, "because for us these two days make only one, our sentiments are so intimately bound to yours."

General Pershing replied to the greeting for the United States.

LONDON, July 3.—The Corporation of the City of London decided today to give the freedom of the city and swords of honor to Marshal Foch and General Pershing.

LANSING EAGER TO RETURN.

Large Problems of Reorganizing the State Department.

PARIS, July 3.—Secretary Lansing feels that his presence in Washington in the near future will be necessary because of the increased duties of the State Department, due to the problems growing out of the peace settlement. It was for this reason that he decided recently to return to the United States, fixing his departure for the middle of July and planning after his return to make an appeal to Congress for funds to enable the Department to cope properly with its new tasks.

The present personnel and organization of the State Department, it is said, is inadequate to meet the situation now facing it. Among other extensions necessary is the formation of a bureau on International Commissions, as some sixty commissions are provided for in the various treaties. Many new offices and an enlarged foreign trade council staff also are necessary.

Danes Deny Schleswig Loan.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A cablegram received today by the Danish legation from the foreign office in Copenhagen denies that an agreement has been reached between the Danish Government and American bankers for a loan in connection with the reunion of Schleswig.

ORDERS ARMY CUT TO 180,000 AT ONCE

STRENGTH NOW IS 965,000

General March Wants Commissioned Personnel Reduced to Normal by Sept. 30.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The refusal of the Republican leaders in control of Congress to meet the recommendations of the Administration for an army of 506,000 men and the reductions carried in the Army Appropriation bill have forced General March, Chief of Staff, to take steps for retrenchment all along the line in army matters, wherever that is possible. General March sent a telegram tonight to all military commands throughout the United States calling for reduction of the commissioned personnel and making it plain that all officers holding emergency commissions will be discharged before the end of September. The text of General March's telegram follows:

> Appropriations for the support of the army make it necessary that immediate and energetic steps be taken by you to expedite reduction of commissioned personnel. By Sept. 30, 1919, it will be necessary that a peacetime strength of commissioned personnel, as provided by the National Defense act, be reached and that officers of permanent establishment be returned to their regular grade. All officers holding only commissions for the emergency, including applicants for permanent appointment, will be discharged on or before that date. The commanding officers of all departments, port of embarkation, chiefs of all staff corps, and the commanding officers of all camps and military stations not under jurisdiction of any of the above, will take immediate steps to readjust the duties of commissioned personnel under their jurisdiction and to cause discharge of officers holding only emergency commissions as rapidly as possible and in such manner that all will be discharged on of before Sept. 30, 1919.

The War Department also announced today that it has been decided to discontinue the use of Camps Meade, Custer, Bowie, Funston, and Jackson and Fort Oglethorpe as demobilization centres because of the decrease in the number of men returning from overseas. After July 10 no more troops will be sent to these camps for discharge.

The use of Camp Upton as a debarkation camp will be discontinued after July 15, and the use of Boston, Mass., and Charleston, S. C., as ports of debarkation will be discontinued after July 15.

Due to the discontinuance of the use of these camps, after July 10 men from overseas en route for points in North Texas will be sent to Camp Pike for discharge; men for points in the northern and southern peninsulas of Michigan will be sent to Camps Grant and Sherman; men for Kansas will be sent to Camp Dodge; men for Tennessee, South Carolina, and Florida will be sent to Camp Gordon; men landing at Newport News and bound for points in Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia, and men landing in New York for Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, and the District of Columbia will be sent Camps Lee and Dix.

General Pershing today advised the War Department that the Third Army had been discontinued and the troops composing it will hereafter be known as the "American Forces in Germany."

"The Third Army has been discontinued on this date," said General Pershing's message to the department. "The troops constituting it will hereafter be designated the 'American Forces in Germany.' Major Gen. Henry T. Allen has been assigned to the command of these forces, relieving Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, who will return to the United States."

965,000 Now Under Arms.

WASHINGTON, July 3, (Associated Press.)—Orders for the demobilization of the army by Sept. 30 to the peacetime strength of approximately 180,000 officers and men, authorized by the National Defense act, were issued today by the War Department.

The National Defense act authorized a total of 169,493 officers and men for the line and 63,815 officers and men for the staff corps and departments. A reduction of the military establishment to these figures would be 100,000 men below the strength authorized in the 1920 Army bill, but officials explained this reduction would be necessary to compensate for the heavy excess now existing over the authorized total.

Announcement that the army would be reduced to less than 233,308 officers and men by Sept. 30 was accepted here to mean that definite plans had been made to withdraw practically the entire American expeditionary forces before many weeks.

The number of men necessary to garrison domestic ports and the defense of the insular possessions would be almost the total of the authorized peace-time total.

Latest figures on the strength of the army show that there are about 900 000 men and 65,000 officers under arms. To reduce this to 12,263 officers and 221,045 men in two months will require almost superhuman efforts, military experts said.

Naval Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The Bureau of Navigation published the following orders today:

Plunkett, Rear Admiral C. P., assigned to command Des. Squad. No. 3 of Atlantic Fleet.
Niles, Lt. Cmdr. E. K., will report to Dist. Communication Supt. at 1st Naval Dist.
Godwin, Lt. Cmdr. D. C., assigned as aid flag lieutenant on staff of Vice Admiral Williams, cmdr. of Squad. No. 1 and Div. No. 1 of Pacific Fleet.
Tanske, Lt. G. C., to Navy Yard, Puget Sound, in Machinery Div.
David, Lt. B., to command the Eagle No. 25 when commissioned.
Petry, Lt. F., to the Pennsylvania.

Folsom, Lt. S. A., to Casual Replacement Bat., at Quantico, Va.
Bigelow, Lt. A. F., will report to Fleet Surg. of Atlantic Fleet.
Ferguson, Lt. R. A., to Norfolk Navy Yard.

Education Notes.

The Board of Superintendents has recommended that Sarah Elkus and Anna H. Wilcox be assigned to duty in connection with the supervision of continuation classes for such time during the Summer vacation period as may be required, at $6 a day.

It has also recommended the assignment of Robert G. Weyh, a teacher of shopwork, to the Bureau of Vocational Activities, to take charge of all matters relating to technical supplies, at an additional compensation of $300 a year, the assignment to be for one year.

Adelaide Memberg, a special teacher of physical training, will be assigned to the office of the Director of Physical Training from Sept. 1, 1919, to Jan. 31, 1920, without change of title or compensation. A substitute will be assigned to Miss Memberg's place in Brooklyn.

The assignment of Maximilian Komow, a teacher of mechanical drawing in the Murray Hill Vocational School, to the office of the Director of Vocational Activities, will be continued for another year from July 10, with additional compensation of $600 a year.

The Vacation Playgrounds of the Board of Education will conduct Independence Day celebrations at 10:30 A. M. today. The program will include the following numbers: A block parade, in which all the children will take part, costumed to represent various nations; a greeting by the Chairman of the meeting; the singing of "America" by all present; the reading of a letter from President Prall of the Board of Education; declamation by selected pupil; music by orchestra or chorus; reading of President Wilson's Independence Day proclamation; a drill by a selected group, and a patriotic song by all. One of the most important features of the program will be an Independence Day oration. The address will be followed by patriotic quotations by the boys and girls and patriotic addresses by distinguished guests, and at 12 o'clock it is planned to have all present salute the flag and sing "The Star Spangled Banner." These celebrations will be held in 180 playgrounds. It is estimated that over 100,000 persons will take part.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—There was a disturbance of moderate intensity central Thursday night over the eastern part of the Gulf of Mexico and moving northward toward Northwestern Florida. Thus far it has been attended by squalls over the East Gulf and rains in Florida and Southern Georgia. Storm warnings are displayed on the Gulf Coast at and between New Orleans and Key West. Warm weather prevailed during Thursday throughout the Middle Atlantic and New England States, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi valleys, and the region of the great lakes.

The highest temperature reported from the Eastern States was 93 degrees at Boston, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Harrisburg, and Parkersburg. At Atlantic City the temperature of 98 degrees equals the highest ever before recorded at that station in the month of July. The weather has become cooler over the Upper Mississippi valley, the North Plains States, and the Rocky Mountain region, over which districts showers and thunderstorms occurred during Thursday.

Winds Off Atlantic Coast.—North of Sandy Hook, gentle and moderate variable, partly cloudy weather; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, gentle variable winds and fair weather; Hatteras to Florida Straits, moderate southeast and south, partly cloudy weather, showers off the Georgia and Florida coast. East Gulf, fresh and strong shifting winds, with squalls and showery weather.

FORECASTS FOR FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Southern New England, Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey.—Fair and continued warm Friday; local thunder showers probably Saturday, with somewhat lower temperature by Saturday night.

Indiana, Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Western New York.—Fair and continued warm Friday; Saturday local thunder showers and somewhat lower temperature.

NIXON PROMISES AID TO B. R. T. RECEIVER

Public Service Commissioner Favors Three-Cent Charge for Transfers.

DOUBTS HIS POWER TO ACT

Declares He Does Not Favor Separation of Surface Lines or Adoption of Zone System.

At the conclusion of the argument yesterday before Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon in favor of the application of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for permission to charge 3 cents for transfers on its surface lines, the Commissioner said that he would give the company relief in its need of additional income if he were advised that he had the power.

Permission to charge for transfers at points where the law does not require the issuance of free transfers, the abrogation of the transfer privileges ordered by the Commission, and a direct increase in fare were set forth by counsel as the methods by which help could be given to the company to enable it to earn enough to meet its charges. Unless some of these measures are approved the company will seek to separate some of its lines and will establish the zone system. In either case, it was pointed out, the charge might be as much as 15 cents for a ride which now costs 5 cents.

Concerning the contention of the company's counsel that he had the power to abrogate the transfer order made by the former Commission, Commissioner Nixon said that he did not want to obrogate the transfer order or to do away with the transfer privileges. He added that he desired to permit the companies to charge for transfers, if that was necessary, rather than cut off the transfers, and that he did not want to wait until the lines were disintegrated before fixing a joint rate.

Assistant Corporation Counsel E. J. Kohler contended that the Commission had no power to authorize a charge for transfers from one line to another when the companies operating the lines were held under one leasee. A. M. Williams, counsel for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, said that the estimated increase in the company's revenues through a three-cent charge for transfers would be about $1,600,000 a year. He added that the deficit for the nine months from July 1, 1918, to Feb. 28, 1919, was $1,784,000, and that the cost of carrying passengers under the universal transfer order of 1914 was $3,000,000 a year. Other figures presented by Mr. Williams were that in 1917 49.99 per cent. of the passengers rode on transfers, and that since 1911 there had been no substantial increase in cash fares. Lindley M. Garrison, the receiver, said that if Commissioner Nixon "had no power to save the property it could not be saved at all."

"And we do not know," he added, "whether you can save us."

Brooklyn Music Teacher Gives $110 to Pay Funeral Expenses.

The body of Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, who committed suicide in the Nassau County Jail at Mineola last week, after being convicted of wife murder, will be cremated tomorrow at the Fresh Pond Crematory at Fresh Pond, L. I.

Mrs. May L. Stacy, a music teacher, who lives at 435 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, last night deposited $110 at Cornell's undertaking establishment in Hempstead to pay for the cremation of the body. When the offer was made the attendant of the crematory obtained the permission of Coroner Walter R. Jones to accept it.

Charles N. Wysong, one of the attorneys for Dr. Wilkins, said Mrs. Stacy telephoned him yesterday and asked what was going to be done with Dr. Wilkins's body. He replied that he did not know, and said he thought the body would be buried in Potter's Field. "Oh, that would be terrible," the woman replied, according to Mr. Wysong. "That can't be done." She said she was willing to pay for the cremation and Mr. Wysong told her he thought there would be no objection. It is said that Mrs. Stacy never saw Dr. Wilkins, but had written him letters, expressing sympathy and pity, and had recommended that he read certain passages in the Bible. It has not been decided whether the ashes will be buried beside the body of Mrs. Wilkins in Woodlawn Cemetery.

P. S. DU PONT GIVES $2,000,000 FOR SCHOOLS

Creates Trust Fund for the Betterment of Rural Education in Delaware.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 3.—Announcement was made today at the Summer School at Delaware College that Pierre S. du Pont, President of the du Pont Powder Company, had created a trust fund of $2,000,000 for remodeling and modernizing the public schools of Delaware, outside of Wilmington, to be expended during the next four years.

The only stipulation is that each district shall raise by taxation an amount equal to the sum apportioned to it. Four hundred thousand dollars will be applied to the improvement of schools for colored children.

Mr. du Pont has already given $1,500,000 for the betterment of Delaware College at Newark, Del.

BOOST BRITISH FOOD PRICES

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 3.—State blunder over the country's cheese supply, by which American speculators profited, was disclosed today by W. H. Watkins, who is a member of the Consumers' Council, which consults with the Ministry of Food.

Speaking to a Daily Chronicle representative, he said the Ministry of Food had an offer of this season's production of cheese from Canada. The Ministry of Food favored the Government purchasing the cheese in the interests of British consumers, but the Treasury refused to advance the necessary money. The result was that American speculators bought up the Canadian cheese, and it is being passed to the British public at an enhanced price.

Mr. Watkins also said that the Ministry of Food had decided to resume bacon buying in the interests of the public. This resumption of complete control would mean the elimination of the speculator. He explained that when the Consumers' Council was recently in consultation with the Ministry of Food it was pointed out to the council that arrangements which existed between the Ministry of Food and the American authorities represented by Mr. Hoover made a reduction in the price of bacon possible while the control remained. On the other hand the pig population of America had so increased that it was regarded as a twelve to one chance against prices being increased if the control were removed. The control as it affected wholesale dealings, was therefore removed.

The result was that the twelve to one chance came off and speculation drove the wholesale prices to such a height that the Ministry of Food had now taken action. If the Ministry is able to purchase from America at the terms it expects the rise in price may be confined to a penny or twopence per pound.

LABOR LEADERS TO SAIL.

Gompers and Tobin Will Attend Amsterdam International Congress.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and Daniel J. Tobin, Treasurer, head of the Teamsters' Union, will sail from New York on July 11 on the Mauretania to represent the American Federation of Labor at the Amsterdam International Trade Union Congress, which will open on July 25.

In addition to a discussion of the international labor attitude toward the labor congress to be held in Washington in October, the Amsterdam congress probably will decide the question of moving the international headquarters from Berlin. It is believed that the seat of the League of Nations will be the future headquarters of the international trade union movement.

In a statement issued yesterday by the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy, it was said that American labor has held to a firm and consistent policy since the war began, and that this was affirmed at the Atlantic City convention.

"However, European labor has not in all cases a record of such strength of purpose," the statement continued. "It has wabbled and twisted through all the convolutions of emotional pacifism and intellectual weakness. The probability is that American labor will go to Amsterdam to encounter much the same kind of an impossibilist wall that it has encountered on previous visits. American labor is going over the ocean to fight one more battle for reason and for the progress of democracy through permanent peace."

G. M. JONES RESIGNS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Grosvenor M. Jones, first assistant director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, has resigned his position to become an assistant manager of a prominent New York City bank. The resignation is to take effect on August 1. It is planned to fill the vacancy by the appointment of Philip B. Kennedy, now commercial attaché at London, and to have him act as director during the absence of Burwell S. Cutler, who is going abroad to study the economic situation in Europe and the effectiveness of the bureau's work there.

Prof. Kennedy has been commercial attaché at London for nearly two years, prior to which he served in a similar capacity in Australia. Before entering the service of the bureau he was director of the day division, school of commerce, of New York University. He has also been assistant in economics at Harvard, and at one time carried out an investigation of free ports in Europe for the Merchants Association of New York. He was educated at Beloit, Occidental College, at Harvard.

Mr. Jones has been with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce more than six years and has given special attention to the silk, the woolen and worsted, the paper and pulp, and the pottery industries. More recently he has studied port development and ocean transportation.

Can't Enforce Fireworks Law.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The use of fireworks and explosives in the celebration of Independence Day tomorrow is prohibited under the wartime explosives law, but as Congress failed to make any appropriation for the enforcement of the act this fiscal year officials said violators probably would escape punishment.

Ypres Land for Canadian Memorial.

BRUSSELS, July 3.—The Belgian Minister of the Interior has offered a parcel of land in the neighborhood of Ypres to the Canadian authorities for the erection of a war memorial and museum, recalling the tribute paid by Canadian troops on Belgian soil during the war.

Picked American Force for Paris.

PARIS, July 2.—The United States Army will be represented at the Fourth of July ceremony in the Place de la Concorde by a picked regiment from the Army of Occupation, consisting of one company from each brigade of the first six divisions besides a band.

RICH MAN ARRESTED IN TAX FRAUD CASE

J. C. Brownstone Accused of Offering $25,000 to Witness Against Pictorial Review.

HELD UNDER $25,000 BAIL

Said to Have Sought to Avoid Trap by Conducting Negotiations While Walking in Fifth Avenue.

J. C. Brownstone, of 84 Fifth Avenue, owner of a chain of clothing stores, was arrested yesterday on the charge of offering Nathaniel W. Gropper, an Internal Revenue agent, $25,000 to "throw" the case against Jay A. Weber, Secretary of the Pictorial Review Company, who is awaiting trial on the charge of offering $25,000 to Gropper to join in a plan to defraud the Government out of approximately $500,000 in taxes due from the Pictorial Review Company.

Brownstone, who is not connected with the Pictorial Review Company, and is independently wealthy, is alleged to have interested himself in the matter at the request of a friend. The clothier, who was arrested at his office yesterday, pleaded not guilty before Commissioner Hitchcock and was released under $25,000 bail.

Assistant United States District Attorney Benjamin De Witt said yesterday that he had been greatly puzzled that, after the alleged offer of a bribe of $25,000 to the Internal Revenue agent had resulted in an arrest another person should approach the same man in the same case with an offer of the same amount. He asserted, however, that Brownstone had sought to avoid the pitfalls which had resulted in the arrest of Weber, who is alleged to have been trapped by witnesses to the offer of a bribe at the Hotel McAlpin.

Weber is only a small stockholder in the Pictorial Review Company and had a prospect of gaining personally only a very small share of the sum of approximately $500,000 which, it is alleged, the Government was to lose. The alleged second attempt to bribe the Federal agent is believed to have been made, not so much for the benefit of Weber, as for the sake of another man, who is believed to have been the real principal and a large prospective beneficiary in the alleged plan to cheat the Government. The investigation of the alleged first attempt to bribe Gropper has led to belief that several persons were in the plot to swindle the Government out of half a million of dollars and to divide it among themselves. The real purpose of the alleged attempt to destroy Gropper's testimony is believed to be to prevent him from taking the stand against others besides Weber.

According to Gropper, he became acquainted with Brownstone while working for the Government in connection with the income tax on the books of the clothier's firm. On June 23, after the arrest of Weber, Gropper said he received a request by telephone to call on Brownstone. Gropper did so and had the first of a series of talks with the clothier that ended on June 30 and resulted in the arrest of Brownstone yesterday.

The first plan that was adopted, according to Gropper, to insure secrecy for their conversations was for the two men to hold their discussions mainly on foot. The clothier is alleged to have worked out the plan to save the alleged culprits in the Pictorial Review case in the course of several walks up and down Fifth Avenue, during which the bribe offer is said to have opened at $1,000 and gradually risen to twenty-five times that sum. The first proposal, according to Gropper, was that he should leave the country. It was suggested that a liberal allowance for expenses should be provided, in addition to the alleged bribe. The next suggestion, it was said, was that he should break down in his story, after taking the witness stand, become confused, contradict his own testimony, and destroy his value as a witness, so that Weber, and others who might later be accused of complicity in the same transaction, would go free.

At the same time, it is alleged, an earnest attempt was made to find out how much evidence the Government had as to the inside facts of the attempted income tax fraud, involving others of greater wealth and prominence than Weber.

Assistant District Attorney De Witt refused to say whether there was any interview on the subject, except while the two men were on foot and in motion, but the complaint was made by another Federal agent, R. H. Oyler, who alleges that he overheard conversations between Brownstone and Gropper on this subject. In the complaint it is alleged:

"That the defendant, J. C. Brownstone, well knowing the facts and with intent corruptly and unlawfully to influence, obstruct, and impede the due administration of justice, did offer and promise the said Nathaniel W. Gropper $25,000 if he would refuse to testify in the said cause between the United States of America and Jay A. Weber and would give false and inaccurate and conflicting testimony on the trial of said issue."

The charge is violation of Section 135 of the United States Criminal Code, relating to the offering of bribes to Federal employes. Federal accountants were set to work on the books of Brownstone yesterday preparatory to a study of the accuracy of his own returns for income taxes.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Improvement of business of late is emphasized by the week's surveys made by the mercantile agencies. The first half of 1919, says Dun's Review, closed with good progress toward the restoration of pre-war conditions. Continuing, the review says:

The general stability of domestic business during the readjustment era is attested by the strikingly favorable record of failures, which were fewer in number in the six months just ended than in nearly four decades, and the prevailing sentiment in financial and commercial circles is one of satisfaction with results already achieved and of optimism regarding future prospects. With the freer intercourse between nations that is now possible, interest in the development of overseas commerce further increases, and the enlarging demands of the many buyers who have come into the markets here from practically every important foreign country testify to the extensive needs abroad for American commodities. The present extreme prices apparently do not discourage purchasing where supplies are urgently required, either to fill immediate wants or for replenishment purposes, and consumption of staple articles and luxuries, even in sections where crop indications are disappointing, continues of notable dimensions.

Bradstreet's says:

More truly than at any previous time since before the great war began, is ordinary distributive demand making a virtual roll call of the country's products. Some hitherto lagging lines, such as the metals particularly, are showing increasing confidence on the buying side, and records of June output show that the announcement of the turn having been made some time ago was fully justified. Reports of increased buying, enlarged mill outputs, heavier pig production and an increasing number of furnaces in blast are accompanied this week by advices of higher prices asked by eastern furnaces, while scrap metal, an old-time barometer of the trade, has been again marked up. Building is increasing in activity, and lumber, building hardware and other materials are still growing in demand.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

These Again Show an Excess of Advances Over Declines.

For the third time in succession Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week showed a considerable excess of advances over declines. In the foodstuffs alone the advances nearly doubled the declines, the features being the general strength of provisions and the price weakness shown by the dairy products. In the general list there were sixty-one changes, of which forty-two were advances, compared with the same number of advances in sixty revisions last week.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

Five of the seven declines in foodstuffs this week were contributed by the dairy products list. The best grade of butter dropped off about 3 cents a pound, while the best renovated stock declined 2 cents. No changes in cheese prices were shown. As for eggs, the fancy nearbys dropped 4 cents a dozen during the week, with the best Westerns showing a drop of a cent a dozen. Compared with the corresponding 1918 prices, the latter are the relatively more expensive of the two.

Flour continued unchanged in the local market, but both hams and bacon went up here. Live beef and mess pork did not change at Chicago, but higher prices were quoted on live hogs and live sheep, as well as on Middle Western lard and short ribs. Again there were no changes shown in the listed fresh and dried fruits, and in the vegetables the only revisions were a rise of 75 cents a barrel in cabbage and an advance in choice red kidney beans. Teas still remained unchanged, but in the coffees the first setback in a long time occurred. Both No. 4 Santos and No. 7 Rio were quoted lower than last week. All of the spice revisions were upward, and they included mace, nutmegs, Cochin ginger and white Singapore pepper.

Prime timothy hay showed the only drop in the listed grains, with corn, rye, malting barley and long rye straw all quoted higher. A further rise in case lots of menthol, which has advanced more than 100 per cent. since this time last year, was about the only feature shown in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils. They contained ten changes, of which six were advances. Hops advanced, as did the price asked for straw boards.

Hide prices took another turn upward during the week, and advances were shown by No. 1 native packers, No. 1 country steers, No. 1 heavy cows, No. 1 kips, and No. 1 calfskins. Leather advances took place in tannery run union backs and No. 1 scoured oak backs. Metals changes were more numerous than for some time. No. 2 X pig iron declined at Philadelphia and refined iron bars were higher at Pittsburgh. In the minor metals advances in lake and electrolytic coppers contrasted with declines in spelter and lead. Tar supplied the only advance in the naval stores, with the declines contributed by pitch, resin, and turpentine. Chinese and Japanese raw silk prices continued to mount to new record levels.

The textile markets were less unbalanced than has been the case in recent weeks. Burlaps continued very firm as to price, although the demand was lighter. Active trading in cotton goods, more especially the unfinished ones, brought about higher prices on several constructions despite the holiday influence.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 5,445 packages. Market about ½c lower on nearly all grades of stock and trade very quiet. Supplies heavy and there is pressure to sell. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 50@50½c; extras, 92 score, 49½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 48@49c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 46@47½c; lower grades, 45@45½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 53@53½c; extras, 52@52½c; firsts, 50@51½c; seconds, 47½@49½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 49@49½c; good to prime, 47½@48½c; common to fair, 45@47c; renovated, firsts, 48@48½c; lower grades, 44½@47c; ladles, current make, firsts, 46@47c; seconds, 45c; lower grades, 43@44c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 45@45½c; No. 2, 44½c; lower grades, 41@44c.

EGGS.—15,226 cases. Market continues extremely irregular, arrivals are somewhat lighter and it is expected that receipts may decrease next week, but there is still a large accumulation of average lower grade eggs on the market and the pressure to sell them is increased by the fact that little further business can be expected after today until next week. The weather is hot and stock deteriorates still further on holding. Really high qualities are still scarce and some of the finest goods here are finding reasonably prompt outlet at sustained prices, say in range of 47@50c for fine to strictly fancy goods. There is still a burdensome offering of under grade stock in range of 37@42c, including some fairly useful qualities. Nearby white eggs are cleaning up a little better, but it is generally under strong pressure and a willingness to accept comparatively easy prices. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 51@52c; extra firsts, 47@50c; firsts, 43@46c; under grades, seconds and poorer, 37@42c; dirties, No. 1, 37@38c; No. 2 and poorer, 29@36c; checks, good to choice, dry, 34@35c; under grades, 26@33c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 56@58c; fair to prime, 47@55c; gathered whites, common to prime, 47@56c; Pacific Coast, whites, 54@56c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 46@55c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, hennery browns, fancy, 53@55c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 50@52c; fair to prime, 44@49c.

To Open Lines Late.

Owing to the instability of prices for merchandise and the uncertainty over wages in the trade, a number of the children's dress and boys' wash suit manufacturers will not open their lines before July 22. The announcement of this was made yesterday by the Manufacturers' Association of Childrens' Dresses and Boys' Wash Suits. It is understood the dress line will not be opened until August 1.

Plan Central Purchasing.

The American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association announced yesterday that plans are being formed for the bulk purchasing of certain supplies used by all the members. This plan is now followed by the Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association and has resulted in large savings to the association members, while at the same time furnishing them with standard supplies. The purchases of this association run into many millions during the year and are made in such lines as paper, twine, boxes and other articles used in shipping and in the offices.

Gray Goods Sales Sizeable.

Despite the proximity of the holiday, trading in the local gray goods market yesterday assumed pretty sizeable proportions. Liberal business was reported in 39-inch 68-72s at 21 cents for delivery in July, August, and September. For the same delivery 38½-inch 64-60s and 60-48s sold at 17¼ and 14¾ cents, respectively, with 15 cents asked for Eastern goods of the latter construction. In the coarse yarn cloths sales of 37-inch 3.95-yard drills were made at 19 cents. Second hands sold 5.50 sheetings at 13¾ cents, and also let out 48-square four-yard sheetings at 16¼ cents. Twenty-six cents was again paid for 40-inch 80-80 combed lawns.

Styles for Garment Makers.

The Women's Ready to Wear Department of the Bush Terminal Sales Building will furnish manufacturers whose product is sold through the department with exclusive new designs created by artists engaged especially for the purpose. The styles originated will be given to the manufacturers who will produce the finished garments exclusively for the department. The fashion library maintained in the Bush Building and claimed to be one of the most complete of its kind in the world will be called upon to furnish material for the designers.

Sold Up for Three Months.

The piano trade is reported practically sold up for the next three months to come. Production is not quite up to the mark, owing to the scarcity of skilled labor and the slow recovery from Government regulations in force during the war. The demand for pianos at the present time is said to be far in excess of the available supply and the manufacturers are often obliged to turn away cash offers because they have no goods. The export trade is flourishing and, as soon as the cargo space shortage is over between this country and England and France within the next few months, it is said an exceptionally fine market will be offered in these countries where the industry was practically suspended during the war.

Plumage Trimmings Going Well.

A new suggestion from Paris in the way of plumage trimmings comes in the form of white peacock tails. They are being used, up to 24 inches in length, to wind around the crown of a hat. Four or five may appear in rows, with the full flat end sticking out as a trim. Paris also tells of another popular plumage in the shape of crosse aigrettes. These cannot be used in this country, because of the ban on their importation, but a creditable imitation of them is being produced here in white. White coq is being shown here for mid-summer use in a number of pompon and flat breast effects. For Fall, bronze coq is very well thought of. Small Summer hats are using brims of burnt goose to a large extent.

No Recessions in Raw Silks.

The Yokohoma raw silk market continues to advance. Old season's stocks are practically exhausted, and those that are left contain little silk fit for export. New silk is offered sparingly, which indicates that holders are looking for still higher prices. Cable delays are hampering business very much. The Canton and Shanghai markets are firm and prices are following the upward trend of the Japanese market. Despite the favorable way in which they are quoted, compared with Japanese raws, these silks have not yet attained the snap expected of them. Milan is active and firm. Some of the Government stock is being liquidated at full prices, chiefly for European consumption. The local market is remarkably strong and advancing. Spot silks are commanding liberal premiums.

Discovers a New Dyewood.

Announcement was made yesterday of the discovery in this country of a new dyewood that is said to be likely to replace logwood to a very large extent. Extracts from the new wood were produced last Fall, but the method was expensive and the resultant colors not fast. Repeated experiments have produced a dye, however, in five shades of brown. These are said to be fast and of a soft shade that is very desirable. Natural Dyewoods, Ltd., local importers of logwood and fustic, are now sending samples of these colors to tanners and manufacturing textile dyers of wool, leather, silk, and cotton, with instructions for their use. Samples have also been sent abroad. Experiments in mordants are still going on, and it is expected that many beautiful colors will be made from the new wood. It was discovered by J. S. Livingston of New Orleans, who made the first experiments.

Laced Shoes Leading for Fall.

From 85 to 90 per cent. of the orders taken in the better grades of women's shoes for Fall delivery call for laced ones, the remainder asking for buttoned boots. This assertion is attributed to a manufacturer of these goods by the Weekly Bulletin of Leather and Shoe News, Boston. For street wear, tan calf shoes in mahogany and dark brown shades will hold the palm. These run 8 to 8½ inches high, and have a four-inch vamp, a medium narrow toe, and a 1¾ to 2⅛-inch leather Cuban heel. For dress wear, high-cut mat goat boots and dark tobacco brown kid are the leading styles, with black and fawn buck laced boots closely following. They have the same general lines as the street shoes, but are made with 2¼-inch Louis heels. There is also a fine demand for black glazed kid boots with Cuban leather heel for street wear, while black calf boots with mat goat tops will be worn to a limited extent. The demand for oxfords and pumps for Fall wear is large and growing.

BUSINESS NOTES.

William Meyer & Co., importers and manufacturers of laces, embroideries, &c., have, as of July 1, been appointed sole selling agents in this country for Thomas Jordan & Sons of Lurgan and Belfast, Ireland. The Jordan firm manufactures linen cambrics and linen and cotton handkerchiefs.

The firm of L. P. Hollander & Co., established in Boston in 1848, has been incorporated under the Massachusetts laws as the L. P. Hollander Company, with a capitalization of $5,000,000. The company operates stores in this city and Boston, as well as branches at Palm Beach, Newport, Watch Hill, Magnolia, York Harbor, and Bar Harbor. These are the officers of the new corporation: President and Treasurer, Theodore C. Hollander; First Vice President, Benjamin Pitman; Second Vice President, Alva L. Hollander; Assistant Treasurer, Arthur B. Howe, and Clerk, Charles L. Furber.

More than 50,000 articles will be on display at the General Merchandise Exhibition, that is to be held in the grand ballroom of the Commodore Hotel, this city, on Aug. 4 to 8, inclusive. Among the features will be a showing of Fall styles in ready-to-wear garments on living models and a series of lectures on how to run a store profitably. The exhibition will be held under the auspices of the Popular Price Merchandise Association, Inc., of which Charles D. Bailey is President.

To Push Low Shoes for Spring.

At least one prominent manufacturer of high-grade footwear for women is heartily in favor of increasing the use of low shoes, because it means a smaller consumption per pair of upper leather, and is going to try to push their sale for the next Spring season by not making up a single sample pair of shoes, with exclusive new designs, created by. He argues that by this time next year the call for low shoes will have had a marked bear effect on the market for upper leather, more particularly high-grade black and colored kid.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

J. FRANK LILLY & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against J. Frank Lilly and F. Kent Schlener, individually and as co-partners, trading as J. Frank Lilly & Co., stock brokers, at 62 Broadway, by the following creditors: M. J. Clurman, $2,000; M. W. Schwartz, $500, and H. J. Greenstein, $500. Judge Hand has appointed Joseph M. Proskaner receiver in $1,000 bond.

FILLIPPO BRUNO, a grocer at 213 West Twenty-seventh Street.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against him by the following creditors: Francis H. Leggett & Co., $428; B. Mandell, $302, and Scarawelli & Co., Inc., $489. Judge Hand has appointed John L. Lyttle receiver in $1,000 bond.

HENRY VILLAUME, a manager, residing at 1,355 Broadway, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $75,651, and no assets except salary of $50 per week as manager of the Willis Pipe Co., on which exemption is claimed. Among the largest creditors are Alfred E. Norton Co., $6,065; Bronx Borough Bank, $30,000; Henry Epstein, $3,310, and John A. Philbrick & Bros., $2,300.

HERMAN SCHMERL, a salesman of furs, residing at 285 West Fourth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $7,534, and no assets. Among the largest creditors are Societe Anonyme des Ancien Etablissement, $2,784; Herman Busch & Co., Inc., $778, and L. Friedman & Co., $350.

JAMES A. MAGUIRE, a bookkeeper at 111 Fifth Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $1,772, and assets of $783 consisting of cash on hand. There are only three creditors.

HARRY DWORETZKY, a manager of a restaurant, 242 East 110th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $1,001, and no assets.

KATZ & POLLACEK, dry goods, at 1,358 First Avenue.—Judge Hand has appointed Martin Conboy receiver in $1,000 bond. The liabilities are said to be $100,000, and it is alleged that these debts exist partly for goods sold and delivered, and partly upon the liability of the alleged bankrupt as guarantors for certain of the debts of the New Jersey Felt Shoe Co.

MANNE BROS, dealers in live poultry at 677 Timpson Place have filed schedules in bankruptcy with liabilities of $11,247, and assets of $5,202, the main items of which are accounts due, $1,433, and deposits of money in bank, $2,809. Among the largest creditors are Samuel Werner, Inc., $4,970; Harry Baff, Inc., $3,274, and Sol Frankel, Inc., $1,343.

SCHLESBROW CO.—Maxwell Brown has filed schedules in bankruptcy individually and as a member of the firm of Schlesbrow Co., manufacturers of dresses, at 1,549 Madison Avenue, with liabilities of $4,091, and assets of $3,772 consisting of stock, $700, and accounts due, $2,772. Among the largest creditors is Nassau Finance Co., $2,000.

TO SELL SURPLUS LEATHER.

War Department Also Will Auction Off its Stock of Gauze.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The surplus property division of the War Department will offer for sale at public auction in Chicago, on Aug. 5, approximately $2,000,000 worth of surplus leather. The leather to be sold is the present surplus existing at Chicago, St. Louis, and Jeffersonville, Ind., and was acquired by the army for artillery harness, pistol holsters, riding bridles, rifle scabbards, and stirrup straps.

The War Department also is offering for sale, under sealed proposals, 1,500,000 yards of 44 by 40 gray gauze, 8.2 yards per pound, and 38½ inches in width. The bids will be opened the morning of July 10 in the office of the Chief, Surplus Property Division of the War Department, Munition Building, Washington. No bid for less than 200,000 yards of the material will be considered. This is a part of the stock of gauze acquired by the War Department for bandage purposes. It is located at the warehouses of Johnson & Johnson, the manufacturers, at New Brunswick, N. J.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Sharp Advance and Active Trading Alters Midsummer Estimates of Trend of Stocks.

The breadth, activity, and sharp advance of stock quotations in yesterday's market was part and parcel of the great speculative movement of early June, and seemed to show that traders had forgotten the recent difficulties in the credit situation while stirred by the thought that prices should go higher. At times the advance bordered on the violent and the large business done by commission houses with telegraph connection to interior points indicated a renewed public participation on an extensive scale. The steel group led, one issue rising more than 10 points, while Steel common was carried into the forefront of interest by rising to a new high level for the year. Gains running from 2 to 5 points were widely distributed in the list at the end of the day, and a rather singular development for the season lay in the fact that the long holiday, beginning today, caused comparatively little profit-taking near the close. At least, such selling was so easily absorbed that stocks left off at or near their maximum quotations for the session. The railroad department was neglected.

In so far as real economic factors had play among the influences promoting purchases, they dealt with the known improvement of general business in the last three weeks, with the gradually shaping plans of the French authorities for a vast outlay for reconstruction, with the re-establishment of call money on a 6 per cent. basis, and with news from the crop centres, showing weather conditions to have been beneficial during the last week for harvesting. Quite likely the cheerful reports from iron and steel making centres the day before applied greater force to sentiment after being digested, and the Street during the course of the day found in the reviews of mercantile agencies a fresh reiteration of the forward stride of business. The surging tendency of industrial stocks indicated, however, that buying was being accelerated, as during May and the first half of June, largely by the desire of the public to speculate because of the belief that the market was going up. This was made evident in the fact that shares which had previously been the most buoyant led the advance, together with certain additional issues which in all bull markets of recent years have proved an excellent medium for exercising speculative enthusiasm. Headlong purchases of this character usually bring their own adverse counter-influences into action sooner or later, and the advance, at a time when many followers of the market had looked for sluggish trading, altered in no respect the general aspects of future problems in the credit field. At the middle of the month heavy bank transactions will be involved in income tax and Victory Loan payments. The very growth of industrial activity, the true basis of permanent market movements, will require the use of more credit than earlier in the year, and the time must be close at hand when the first steps in financing the rejuvenation of warworn Europe will be taken.

Another decline in sterling, amounting to 3 cents or more to the pound, recorded a new low record for more than three years. At $4.51½ for sight drafts, the rate so closely approached the minimum level of the war period that predictions were heard of the early establishment of a quotation believed highly improbable when the weight of war financing was being borne. Franc exchange also displayed considerable weakness; in fact, most of the European exchanges moved in favor of New York. The day's gold shipments and arrangements involved a total in excess of $5,000,000, of which a fairly large proportion was destined to Europe.

Prices Heavy on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, July 3.—Prices were heavy on the bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 61 francs 82 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 30 francs 23 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 35 centimes. The dollar ranged from 6 francs 55 centimes to 6 francs 61 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The "Rebuilding Demand."

The major part of yesterday's strength and activity in the stock market was crowded into the steel stocks. Undoubtedly, the Paris reports which said that the French Budget Committee was considering a rebuilding program which called for 40,000,000,000f. had much to do with this, for it goes without saying that Wall Street expects a lot of this French money to be spent in the United States and is counting heavily on most of what is spent here going to the steel companies. In a market like the present, talk of how much of this has been discounted is hardly to the point. The fact is that the Street gets a report that France is to spend $8,000,000,000 for reconstruction, and assumes most of it is coming here. That is good news, new good news, no matter how much has previously been said about reconstruction, and the market responds accordingly by rushing forward.

Sterling Again Falls.

Sterling exchange continued its decline yesterday, going as low as $4.51½ for checks on London and $4.52½ for cable transfers. French and Italian exchanges also were weak, but their weakness was overshadowed by the fall in sterling. As was the case on Wednesday, the volume of offerings in sterling was very large, while the demand for the bills was little more than nominal. Nobody has been able to explain the decline to his own satisfaction, but everybody thinks the rate is going much lower. It is argued that for the time being England does not care how low the rate goes, and that until the American foreign financing plan is completed and operative it is likely to keep on falling. In this connection it is recalled that last Winter, when official support was withdrawn, predictions were made that sterling would sell at $4 flat before any real turn in the market came.

No Trading in Reichsmarks.

Reports circulated yesterday that dealings have begun in reichsmarks were not believed by bankers who trade in foreign exchange bills. The bankers denied absolutely that they had been doing anything in German exchange, and expressed disbelief that anybody had. One of yesterday's reports said remittances were being made to Coblenz, and that is admitted to be possible. In fact, it is known that a good deal of American money has been going to Coblenz and other parts of the Rhine country where the American soldiers are. That, however, is quite different from an ordinary exchange transaction. It can be made in several ways. For example, it is possible to buy a draft on London or Paris and have it remitted to Coblenz for the account of an American connected with the A. E. F. Or one may purchase a domestic money order, it is said, drawn on the American Army post office at Coblenz. And, naturally, reichsmarks being current at that place, Americans there who spend money have to translate their dollars into reichsmarks before they can do so. But the Trading With the Enemy act still is in force, according to bankers, and until it is annulled there is supposed to be no way of actually remitting funds for commercial purposes.

Active Railroad Stocks.

In all of yesterday's activity there were just four railroad issues to show a gross turnover of 10,000 shares or more each. Two of these, Missouri Pacific and Texas & Pacific, are strongly allied just now with the oil boom. Southern Pacific, too, has been influenced by the oil boom and the resultant flow of freight into the Southwestern field. The fourth 10,000 share stock was Reading, which can hardly be classed with the oil stocks, and certainly does not serve the oil country.

Railroad Payments.

In a recent paragraph relating to the signing of the Railroad Appropriation bill it was asserted that Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration had sent out checks to the railroads dated July 1, which at the time of sending were dependent for funds upon the signature of the President to the appropriation bill. It was said that the Treasury Department had an understanding with the Railroad Administration that it would honor the checks when a cable message said that the bill had been signed, this signature by the President making the checks good before they fell due. The facts in the case as supplied by the Railroad Administration are these: When the checks were sent out there were sufficient funds in the banks to pay the checks upon presentation. Therefore there was never any understanding between the Railroad Administration and the Treasury Department as to honoring the Railroad Administration's demands, and there was no proviso accompanying the checks sent to the railroads that they were to be used only in the event of the appropriation bill becoming a law prior to the date of the checks.

Money at Conventional Rates.

The call money market closed this week just as it did last, with rates down to normal and no unusual excitement. For some unknown reason, the call money market has been doing this of late. It gets wildly excited and mounts to unusual heights at times when the borrowing is not particularly heavy, but in more cases than a few it has stood at normal at the renewal hour, and at week-ends, when loans are being negotiated for over-Sunday periods, it has had a habit of falling from its heights and allowing brokers to fill their requirements for the longer periods at very reasonable figures.

Short Covering.

There was considerable short covering in yesterday's market, which with buying by the public sent prices soaring. From the point of view of the professional the market of the last three days has been perverse. Short lines were put out with the idea that the public would liquidate its holdings because of the uncertainty of carrying stocks. Instead the public bought stocks and sent the shorts to cover in haste.

Crucible Steel Soars.

Crucible Steel was one of the outstanding features among the steel stocks. There was spirited bidding for the stock in the last hour and the close was made at 115 with a net gain of 10¼ points for the day. At the end of the day Crucible was selling well above United States Steel. The action of Crucible was reminiscent of the advance which it made at periods during the 1915 market. There was this difference, however, that yesterday the issue was slightly more than 5 points higher than the high price which it touched in 1915. There was no news development which could account for such a pronounced gain in the stock. The movement apparently reflected pool operations.

Unfavorable News.

There is a high degree of interest as to how the present market will act when it has to weather unfavorable news. This applies not alone to those who are in the market, and therefore have selfish motives for an early endeavor to interpret conditions, but also to those who are interested solely in the phenomenon itself and its comparison with other markets. Thus far the news developments have been constructive—they could hardly have been more so if made to order—but it is impossible that the rosy hue of affairs will always be reflected toward the market. There must be some dark days and the question is whether this market, with its heavy margined accounts, will follow precedent. Opinion differs. Only the actual test will answer the question. There is another angle, however, this being that the market may become topheavy before it has to buffet its way against unfavorable developments.

High Priced Stocks.

Several of the most pyrotechnic issues of a short time ago have now become quite tame and tractable. This applies to some of the high priced stocks such as General Motors, Chandler, Texas Company, and Mexican Petroleum. Even in yesterday's violent upturn of prices there was only a comparatively narrow price range for the issues mentioned. The range for Mex Pete was 1¼ points; for Texas Company, 1½; for Chandler, 2½, and for General Motors, 6¾ points.

Tobacco Stocks Strong.

Both United Cigar Stores and Tobacco Products were features in yesterday's market. In the case of United Cigar Stores the issue is bearing up well under the daily advance which is necessary in order for the issue to keep on a par with United Retail Stores. The latter issue has been booming on the Curb and an advance in this issue of one point means that United Cigar Stores has to advance two to keep on a level with the exchange basis, which is two shares of Retail Stores for one of United Cigars. Tobacco Products, while not as spectacular as its sister tobacco stock, is now selling some 10 points above the price which prevailed when it became ex rights. With Tobacco Products at 105 and the rights at better than 24, a price which was surpassed yesterday, Tobacco Products was selling on a basis of about 130 could the rights again be subjoined to the stock.

TEXAS & PACIFIC REPORT.

The annual report of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company for last year shows a net income of $1,681,570, or the equivalent of $1.15 a share on the capital stock after allowing 5 per cent. interest on the second mortgage income bonds. From this amount there was charged off $1,437,285 for additions and betterments, and $217,576 was set aside to meet maturing equipment obligations. The surplus for the year was therefore $26,709.

The standard return from the Government was $4,107,432, whereas the actual operating income was $3,706,864. The deficit for the Government was $400,586.

The report deals at length with the oil development in Texas and its relation to the railroad, saying that the encouraging feature of the year was the remarkable development in the vicinity of Ranger, Eastland, and Cisco, on the line between Fort Worth and Baird.

Indications are, says the report, that the field, commonly known as the "Ranger Field," will be one of the largest in the United States, estimated to require ten years to develop, producing for a period of twenty years.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Henry L. Doherty & Co. received a cable message yesterday from Tampico saying that a well on a lease held by the Empire Transportation and Oil Company, in the Panuco district, had been brought in with a production of 50,000 barrels of petroleum per day.

William West & Co. announce that Harold C. Kirchner and R. G. Brennan have joined their sales department. Mr. Kirchner recently returned from France as Captain of a machine gun company. Mr. Brennan was formerly with Kean, Taylor & Co.

The Aurora, Elgin & Chicago Railroad Company announced yesterday that funds had been deposited with the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago to meet interest on bonds which was payable April 15 last, together with interest on the deferred payment to July 5.

Amos H. Barnett has been appointed a Vice President of the advertising agency of Maclay & Mullally. Mr. Barnett was formerly with the advertising bureau of the Liberty Loan Committee.

The Guaranty Trust Company has been appointed registrar of the first preferred stock of the Congoleum Company and transfer agent for stock of the Bethlehem Motors Corporation.

Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne have prepared a list of investment securities showing a yield from 4.85 to 7.11 per cent.

The Liberty National Bank has been appointed registrar for the Simms Petroleum Company.

Investments of Special Merit

It is naturally confusing for the average investor to select among the great number of listed and unlisted stocks and bonds the securities that are the most appropriate to buy and hold. We have chosen for special consideration several investments which we regard as having the qualities of security, and offer as liberal a return as can be obtained conservatively.

The Fortunate Position of Investors Today

In sympathy with the increase in prices of all commodities, corporations and individuals who seek funds to finance their undertakings must pay considerably more than they did a few years ago. This situation enables those who have money to invest to obtain a much larger return from sound securities than before the war.

The Best Way to Obtain a Large Income in a conservative way is to purchase preferred stocks which are well protected by property and by earnings. Many of the strongest corporations have considered it advisable to put on the market preferred stocks, rather than bonds. This method of financing has indirectly saved money for the borrowers through decreased taxation and has directly improved the income of investors. For our recommendations of preferred stocks ask for Circular No. 457.

The Certainties of Oil Drilling

How frequent are failures in drilling for oil? A prominent operator of wide experience and thorough knowledge is thus quoted: "I feel it would be a conservative statement to say that if you had the records of all the best operating oil companies for a period, say, of the past ten years, you would find such companies have not drilled to exceed an average of 10% failures."

N.Y. STOCK EXCHANGE TO REGULATE CURB

Will Force All Members to Report Transactions in Open-Air Market.

HAS 80 PER CENT. OF TRADE

Curb Association Officials Deny Co-operation—Say Exchange Firms Handle 60 Per Cent. of Sales.

The New York Stock Exchange yesterday announced that it would attempt to regulate the Curb market by having the dealings of its own members reported to the Secretary. According to officials of the Stock Exchange, the dealings of their members on the Curb make up about 80 per cent. of the total turnover of the open-air market. It has been proposed, as the first step, to have all transactions by Stock Exchange members in Curb stocks reported to the office of the Secretary of the New York Stock Exchange, where the transactions will be tabulated and made public as soon as possible after the close of business.

One of the Governors of the Stock Exchange said yesterday that even if the present market went indoors, as proposed, probably there would always be a curb market. It was said by Stock Exchange officials that several conferences with the officials of the New York Curb Association had been held already. E. H. McCormick, President of the Curb Association, denied that conferences had been held. Other officials were surprised by the action of the Stock Exchange. They asserted that the proposal would have no bearing on the proposition to house the Curb market. The fund for this purpose already has reached $470,000, every member having subscribed his allotted amount, except those who are not in the country now.

In regard to the volume of trading on the Curb by Stock Exchange houses there is a conflict of opinion. The Stock Exchange officials, in announcing their plan, placed transactions for the account of their members at 80 per cent. of the total. The Curb Association contends that only 60 per cent. is done through the Stock Exchange members. It was pointed out by one official yesterday that if the Stock Exchange issued a list of prices and figures on trading for the Curb it might be in conflict with the figures issued by the Curb quotation agencies and that the figures could not represent the volume of trading. Discussing the plan of the Stock Exchange, one of the Governors said yesterday:

"We are going to attempt to regulate the Curb. Among other things, we are going to force all of our members to report all Curb transactions daily. The plan is new and details must be worked out, but we have decided upon the general policy. Of course, we will not be able to force brokers who are not members of the New York Stock Exchange to report their Curb dealings to us, but, so far as our own members are concerned, they will be forced to report."

The question of regulating the Curb through the Stock Exchange, it was said, had been under consideration for a long time. A special committee, headed by H. K. Pomroy, is now in charge of the plans, and it is expected that additional details will be announced soon.

COTTON UP 125 POINTS.

Prices Make Sudden Advance in Excited Market.

After a bad start, during which the weakness at Liverpool and selling from that quarter as well as from Southern operators who figured the Government crop report had been entirely discounted, the cotton market yesterday became wildly excited, and from the early low prices, which were 27 to 35 points below the closing figures of Wednesday, it rose rapidly an average of about 160 points, making the net gains for the day 125 to 130 points.

The primary cause for this advance was publication by the Weather Bureau of a storm warning. Coming on top of the previous day's forecast for good weather, this operated to drive in the shorts with a rush, and as their buying started the market up, a lot of new buying appeared from Wall Street houses and other speculative sources, and completed the stampede to cover.

The attendance on the floor of the Cotton Exchange was the lightest in some time. This undoubtedly was due to the approaching holiday, for both the New York and New Orleans Exchanges closed yesterday not to open for business until Monday. Many brokers took an early start on the triple holiday, and by so doing missed one of the most excited markets in some little time. Their absence, too, caused a general shrinking in the volume of business, which was considerably below the average.

The storm warning, while the most immediate cause for the sharp turn, was hardly the predominating influence. The market has been acting just as it did a month ago, when it rose substantially in anticipation of a bullish Government report, and then sold off abruptly upon publication of the display. Last week the cotton market again was strong in anticipation of a highly bullish report, and as soon as the report came out it reacted about 2½ to 3 cents a pound.

That the market has not discounted the general crop situation seems assured, and that it would come back was generally accepted as a foregone conclusion by the ring traders. Nevertheless, these very traders have been active on the short side, hoping to make quick turns and be out again before the natural upswing developed. Yesterday they were caught unawares, and had to rush to cover. That they were not convinced of the soundness of their short position was evident from the speed with which they covered when the upturn started.

The export movement for the week has been all that could be asked. With one day still missing, the total outgo has amounted to 146,452 bales, which is not far behind the record week of the season, that ended on June 21, when the shipments amounted to 157,741 bales. In that week the final day contributed 32,950 bales, so that this week's showing is really better than that week's was. If today's export clearances come up to expectations the week will see the establishment of a new high record for the season. Yesterday's quotations follow:

Saving Millions to Industry

EFFICIENCY DEMANDS not alone the capacity for accomplishing more work, but the capacity for accomplishing that work with the least possible waste in money, labor and materials, and the least possible outlay of time and energy. When applied to manufacturing and industrial enterprises, it means the shortest road to your market, and with maximum of production. What is necessary in any product to accomplish all of these facts should be exactly determined before development of any project or enterprise is undertaken.

SLOCUM·AVRAM·SLOCUM MANAGEMENT
Look for products bearing this seal

It is what you don't know about your product that costs you money.

HUNDREDS OF PRODUCTS should never have been put on the market because they were never mechanically or commercially practical. If their backers had known in the beginning what they should have known thousands of dollars would have been saved them. S-A-S-MANAGEMENT can determine exactly before a dollar is spent just what the mechanical and commercial possibilities of your product are, and, if you desire, will assume development and quantity production in our own factory and mechanical laboratories on any scale required.

Let us apply our facilities for analysis, investigation and production to your development problems.

Opportunities for The Well-Informed Investor

The well-informed investor appreciates that the present low prices for conservative investments are due primarily to the unusual conditions now prevalent throughout the world, and not to any impairment of the true value of the properties securing such investments. As a matter of fact, he realizes that property values and earnings are, in most instances, even greater today than ever before. If you have funds to invest, or securities maturing in the near future, we suggest that you send for our Special List No. 1238, "Conservative Investments."

Bankers Announce Only Names of Companies Involved—Tell of Resources in Iron Ore.

Plans for the consolidation of several steel and iron companies into a $100,000,000 corporation, to be called the Steel and Tube Company of America, Inc., are now being formed here by bankers. None of the details was given out yesterday, except for the naming of the Steel and Tube Company, a corporation with $25,000,000 authorized capital; the Northwestern Iron Company, and the Newport Mining Company as the concerns which will figure in the merger.

The present Steel and Tube Company was formed a year ago in a merger of the Mark Manufacturing Company and the Iroquois Iron Company. It is understood that the company includes interests identified with the Semet-Solvay Company, Pickands, Mather & Co., and other metal and mining concerns. Statistical records show that when the merger was put through a new steel plant, to cost $18,000,000, was practically completed at Indiana Harbor, Ind. Large tube works are owned at Evanston and Zanesville, and blast furnaces at Chicago.

The company had of recent date outstanding bonds and notes aggregating about $17,000,000. The balance sheet as of June 30, 1918, showed total assets amounting to $47,497,000, of which $29,600,000 represented properties. The surplus was $7,952,000. Earnings for the last fiscal year are not yet at hand, but were estimated by the company early in the year to be $6,000,000, after providing for interest and allowing for taxes on the 1917 basis. Clayton Mark is Chairman of the Board of Directors and A. A. Schlesinger is President.

The Northwestern Iron Company owns lands in Wisconsin with an estimated content of 10,000,000 tons, with blast furnaces, electric power equipment, and by-product facilities. The authorized capital is $3,000,000. Some of the Directors of this company also are Directors of the Steel and Tube Company, and A. A. Schlesinger of the Steel and Tube Company is an officer of the Northwestern Company. The manuals contain no information about the Newport Mining Company, except that interests connected with it have connection also with the Steel and Tube Company.

It is expected that part of the stock of the new company will be offered soon to provide additional working capital.

General Motors Co. Stock Issue Sold.

The syndicate headed by Dominick & Dominick, which has been distributing $20,000,000 debenture 6 per cent. stock of the General Motors Corporation, announced yesterday that the issue had been sold. The organization which participated in the sale comprised 310 members in seventy-five cities. A part of the stock was taken by investors in Europe, and the transaction brought about 6,000 shareholders to the list of owners of General Motors stock.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

A syndicate of Manhattan investors, organized and represented by Morris & Schiff, attorneys, have purchased from the 640 Riverside Drive Corporation the two twelve-story apartments on Riverside Drive, running from 141st Street to 142d Street. The property has a frontage of 205 feet on Riverside Drive, 288 feet on 141st Street and 250 feet on 142d Street, occupying a total area of approximately fourteen city lots.

There are 187 apartments in the two buildings, running from three rooms to seven rooms each. The total rental aggregates approximately $225,000 a year, and the purchase price is reported to be $1,750,000.

The property is encumbered by a mortgage, held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, in the sum of $1,275,000, and the purchasers pay all cash above the mortgage.

The buildings were erected about four years ago. Du Bois & Taylor negotiated the deal.

Brooklyn Waterfront Properties Sold.

Two important pieces of Brooklyn waterfront property were sold yesterday by the Columbia Trust Company, trustees for the Brooklyn-New York Ferry Company, through Joseph P. Day.

The American Sugar Refining Company purchased the property, located at the foot of Grand Street, extending out about 400 feet to the pier headline, with an average width of 175 feet. This plot immediately adjoins their refining works on Kent Avenue, and was held at $300,000. Associated with Mr. Day in the transaction was Thomas P. Graham, who represented the American Sugar Refining Company.

A property at the northwest corner of Kent Avenue and South Sixth Street, under the Williamsburg Bridge, was the other property to change ownership. It consists of a plot of upland, 224 by 123, improvement of one and two story brick buildings, and extends 257 feet from bulkhead line to pierhead line. This property was held at $350,000, and was purchased by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for a power station.

When the four bridges that cross the East River were constructed it relieved the vehicular traffic over the ferries to certain parts of Brooklyn, and many of the ferries were forced to close down. The Brooklyn-New York Ferry Company was one of the first affected, and, through the Columbia Trust Company, as trustee, they placed in Mr. Day's hands for sale three very desirable waterfront properties, located in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

Abramson Buys Block Front.

Joseph G. Abramson purchased the block front on the east side of Manhattan Avenue, 117th Street to 118th Street. This block, 200 feet long, is improved with two modern seven-story elevator apartment houses, the 118th Street corner being 70 by 101 and the 117th Street corner, 120 by 101.

The annual rental is in excess of $60,000, and Dr. L. Duncan Bulkley, who owned the same for a number of years, held them for $500,000. The transaction was on a cash basis and was consummated by N. Nasonowitz & Son, as brokers.

Builders Buy West Side Apartment House Site.

As a site for a nine-story apartment house, Jacob Axelrod & Sons have bought from William L. O'Connell the four four-story dwellings at 60 to 66 West Sixty-eighth Street, near Columbus Avenue, occupying a combined site of 78.3 by 100.5.

The purchasers plan to immediately begin the erection of a nine-story apartment house containing suites of two and three rooms. On the roof of the structure will be a penthouse which will contain quarters for servants.

Mr. O'Connell recently assembled the site, acquiring the house at 66 but a few days ago. He has been asking $140,000 for the plot. Arrangements have been made for a loan of $300,000 for three years on the property. The Nehring Company and Vasa K. Bracher were the brokers in the sale. It is understood that the entire operation will involve an outlay of about $500,000.

Water Street Sale.

The Broadway-John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen, President, sold the two five-story buildings, on plot 38.6 by 101, at 102 and 104 Water Street, running through to 136 and 138 Pearl Street, to Francis Emory Fitch, Inc., who will occupy the property after extensive alterations. The buildings are 143 feet from Wall Street and directly opposite the Beaver Building, recently purchased by the Munson Steamship Company. Camman, Voorhees & Floyd negotiated the transaction.

Hospital Sells Holdings.

St. Luke's Hospital sold the buildings at 74 and 82 Franklin Street, held at $105,000, to a client of Robert F. Bonsall.

City Buys Bronx Block Front for School Site.

The Board of Education has purchased the block front on the north side of Charlotte Street, extending from Boston Road to Crotona Park East, as a site for one of the largest and finest school buildings in the Bronx.

The property, which now contains several buildings of a nondescript character, faces Crotona Park and has a frontage of 261.92 feet on Charlotte Street, 275.59 feet on Crotona Park East, and 144.96 feet on Boston Road, with a rear line of 260 feet.

Midtown Sale.

Mary Rigby sold the building at 134 East Twenty-sixth Street, near Lexington Avenue, to N. Siegel of the American Novelty and Finishing Works, who will occupy it with his business. E. A. Turner, Inc., negotiated the sale.

The Stratford Resold.

The Stratford, a six-story elevator apartment house, on plot 100 by 100, at the northwest corner of Lenox Avenue and 115th Street, was resold by Frederick Brown to a client of Marks & Marks. MAYOR ASKS COURT ACTION ON MILK

Writes to Governor's Commission Urging Prosecution in Every District of State.

McADOO ON PRICE INCREASE

Milk as Necessary as Water Supply, Declares Magistrate, Attacking Distribution Cost.

Mayor Hylan and Chief Magistrate McAdoo both discussed the rise in milk prices yesterday. The Mayor expressed his opinions in a letter to Robert E. Dowling, Chairman of the Milk Commission appointed by Governor Smith, in which he characterized the milk dealers as profiteers, urged their prosecution, and suggested an appeal to Governor Smith.

His letter follows:

"I see by the papers, if quoted correctly, that you have received a letter from the milk trust, stating that they have raised the price of Grades A and B milk, and that the increase was necessary, as the companies would otherwise have to conduct their business at a loss during the month of July.

"This statement no reasonable person will believe. Milk is most plentiful this time of the year, and these profiteers should not be allowed to raise the price of milk. If you have no power to regulate price, you can, however, appeal to the highest power in the State to ask every District Attorney in the State to begin a vigorous prosecution against the milk trust, and the kind of prosecution that will send the culprits that have violated the law to jail.

"We tried at the last session of the Legislature to have the law repealed that gave the Dairymen's League exemption, but this was not done, and since the Legislature adjourned, they are again at their old business of boosting prices at the expense of the public. The people will not tolerate much longer profiteering in foodstuffs, milk and other necessities of life."

Magistrate McAdoo presiding yesterday at the milk inquiry conducted by the District Attorney, said that, under immunity granted by law, the farmers were acting in concert to sell their products at one and the same price, or not at all. Farmers and distributors, he said, had entered into an agreement by which the price of milk was to be regulated by the price of butter and cheese in the open market.

"I, among others at the inquiry, pointed out that after the armistice there would be an immense and increasing demand for export for these articles," said Magistrate McAdoo. "That has proved true and no doubt accelerates the price over former years."

The Magistrate said the farmer can sell his milk, or convert it into butter and cheese, if that is the most profitable. "The price, now regulated by butter and cheese, for which there is a tremendous export demand, is fluctuating violently, as shown by the difference between the prices in May, June, and July," he continued. "Formerly staple prices for milk were agreed upon for three months at a time.

"The distributors now add three-quarters of a cent on top of the raise of the farmers. Distribution is largely in the hands of a few big companies. As a result of the investigation I am convinced that the State and city will have to regulate this distribution or take over and entirely control it.

"The milk supply is as essential to the city as that of water. If an enemy besieging the city cut off either, he would reduce the people to the direst straits. Milk is, if anything, more essential to the infant than water.

"If the farmers exercised their rights to convert all milk into butter, cheese, and other forms, and there was no fluid milk to be obtained, the State would be compelled, in order to save its citizens, to take over the production of milk."

MRS. WANSKER TO APPEAL.

Justice Benedict Grants Application in Coney Island Shooting.

Counsel for Mrs. Rebecca Wansker of Coney Island, who was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree on June 4 for the killing of Samuel Silverberg, yesterday obtained a certificate of reasonable doubt from Supreme Court Justice Benedict in Brooklyn, who declared that her rights had not been properly safeguarded at the trial.

Justice Benedict, in his memorandum, criticised Supreme Court Justice Cropsey, who presided at the trial, and Assistant District Attorney Warbasse, who conducted the prosecution. Justice Benedict admitted Mrs. Wansker to bail in $25,000 pending her appeal.

Mrs. Wansker is the owner of a house at Coney Island of which Silverberg was a tenant. They had a dispute over the lease, and Silverberg was shot and killed. While the prosecution alleged that the shooting was unprovoked, the defendant said that she was assaulted and had shot in self-defense.

In his final address to the jury at the trial the Assistant District Attorney made an attack upon counsel for the defense, which, Justice Benedict said, was "unjustifiable and prejudicial." Justice Benedict said that the Court had failed to extend to the defendant and her counsel "a fair degree of protection."

COURT DISBARS LAWYERS.

Takes Licenses from C. J. Earley and Alfred Hughes.

Cornelius J. Earley, for years a practicing attorney, was disbarred yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court on the charge that he converted to his own use $679 in rents he had collected. The referee who heard the case found Earley had made "an honest mistake" in crediting himself with the money. The court decided that "a careless use of the money of others cannot meet with our approval." Earley also was accused of collecting $4,666 in an accident case for a woman client and failing to notify her for two years and a half later.

The Appellate Division also disbarred Alfred Hughes because he failed to say when he was admitted to the bar that he had been disbarred in Baltimore. Joseph A. Young was suspended for a year and S. Edward Ginsburg for three months.

Bars Russellites from Park.

Park Commissioner Harman of Brooklyn yesterday revoked a permit to the International Bible Students' Society for a children's picnic today in front of the Honor Roll in Prospect Park, citing a ruling of the board that the parks may not be used for religious meetings. The Commissioner said, however, that eight members of this society, the so-called "Russellites," were convicted in Brooklyn of conspiring to defeat the purposes of the Selective Service act. Upon a reversal by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals the eight prisoners were recently released under bail from the Atlanta Penitentiary and are awaiting a new trial.

Incorporate Hospital for Rheims.

Supreme Court Justice Donnelly yesterday approved the incorporation of the American Memorial Hospital, which is to be erected at Rheims, France, as a result of the work of the American Fund for French Wounded. Mrs. Benjamin G. Lathrop, an officer of the fund, raised $300,000 for the first wing of the hospital, which is to cost $450,000. The incorporators include Daniel T. Pierce of the American Red Cross, Paris; Charles M. Chapin, Frederick R. Newbold, Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss, and William Law Stout.

EDITOR ALLEGES "PLANT."

Says Detectives Have Entered The Call Office at Night.

Charles W. Erwin, managing editor of The New York Call, official organ of the Socialist Party, said yesterday that the office of The Call was entered Monday and Tuesday nights after the staff had gone home. The following statement appeared on the front page of his paper yesterday:

> TO THE SLEUTHERS AND RAIDERS.
> We do not know what you are trying to "plant" in this office to "discover" for a "horror-struck" public, but the two nights that you have been in here you have left the door open in going out. We have been hunting for what you have left, but you have evidently hidden it so securely that you can only "discover" it yourself. We can only notify the public not to get excited if something damning is "discovered" in our office by those who "planted" it.
> CHARLES W. ERWIN,
> Managing Editor, The New York Call.

Mr. Erwin expressed the opinion that the intruders were agents of the legislative committee investigating seditious activities, and that they entered by way of fire escape and windows.

A hearing was to have been held before Chief Magistrate McAdoo yesterday on a motion by the Rand School of Social Science to vacate the search warrants on which the school was raided June 21. Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger was prepared to proceed with the argument, but I. M. Sackin, representing the American Socialist Society, which conducts the Rand School, asked for delay. The lawyers received until Monday to submit briefs.

AID AMERICANS IN MEXICO.

Association for Protection to Seek Reparation for Crimes.

At a meeting yesterday, the Executive Committee of the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico adopted resolutions pledging the association to aid Mrs. John W. Correll, whose husband was recently murdered in Mexico, to return to the United States. The resolutions also declared it to be the purpose of the organization to help Mrs. Correll and all other widows and orphans of Americans killed by Mexicans to obtain reparation for the crimes committed against them. As one means to this end the association has men at work at its offices at No. 347 Fifth Avenue, compiling a list of these murdered Americans from date on file there. The list will be incomplete because the information on file in the State Department has never been made public.

The last murder reported to the association was not of an American, but of an Italian employe of an American, Dr. Albert J. Ochsner, of 2106 Sedgwick Street, Chicago. The case was reported to the Italian Ambassador at Mexico City and to the American State Department. Private advices to the association from Mexico City are to the effect that the Mexican Government has ordered all traffic suspended on the Tehuantepec Railway and on the Interoceanic Railway between Vera Cruz and Mexico City.

VACATION FOR BLAKELOCK.

Insane Artist Will Spend Summer in an Adirondack Cottage.

Ralph Albert Blakelock, the painter who achieved fame through the recognition of his masterpieces after he became insane, will leave the asylum at Middletown, N. Y., for a while this Summer, on the money obtained through the sale of a picture he painted and left years ago at the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. for an unpaid board bill. The picture brought more than $3,000, and the Y. M. C. A. turned the money over to the artist.

It is now planned for the artist to go to the Adirondacks, near Elizabethtown, N. Y., where he will take a cottage. Mrs. Van Rensselaer Adams will care for him. It is expected much of his time will be spent in painting.

ASKS BIDS FOR STATION.

Transit Commission Seeks Proposals for Atlantic Avenue Building.

Transit Commissioner John H. Delaney yesterday began advertising for bids for the construction of station finish for the Atlantic Avenue station on the Brighton Beach Line. Bids must be submitted on or before July 17. The work is considered important because trains operating over the Fulton Street elevated line cannot be diverted into the Fourth Avenue subway until it is finished. It is expected that the work will be completed in four months.

Brighton Beach trains are to pass through the DeKalb Avenue station on the Flatbush Avenue extension, and will then be diverted into the Montague Street tunnel line to Manhattan and north under Broadway and Seventh Avenue through Times Square to Fifty-ninth Street. This affords a new through route from the Central Park section to the seaside without change.

CHESTER YATES BACK IN SING SING CELL

WAS FOUND BY OLD MATE

Married and Working as Clerk in a Kansas City Shoe Store, He Paid All to Blackmailer.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, July 3.—Safely returned to Sing Sing today, Chester Yates, the robber and jail-breaker, who has for seven years been dodging police and prison authorities, told his adventures, punctuated with some hard luck details. The money gained from his robberies, he now asserts, another "crook" got away from him by extortion. Yates had married and started to "live straight" meanwhile.

Keepers Michael Mack and Robert Martin greatly relieved the suspense of Warden Brophy and the official staff of Sing Sing when they appeared at the prison door with the fugitive, who often boasted no cell would hold him.

In his seven years as a fugitive, Yates has broken out of Sing Sing, the Tombs, and four other bastiles. The two keepers kept the escaped convict tightly handcuffed from the minute they opened the jail cell that held him in Kansas City, throughout the journey East, until they passed through the heavy steel gates of Sing Sing.

Yates, crestfallen, refused to tell how he managed to escape from Sing Sing during the fog on the morning of Dec. 18, 1912, or how he "beat" the New Orleans jail four years ago when rearrested and held there for the Sing Sing getaway.

"On the way," Keeper Mack said, "Yates gave us not the slightest trouble. He seemed to be depressed, in fact, dumbfounded, when we called for him. He told us that when arrested he had a good job, earning $45 a week honestly, working for a Kansas City shoe concern. We left Kansas City on Tuesday forenoon with him and in the time we were on the road none of us got much sleep."

Describing how he was captured, Yates himself startled the prison officials by announcing he had married since breaking out of Sing Sing four months after receiving a twenty-one years sentence for snatching $87,000 from Aaron Bancroft, an elderly broker in the Produce Exchange.

Betrayed by Old Prison Mate.

Yates talked with Warden Brophy, with Dr. Amos O. Squire, prison physician, Rev. Father William Cashin and others. He revealed that in seven years he had roamed over twenty-eight states; sidestepping policemen and trying to live down his past. But a criminal whose acquaintance he made in New York, knowing he was wanted for jailbreaking, picked up his trail and blackmailed him.

This man got money out of him until, he said, he refused to give up any more. Then his extortioner told the Kansas City police there was a reward out for him, and where he could be found.

"That is why," said Yates solemnly, "I'm back here."

Much of the money he got by the Bancroft robbery, he admitted, was taken away from him by the blackmailer.

"I've been working in Kansas City four years," said Yates, "with the same shoe concern that employed me before I got into trouble. I was doing clerical work. I was surprised when Sing Sing guards appeared to take me away. I knew they were in Missouri, but I retained ex-Attorney General Barclay to defend me against extradition, and I thought there would be a postponement of thirty or sixty days, by that time, of course, I expected to tire out the prison guards.

Had Married and "Lived Straight."

"When they came for me," he continued, "I was not prepared to leave. I was expecting my wife to come with a change of clothes for me, when I was suddenly taken away. I am naturally played out after this trip. When I first got out of Sing Sing I couldn't sleep. I was afraid of being arrested. A doctor told me to take laudanum. Then I began taking morphine.

"I did not do anything wrong in Kansas City. I decided to go straight. I settled down there four years ago, had a nice home and was earning $45 a week. I married a very nice girl. But along came that crook who was in on my part and that Sing Sing escape. He threatened to give me up unless I came across with money. I paid, and paid, believe me, until I finally determined to give him no more. He must have turned me in then, for the 'bulls' came and locked me up in Kansas City."

He told of running away from New Orleans jail while waiting to be taken back to Sing Sing in 1915. But when interrogated as to other escapes, and how he found it so easy to get out of cells and irons, he stopped short and would say no more. He is now kept in an isolated cell, where other prisoners cannot have access to him.

BEQUEST TO HARVARD.

Will of Mrs. Georgiana B. Wright Gives University Large Fund.

A large residuary bequest to Harvard University, and gifts of $50,000 each to the New York Protective or Probation Association, and the Duxbury, Mass., Free Library, are provided in the will of Mrs. Georgiana B. Wright of 44 West Seventy-seventh Street, who died in Boston March 30 last.

Eleanor Deming of 945 West End Avenue receives $20,000, and gifts of $10,000 and $5,000 respectively are made to Ethel B. Green of Duxbury and Mrs. Louise B. Grimke of 132 East Seventy-ninth Street. Twenty-six bequests of from $500 to $2,000 each are left to friends and distant relatives. The Society of Colonial Dames of Massachusetts and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts are to receive various works of art. Mrs. John Wright, a daughter-in-law, is bequeathed $400,000 in trust, and Russell W. Moore, son-in-law, receives $100,000 in trust. These sums revert to the residuary fund which was bequeathed to Harvard. Seven relatives share a trust fund of $92,500, the principal of which will go to their heirs.

FIGHT FOR PHYFE ESTATE.

Widow Asks Removal of Sister-in-Law as Administratrix.

Mrs. Grace H. P. Phyfe, whose husband, Duncan Phyfe, died May 5, at the Hotel Buckingham, leaving $500,000, applied in the Surrogate's Court yesterday to have her sister-in-law, Mrs. Edith Bell Phyfe, of 22 East Seventy-first Street, removed as administratrix on the ground that she was named through a mistake. The widow says that eleven days after her husband died she was cited to show cause why her sister-in-law should not be appointed, and because she did not go to the right court the sister-in-law, who is the widow of William Henry Pinckney Phyfe, a historian, was named without opposition.

Mrs. Grace Phyfe says she understands Mrs. Edith Bell Phyfe contends that she, (Mrs. Grace Phyfe,) is incompetent to manage the estate. She contends that this is untrue, and says that with the aid of a trust company she has been managing her private fortune so well that she did not spend the $5,000 a year her husband allowed her.

Will Unimproved Dwellings—Go Begging?

As every day brings nearer the period of building construction which is uppermost in the minds of several hundred thousand rent-payers, they feel more and more keenly the discomforts of old and unimproved buildings.

Prior to present abnormal conditions these buildings were in most cases operated at such a small margin of profit that they were a drug on the market. While modernized dwellings were available tenants refused to live in unimproved homes.

The return to such conditions will be rapid, unless owners of this class of property take their cue from several of their number farseeing enough to anticipate this change in conditions. These shrewd owners are improving their old dwelling places so that they can compete with the new ones.

Electric service is the first improvement installed. Nothing else can add like comfort to the home. Without it families are deprived of such necessities as electric irons, fans, appliances for cooking and vacuum cleaners.

Apartment halls are vastly improved by electric service. Uniform light, convenience of control, the elimination of bell-ringing and door-opening batteries and the substitution therefor of small transformers operated from the lighting circuit are some of its advantages. The whole tone of the building is improved.

A postal card or telephone request (Stuyvesant 4980) will bring our representative to you. He will tell you how inexpensively and easily your property can be electrified. And if the investment involves a greater immediate expenditure than is convenient for you to make just now, we may perhaps be able to arrange terms.
